Sudetens to 'Fight.'

By the United Press.

Prague, Aug. 26.—The Sudeten German Party tonight rescinded its no-violence order to its 3,500,000 followers and announced they will be permitted to "fight back" within legal limits in defense of their lives, liberties and properties.

Minister of Interior Sharpls immediately described the announcement as a violation of the law and warned the Sudetens the police would deal energetically with any attempts to "misuse the proclamation as a motive to endanger peace and order."

The government radio station in Prague announced in German that "order and peace in the republic will be assured through the responsible body—namely, the police."

The announcer accused the Sudetens of preparing to increase pressure on the Czechs by "playing up minor incidents from the police records in the foreign press."

"Red Terrorists" Blamed.

The Sudeten Party order was contained in a proclamation issued by the party's executive committee under Konrad Henlein, the "Czechoslovak Hitler" whose minority reform negotiations with the government are stalemated as result of his rejection of the government's original minority statute.

3 Leave Cabinet In Belgrade After Arms Concession

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 26 (AP).—Three Yugoslav cabinet members, including the war minister, resigned today on the heels of the Little Entente Conference which granted Hungary the right to rearm.

The Yugoslav News Agency said the regency council accepted the resignations of Gen. Lyubomir Marich, war minister; Dr. Milan Urbanich, minister of commerce, and Dr. Vekoslaz Militich, minister of physical education.

The three Little Entente powers—Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Yugoslavia—agreed this week in Yugoslavia to disregard the arms limitations imposed on Hungary by the Trianon Peace Treaty.

WATCH OUT!

Dynamite!

Are you one of those "excavation" kibitzers who stand around watching the workers drill into solid rock in anticipation of the big blast to follow? Have you ever given any thought to the planning, timing and execution of those blasts? Read "They Tame the Demon" by Roger Kafka, in Sunday's Post. He tells of the dynamite experts, the "shotmen," and the miracles they have performed with one of mankind's most destructive forces: dynamite.

U. S. Protests Destruction of ChinaAirliner

America Aroused by Peril to Life, Property, Japan Is Informed.

A State Department protest against the machine-gunning and destruction of a Chinese-American airliner Wednesday was presented yesterday to the Japanese Foreign Office, at Tokyo, by Joseph C. Grew, American Ambassador to Japan.

Acting on direct instructions from Secretary of State Hull, Grew's formal note of protest cited "aroused public feeling" in the United States as basis for complaint against "the unwarranted attack."

The note concluded forcefully:

"My Government desires to express its emphatic objection to the jeopardizing in this way of the lives of American as well as other noncombatant occupants of unarmed civilian planes engaged in clearly recognized and established commercial services over a regularly scheduled air route."

Four Bodies Recovered.

Twelve persons, perhaps more, all Chinese, were killed August 24 when five Japanese warplanes shot up the airliner, piloted by an American, H. L. Woods, of Winfield, Kans., and drove it into a waterway 35 miles south of Canton.

Woods escaped injury, but four bullet-marked bodies, one of a Boy Scout in uniform, were recovered yesterday from the sunken wreckage, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Tokyo.

Grew handed the protest to Kensuke Horinouchi, vice minister of foreign affairs, with whom he had a half-hour conversation. The note pointed out that "not only was the life of an American national directly imperiled, but loss was also occasioned to American property interests."

Bullets Pursued American.

Stress was placed on the fact that after the plane had successfully landed it was followed down by the warplanes and gunned until it sank. Woods, the note said, swam for safety, and was followed by a Japanese plane which continued to machine-gun him.

Before Grew delivered the note, a foreign office spokesman in Tokyo

Coroner Grills Jail Heads in Steam Deaths

Warrants Issued for Six More 'Tough' Guards in Suffocations.

By the United Press.

Philadelphia, Aug. 26.—Coroner Charles H. Hersch tonight questioned the warden and the captain of guards at Philadelphia County Prison to determine the identity of the "higher-up" who gave the order to "turn on the heat" which steambaked four hunger-striking convicts.

Hersch, who announced earlier he would "break the case wide open before night," said he would proceed slowly until he has established "beyond doubt" the identity of the persons responsible for the deaths.

Warden Questioned.

The coroner went into the prison with Assistant District Attorney John A. Boyle this morning and questioned Warden Frank Craven, second in command to Superintendent William B. Mills, and Guard Capt. James McGuire. He intimated certain "tough" guards would be among those arrested on six new warrants sworn yesterday.

Hersch said he was investigating the possibility that a group of "tough" guards were assigned solely to "discipline" recalcitrant prisoners confined in the isolation cellblock.

Mills, he said, "has told us nothing which would lead to the solution of these crimes."

Hearts Dried Out.

Duplication of conditions in the small "Klondike" cellblock, where the four men who refused to abandon a five-day hunger strike were found literally "baked" to death early Monday, was attempted last night but postponed because outside temperatures were 10 degrees lower than those of last week-end.

Dr. Martin P. Crane, coroner's physician who performed autopsies on the bodies of the four victims, said they were subjected to heat so intense during two days and two nights that their hearts and other vital organs shrank to half of normal size. Other convicts, he said, would have died had the heat remained an hour longer in the pipes which line the "Klondike" corridor.

D. C. Rose Bandit Confesses, Points Out Homes He Raided

A brawny 6-foot youth told the police last night that he was the 'rose bandit" who looted District homes of several thousand dollars in a recent series of burglaries.

The youth yesterday toured several exclusive residential sections with officers, to whom he pointed out 12 houses he said he robbed in the last five months, leaving a fresh rose in five.

The 'rose bandit" came to grief Sunday night when he abandoned second-story work for automobile stealing and selected a car belonging to Representative Edward C. Eicher. He was caught driving the stolen car.

Detective Sergts. Eugene Lambert and Norman Hokdinson, accompanied the youth—who is 18—in his tour of residential sections.

Powerfully built and more than 6 feet in height, the youth invariably entered a house by climbing up the sides, by gripping his fingers in small crevices between bricks or clambering up gutter pipes.

Questioned about the man arrested in New Orleans several months ago as the "rose bandit," police here denied that they suspected the man in connection with the rose burglaries. Addresses of the robberies blamed on the man arrested in New Orleans did not correspond to places where roses were dropped by the bandit, detectives here pointed out.

It is believed the burglar first dropped a rose from his lapel accidentally while in the act of robbing a house, and decided to continue dropping roses when he received newspaper publicity. The mysterious flowers first appeared last April.

Two other prisoners admitted more than 50 robberies, causing headquarters to believe last night that the District's recent crime wave was broken by the three arrests.

Schultz Aide Grins, Denies Killing Boss

Weinberg Replies Coolly to Stryker's Blunt Questioning.

Hines Defense Fails to Shake Testimony of Stable Keeper.

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Aug. 26.—The second week of the trial of James J. Hines, veteran Tammany leader charged with conspiring to give protection against police and courts to Dutch Schultz's Harlem policy racket closed today, with two key witnesses for the prosecution in the main unshaken. The two were George Weinberg, one of Schultz's principal lieutenants in crime, and Dudley Brothwell, proprietor of a riding academy in Fairfield, Conn., who on Thursday identified Hines as Schultz's guest at stables one Sunday in August, 1935.

Weinberg, who had testified to visiting Hines in his home, at 444 Central Park West in 1932 and 1933, was hazy in memory once more as court adjourned, with Lloyd Paul Stryker, chief counsel for the defense, declaring there was no step downward from the foyer of the Hines apartment at that address to the living room, and the gangster reiterating that to the best of his recollection there was. He had visited the place from 10 to 20 times, he said, but he could not be sure.

Denies Killing Schultz.

Before the confessed gunman ended some four days of testimony and stepped from the stand to await sentence on his plea of guilty to the indictment as a co-defendant, accepting whatever "consideration" may be given to him for testifying, Stryker asked him point-blank if he killed Dutch Schultz. He grinned and said he did not. He denied also again and again the questions of Stryker insinuating that he, J. Richard "Dixie" Davis, counsel to the Schultz mob, and "Big Harry" Schoenhaus, another of Schultz's gangsters, had framed the case against Hines, hoping thereby to minimize penalties to be accorded them.

As he vanished into the witness room, his four-day story that he paid Hines for Schultz on numerous occasions; that Hines "fixed" cases for them in the courts of two magistrates; that Hines acted as the gang's adviser in opening up Harlem headquarters at 351 Lenox avenue, and collected more than $30,000 from them to elect William C. Dodge district attorney in 1933, was all in the record with very little contradiction.

All this morning Stryker labored to discredit the story of Brothwell that Schultz and Hines were together at his riding academy in Fairfield, Conn., and succeeded

Coastwise Liner Rescues 3 From Blazing Vessel

Scituate, Mass., Aug. 26 (AP).—The Eastern Steamship liner New York tonight rescued a crew of three from the blazing 65-foot schooner yacht Liria, of Gloucester, 6 miles off this town, which is 20 miles from Boston on the Massachusetts south shore.

Radio reports from the New York to Coast Guard headquarters at Boston indicated there were no fatalities or injuries. The liner, bound from Boston to New York, advised she would put the crew ashore at the Cape Cod Canal.

A lookout at the Scituate Coast Guard station, who first reported the fire, said the vessel burst into flames suddenly while he was checking offshore shipping.

Lone German Sails Ocean in Tiny Boat

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Unheralded and alone, Heinrich Garbers, 29, of Hamburg, Germany, arrived today in this country aboard a home-built 30-foot yawl, hungary for a steak and chinning a 38-day growth of red stubble.

Garbers, who left Hamburg May 22, put in at Horta, the Azores, July 6, remaining there five days he again set sail, running into heavy storms, which tossed his tiny craft.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 26 (AP).—Roman candles and skyrockets zipped through trees in the Depew residential section today as sleepy householders declared "war" on thousands of Starlings, Purple Martins and Robins.

U.S. Subsidy For Wheat to Start at Once

Plan to Sell Surplus to Other Lands Swings Into Operation.

Railroads to Fight Rate Cut on Cereals; Poor to Get Bread.

With State Department objections removed, the Government yesterday moved to put into operation the first phase of wheat export subsidy operations designed to take 100,000,000 bushels off the domestic market and sell it abroad.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace announced the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation would immediately start buying wheat for relief and export. Other details of the subsidy plan were undisclosed, as Wallace left for Montreal to discuss his objectives in a speech there today.

Negotiations already are underway with Canada, which previously promulgated a subsidized export program, for co-operation of the two countries in unloading at least part of their wheat surplus abroad.

Traders Unaware.

Stoppage of the present downward trend in wheat prices was expected to be the first and desired effect of Federal Surplus Commodity Corporation purchases, although Wallace declined to say how much wheat will be purchased. Cost is expected to be borne from about $75,000,000 remaining in the $143,000,000 customs receipts fund, after adjustment payments are made to cotton growers.

News of the order reached the Chicago wheat pit after business had closed for the day after a quiet session, with traders cautious. Apparently no advance leak on the development affected yesterday's market.

Apparently the plan contemplates Government purchases of wheat at domestic prices (now averaging about 11 cents a bushel above Liverpool in the Midwest), and selling it competively in foreign markets for whatever price it will bring. Loss to the Government would result in the difference between the domestic price paid and the foreign price received.

Second Largest Crop Ever.

With this year's wheat crop the second largest on record, and a 400,000,000-bushel carry-over threatening next year, prices have dropped steadily lower, and Wallace and the Government felt justified in taking emergency steps.

He indicated Wednesday that initial objections at the State Department, which had feared interference with reciprocal trade progress, had been overcome and the two departments were in harmony. Wallace agreed that any long-time subsidized export program would

Mother of 11 Lost 33 Days Found 2 Miles From Home

Shell Lake, Wis., Aug. 26 (AP).—Badly scratched and emaciated with hunger, Mrs. Barbara Graf, 54, was found by chance today less than two miles from the farm home near which she lost her way in the desolate northwoods country 33 days ago.

"Very weak" from hunger and exposure, Mrs. Graf, mother of 11 children, mumbled to her family and neighbors, the story of hardships she suffered in her frantic efforts to find her way back home.

Missing since July 25 when she left her home 10 miles north of here to get groceries, the woman had been given up as dead by searching parties two weeks ago.

Thug Tells Victim He Might Reform

A young and shabbily dressed bandit last night said he "might get out of this racket pretty soon" as he left the automobile of Dr. Foster Sheller, 3051 Idaho avenue northwest, after robbing the dentist of $4.

Dr. Sheller told police the man jumped into his car when he was stopped by a traffic signal on Massachusetts avenue northwest and, showing a revolver, directed him through Rock Creek Park to the Harvard street exit.

Having emptied Dr. Sheller's wallet, the bandit ordered him from the car, saying he would drive it to the top of Harvard street and park it there. The owner of the machine protested, however, that he didn't want to walk uphill and insisted he would "play fair." The bandit put away his gun and continued as a passenger as far as Sixteenth street and Columbia road northwest.

Cotton Firms Rebuked For Firing Boys, 16-18

Wage Law Does Not Ban Employment, Says Miss Lenroot.

Wholesale discharge of hundreds of North Carolina cotton textile workers between the ages of 16 and 18, on the pretext that the new wage-hour law requires they be fired, was hotly attacked in Washington yesterday by Katherine Lenroot, chief of the Labor Department's Children's Bureau.

Miss Lenroot, administrator of the child labor provisions of the new law, declared there is "no legal basis" for the discharge notices which were posted throughout Gaston County, the Nation's largest producer of combed cotton yarns.

Carolina youths within the age boundary, notified they were to be laid off September 23, speculated vainly on what they will do until they age sufficiently to qualify legally for jobs they already have been doing.

Within the Law.

Miss Lenroot said no employer need fear he was violating the law by employing persons within those ages. She said:

"It has been brought to my attention that notices are being posted in cotton textile mills in Gaston County, N. C., and other Southern communities to the effect that because of the new Federal fair labor standards act boys and girls from 16 to 18 years of age will have to give up their jobs.

"There is no legal basis whatever

Smith, Again NLRB Choice, Facing Fight

Roosevelt Reappoints Him Despite Opposition of Green, Employers.

By Sidney Olson.

In the face of vigorous criticism of Donald Wakefield Smith, member of the National Labor Relations Board, from numerous big corporation executives, and the American Federation of Labor, President Roosevelt yesterday re-appointed the 39-year-old former steelworker for a five-year term.

Without comment, the President made the appointment from his Hyde Park Summer White House. In Washington Smith at once issued a statement expressing gratitude for the President's "continued confidence" and reiterating his "deepest conviction" in the ability of the agency "to achieve permanent industrial peace."

Smith, demanding that the national labor relations act should "be respected," took note of criticism of the board's administration, saying: "Such criticism is primarily the result of factional differences and cannot be supported by the record which proves that the act has been administered with strict impartiality."

He Faces Fight.

Immediate repercussions were expected from members of Congress unfriendly to both Smith and the board, and a stiff fight against his confirmation by the Senate next January was almost a certainty.

Even as Smith's appointment was announced, an issue of the News, the organ of the Committee for Industrial Organization, pledged editorily the C. I. O.'s support in defense of the Wagner act "not only against the frontal attacks of tory employers, but also against all flank maneuvers to cripple it by amendments."

Unmistakably the editorial reported the position of John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, against changes in the Wagner act, significantly only four days after President Roosevelt told a press conference that he was in accord with William Green, president of the A. F. of L., on the necessity for con-

Union of WPA Told to Drop Primary Plan

Sheppard Warns Workers' Alliance Against $50,000 Fund Program.

By Robert C. Albright.

Chairman Sheppard, of the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, last night sharply warned the Workers Alliance to abandon plans to enter political campaigns with funds from WPA workers.

Should the alliance proceed to collect campaign money from Federal employes, Sheppard said he would ask his committee to turn the case over to the Justice Department.

David Lasser, president of the relief worker group, said he will examine Sheppard's warning before deciding to procede or discontinue his plan to raise $50,000 "to be used to explain the issues in the campaign."

"I think it creates a ridiculous situation if I have to speak at meeting without expressing any preference for candidates," Lasser told reporters.

Sheppard first called Lasser directly on the telephone to "warn" him, then followed this up with a letter supplying legal citations when Lasser requested proof that his proposals violated the law.

Sheppard's independent action as chairman of the committee followed the following statement by President Roosevelt at Hyde Park:

"I very much hope that the people on relief will not contribute any money for the purpose of aiding any party."

Supports Hopkins.

The President indicated his support of Works Program Administrator Harry Hopkins' position against collection of campaign funds from relief workers.

In Washington, Lasser argued that Hopkins said such collections were legal, though he advised against them. In his statement, Lasser said it was "not primarily a legal question."

"It is a feverish attempt on the part of the conservative press to prevent the unemployed and WPA workers from expressing themselves politically," Lasser said.

"While the Georges, the Smiths, the Tydings are permitted to raise huge funds from their political

Hazen Accepts Safety Stickers For Municipal Truck Drivers

By Howard F. Wentworth.

With 5,000 safety emblems of The Washington Post-Junior Board of Commerce accident prevention institute ready for distribution, Commissioner Hazen officially launched the permanent program yesterday by accepting windshield stickers for all District Government trucks.

Pledging municipal employes to support a continuing highway safety program, Hazen indorsed The Post-Junior Board movement and urged "every business concern in Washington" to display the new emblem on their trucks.

Although present plans call for enlisting only light and heavy delivery trucks under The Post-Junior Board banner, Hazen suggested the program should become city-wide to include all types of vehicles and drivers.

"It is a fine plan," said Hazen, "and I think it should spread throughout the city. Every motorist in town should recognize his responsibility in current safety efforts—and should be willing to do his share in keeping alive the splendid safety drive now under way."

The new emblem, to be distributed to present and future members of The Post-Junior Board movement, is to be affixed to the inside of windshields directly in front of the driver.

Small so as not to obstruct the driver's vision, the new sticker has a set of five printed safety rules on the reverse side—a constant reminder to drive safely. The rules read:

1. Watch out for children.
2. Always signal your intentions.

Lewis Reiterates WPA Use Attack

Says Incumbent 'Voted Against Bread and Demanded Cake.'

The Political Day.

President Roosevelt indicated Postmaster General Farley's backing his Congressional "purge" with the declaration the two are "in complete agreement, as usual," ending talk of a rift in the Democratic command.

A new "lift" for Senator McAdoo was seen in a Presidential attack on a $30-per-week old-age pension plan advocated by one of the Senator's chief opponents in California.

G. O. P. national chiefs and leaders from 11 States made roseate predictions of Congressional gains as they met at Washington, Ind., for a $25,000 "cornfield conference."

Farley in 'Agreement.'

Senator Tydings, No. 1 target in the Administration's "purge," ran into hecklers in historic Frederick, Md., last night. But the "boos" were thoroughly smothered by cheers as he lashed out at the President's efforts to "dictate" Maryland's Senatorial primary.

Earlier last night Representative Lewis returned with new vigor to charges that his opponent, while voting against relief appropriations, shared personally in benefits from emergency legislation. Lewis spoke over the radio from Baltimore.

Other Developments.

Other developments in the bitterly contested campaign were:

Public indorsement of Lewis by two high Federal officials in Maryland, Gilbert A. Dailey, collector of customs, and M. Hampton Magruder, collector of internal revenue.

An all-day conference between President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Farley at Hyde Park, N. Y., at which the party chiefs were understood to have discussed the New Deal plan of attack on the blacklisted Senator Tydings.

Hurricane Swirls Over Gulf, Headed For Texas Coast

New Orleans, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—A tropical hurricane swept into the Gulf of Mexico tonight, curving toward the west on a course that might rake the lower Texas coast with vicious winds by Saturday afternoon.

In the Weather Bureau's 2 p. m. (3 p. m. E. S. T.) advisory, the hurricane center was 100 miles west-northwest of Progreso, Yucatan, and about 440 miles almost due east of Tampico, Mexico.

The course had changed from northwest to west-northwest, and the storm swirled forward 14 to 16 miles an hour.

"Storm is severe, with hurricane winds near center and gales over considerable area," the advisory said.

Mexico City, Aug 26 (AP).—The Weather Bureau reported a Caribbean hurricane passed near the southeastern coast of Mexico today and headed westward across the Bay of Campeche toward the lower central Mexican coast.

License Loss Faces 3,000 Taxi Drivers

Only 1,325 D. C. Operators Have Filed Insurance Papers.

Commission Expecting Last-Minute Rush for Permits Today.

More than 3,000 Washington taxicab operators may lose their licenses tomorrow for failure to file certificates of insurance with the Public Utilities Commission.

Only 1,325 operators had complied with the regulation yesterday.

Harry Davis, president of the Independent Taxi Owners Association, yesterday deposited a check for $75,000 with District Tax Collector Chatham Towers, for payment of any judgments against owners of Diamond Cabs.

The Diamond Co. operates approximately 1,200 cabs in the city. The $75,000 sinking fund, however, covers about 2,500 operators of these cabs.

Commission officials prepared to meet a last-minute rush today. The office is closed on Sunday.

Beside the Diamond cab members, approximately 125 drivers have filed certificates.

Last week the District Commissioners ordered license plates impounded of all taxicabs, whose operators had not obtained the insurance.

Insurance Superintendent J. Balch Moor announced yesterday he would investigate rumors that efforts "had been made to sell protection to operators by offering them privileges on the side that have nothing to do with insurance, such as free painting of cabs and defense against protection for traffic violations."

He warned all taxicab drivers that "mutual insurance companies must deposit 75 per cent of income from premiums in a sinking fund, use not to exceed 15 per cent for administration and hold the other 10 per cent for special purposes to be returned to policy holders if not used."

Cracks in Plaster Should Be Mended

Before painting a plastered wall which is cracked, the cracks must first be repaired. With a stiff brush or whisk broom brush out all loose plaster from the cracks and if the edges are crumbly, these should be trimmed away with a sharp tool. To anchor the patch, dovetail the crack. In other words, have the width of the crack at the opening smaller the the inner part. Mix plaster of Paris with cold water to a thick paste, adding a few drops of vinegar to prevent too rapid hardening and press this mixture into the cracks with a knife.

Level off and trowel to a smooth surface. Mix the plaster of Paris in small quanities at a time as it salidifies very quickly. The plaster surrounding the cracks should be well moistened with water before the filler is applied.

Probers Finish Berry Part in TVA Inquiry

Investigation of Land Sale Next to Be Taken Up by Committee.

By the Associated Press.

Knoxville, Tenn., Aug. 26.—The Congressional TBA investigating committee all but completed its inquiry in the marble claims of Senator Berry today—claims which he was quoted as saying were worth "millions," but which a condemnation commission found commercially valueless.

Dr. Harcourt A. Morgan, codirector of TVA, was recalled to the stand for questioning as to details, and cross-examination by Representative Wolverton (Republican), New Jersey, minority member of the committee. The latter dwelt upon the fact that the claims were first branded as "worthless" by the TVA's chief geologist in the spring of 1934, but the matter was not finally disposed of by a condemnation commission until three years later, after the election of 1936.

The next important phase of the inquiry, it was indicated, will involve a report of the U. S. Comptroller General's office concerning purchase by TVA of 570 acres of phosphate rock land for $680,000, giving the International Agricultural Corporation of New York a profit of $530,000.

Senator Donahey (Democrat), of Ohio, committee chairman, said this report was ready for consideration. TVA counsel asked that the authority be given an opportunity to examine the report and answer any parts of it where necessary before it is "publicized," but Representative Jenkins (Republican), of Ohio, objected:

"If this audit is given to the TVA before we get it, we might as well close up and go home."

The committee's hearings were resumed here today, after three days of testimony at Chattanooga regarding efforts of power companies to block the public distribution system project in that city.

Family, Poor Share Estate of G. D. Horning

George D. Horning, sr., head of a brokerage office in South Washington, Va., and well known here for his philanthropical activities, left an estate of $565,000, it was shown yesterday in District Court when Justice F. Dickinson Letts signed an order admitting his will to probate.

Mr. Horning left the home at 3319 Sixteenth street northwest, which had an assessed valuation of about $15,000; personal property of which shares in the George D. Horning Co., valued at $450,000 were included, and insurance worth $100,000.

Each of the three children and his widow are to receive annuities of $4,000 from trust funds, and unnamed Washington charities, to which Mr. Horning had contributed, were given the right to receive the income from a $100,000 trust fund.

Mrs. Marie Isabel Horning, of 3319 Sixteenth street northwest, the widow; George D. Horning, jr., James B. Horning and a daughter, Marie Isabel Hickey, were named family members.

George D. Horning, jr., and the Lincoln National Bank were named trustees and were delegated to select the charities to receive the income from the trust fund.

Offered at 103½, the bonds advanced to 105 bid, 105½ asked.

Milk Sales Drop Under Year Ago

New York, Aug. 26.—Daily average sales of fluid milk during July decreased 8.63 per cent from July, 1937, according to reports from 136 leading markets to the Milk Industry Foundation. July daily average sales totaled 5,992,069 quarts compared with 6,558,016 quarts in July, 1937.

Milk company pay rolls in July showed a decrease of 4.65 per cent and employment decreased 5.99 per cent compared with July, 1937.

Throngs Hear Tydings Speak In Frederick

Tydings

President Roosevelt into the State to speak in behalf of Lewis.

An invitation from Lewis to the President to inspect three bridge sites in Maryland, accompanied by a news release from the Reprseentative's campaign headquarters referring to the President's "impending visit to Maryland."

Lewis Fans Thrown Out.

In Frederick heckling started a moment after Tydings walked to the stage in the Frederick operahouse. Two supporters of Representative Lewis were present and one was finally thrown out of the operahouse. "Boo," they yelled as Tydings started.

"If there are any dairymen in the audience," Tydings said, "there are a couple of cows here that want to be milked."

The crowd like that, and roared. Angry, one of the hecklers gave Tydings the bird again. "If you'll meet me outside," said Tydings, smiling, "I think we can settle this thing."

There was no more disorder then until Tydings reached his peroration, a smashing attack on the New Deal "invasion" of Maryland.

Tydings said that Lewis, finding that his campaign wasn't going so well, called fir help. Then, said, Tydings, the Administration moved into Maryland using the "power of the greatest man on earth to coerce and intimidate the voters."

"I'm Not Afraid."

"I'm not afraid," Tydings said, "but remember you can too lose this election. It will be a dictated election.

"The Senator from the Free State is responsible to no one but the people of Maryland. He is not a tool of the President.

"I don't see how any man who calls himself a Democrat can feel otherwise. Here is a situation where Marylanders are told they must elect a Senator in response to orders, and where the Administration brings in a vast horde to dictate that election.

"Am I talking sense?"

"No," yelled one of the hecklers in front.

This was too much for Dave Fagan, a candidate for sheriff of Frederick County. He grabbed the heckler by his coat collar and dragged him through a side door to the street. The crowd applauded.

In his radio address last night Lewis said his opponent for the Maryland senatorial nomination "has never denied that he got a Government loan on his town house, a Government loan on his steers, a WPA road built to his country house and wanted a yacht channel built between his town house and his country mansion . . ."

Bread vs. Cake.

"Can a Senator vote against bread for others, but demand cake for himself?" asked the 69-year-old Representative.

Meanwhile indications that the full force of New Deal patronage power will be brought to bear on tht Maryland situation were seen in the two indorsements for Lewis.

Magruder, collector of internal revenue and Democratic chief in Prince Georges County, called noncivil service employes of his bureau into his office and announced his support for Lewis.

"I feel I have a right to tell you you how I will vote," he said, adding that "none of you will be obliged to do the same." One meployе, however, remarked later, "That was our warning."

Simultaneously Collector of Customs Gilbert A. Dailey, prominent party leader in Baltimore, declared that "loyalty to the President transcends other considerations." Full accord between the President and Senator Tydings existed in 1933 when he was appointed customs collector, Dailey said, but "as time went on" Tydings' attitude "progressively changed."

"Still in Accord."

"I have been from the very beginning, am now, and expect to continue to be in accord with the policies of the administration," he stated. ailey's tenure of office has already expired, and continuation of his job rests with the Federal Administration. Both ailey and Magruder are understood to have received their original appointments with Tydings' approval.

Responses to telegrams sent by the executive committee of the Baltimore Chapter of the University of Maryland Alumni Association to 100 alumni leaders indicated, according to E. F. Zalesak, past president of the association, strong resentment against Dr. Harry C. Byrd's action in inviting President Roosevelt into Maryland to speak against Tydings.

The message sent out Thursday night by alumni meeting in Senator Tydings' suite at the Lord Baltimore Hotel, in Baltimore, had declared, "We believe the great service Tydings has rendered the university, the State and the Nation make it a matter of loyalty to support him."

More than 6,000 of the alumni association's 10,000 members are understood to be Maryland voters.

Lewis last night quoted the Baltimore Sun, strongly pro-Tydings in the present campaign, which described as "legislative sharp practice" Tydings' maneuver in tacking his price-fixing measure onto the District tax bill.

The Senator's law firm, he contended, received large fees from the National Association of Retail Druggists for its assistance in lobbying for State price-fixing bills, necessary before the Federal legislation could take effect. He asked whether the Senator has worked in Washington "for the people of Maryland, for the farmer and the housewife who must buy under this price-fixing bill" or "for his own law firm?"

"Last Sunday," Lewis said, "Mr. Tydings lost his gentility to the point of describing me as the 'personal property' of the President. If I am anyone's property I shall be as I have in the past, only the property of the people of Maryland. I shall not be the personal property of getrich quick business or of my personal law firm."

Senator Tydings labor record was termed "very unsatisfactory" in a statement issued yesterday by Charles W. Mitzel, Maryland representative of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

"Reaffirming our indorsement" of Lewis, Mitzel warned the public against "various kinds of publicity," which, he said, had been released to give the impression the brotherhood was supporting Tydings.

backers, concerted attempt is being made to prevent our organization from speaking the voice of the unemployed and WPA workers in this campaign."

It was the second time the Workers Alliance had been involved in an incident questioned by the Senate committee. Several weeks ago, the committee rebuked Deputy Works Progress Administrator Aubrey Williams after he told a delegation headed by Lasser to work "to keep our friends in power."

Sheppard Thursday informed reporters he thought Lasser was guilty of "conniving to violate the law," if he proceeded with collections. After an overnight study of the criminal code, Sheppard said he is convinced Lasser's action would directly violate the law.

He quoted Section 211 of Title 18 of the Criminal Code as prohibiting collections from Government employes by officials or members of Congress for "any political objective whatsoever."

Though Lasser is not a Government employe, Sheppard said he would come within Section 332 of Title 18 if he "aids, abets, counsels, commands, induces, or procures" collections.

"Aiding and Abetting."

"Under your plan, therefore," Sheppard wrote Lasser, "when you collect from a Federal employe funds which you use for or against a Senator or member or delegate to Congress or resident commissioner, or for or against any political object whatever, you are, in my judgment, aiding and abetting such employe in a violation," Sheppard said.

"Personally, I warn you, therefore, not to carry out this proposed plan. The committee itself has not yet passed upon this matter or upon my opinion regarding it. I shall submit both either at the special meeting tomorrow, or at the next regular meeting, which is to be held soon after Labor Day. If you proceed with this plan, and if the committee should agree with my interpretation of the law, it is my intention to request the committee to refer the matter to the Justice Department."

The Workers Alliance first had indicated it would raise $50,000 and direct initial efforts at defeating Representative O'Connor, of New York, marked for elimination in the President's "purge." Later it explained it would be a "national fund" and used for activity in other campaigns.

Not for Party.

"If can be conclusively shown that we would be violating the law by raising a fund to be used to explain the issues in the campaign, we would cease such activities," Lasser said last night.

"We have made it perfectly clear that not one penny of this money that we raise will be given to any political party or any candidate. If we are to be prevented from raising any money, and thereby paralyzed politically—why cannot any labor organization, any farm group or other progressive group be also paralyzed, because it may be charged that a part of their income is indirectly derived from WPA workers or other Government employes?"

Senator Sheppard left last night for Boston with a group of the committee's California investigators for a meeting today with Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, and White (Republican), of Maine, members of his group.

Investigators will report to the committee on their findings in California, where Senator McAdoo has been charged by his opponent, James W. Mellen, with assessing Federal officeholders 5 per cent of their salaries for his own campaign. Sheppard would not say what the investigation showed. He said the committee at today's meeting also may take up the Lasser case. Sheppard disclosed the committee's investigation of the Maryland primaries would open in the next few days.

Roosevelt Says He and Farley Agree on Purge

Statement Is Interpreted as Meaning He Will Go Into Maryland.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hyde Park, Aug. 26.—President Roosevelt moved today to dispel the idea that Postmaster General Farley was not in sympathy with the current "purge" of out-of-line Democrats in Congress.

At the same time he derided attempts to identify the New Deal with communism and condemned solicitation by the Workers' Alliance, a relief workers' organization reputedly under Communist domination of contributions from relief workers to a campaign fund to defeat Representative O'Connor, of New York, target of New Deal fire.

Attempts to identify the New Deal or the "purge" with communism, the President said, were on a par with accusing Shirley Temple of being a Communist.

"Agreement, As Usual."

At his press conference at the summer White House, the President was as reluctant as ever to reveal the next move in primary contests in which the New Deal issue has been raised, but he did say, again sanctioning direct quotation, "The Postmaster General and I are in complete agreement, as usual."

The President stressed the words "as usual," as if to imply there never had been any basis for the rather general impression that Farley disapproved of Presidential intervention in Democratic primaries on an extended front.

It seemed a fair assumption, since Farley himself said yesterday that he would urge the President to do so, that Mr. Roosevelt intended to sanction the inference that he would take the stump in Maryland against Senator Tydings. But he failed to make clear whether it was his own or Mr. Farley's reputed views with respect to intervention in other primary contests which formed the basis of their "complete agreement."

Farley Steals Away.

Farley, who usually makes himself accessible to newspaper correspondents, slipped out of Hyde Park on an early morning train, notwithstanding an announcement by the summer White House last night that he would be present when Mr. Roosevelt received the press today. Thus, there was no way of finding out whether Farley still was doubtful of the wisdom of injecting the issue of disloyalty to the New Deal in the primaries in South Carolina, Georgia and the Sixteenth Congressional District in New York.

Belief prevailed here, however, that the President, having publicly called for defeat of the two Southern Senators and Representative O'Connor, would not hesitate to apply further pressure. It was thought quite possible that he would return to South Carolina to indorse the New Deal candidate in the runoff primary—Gov. Olin D. Johnston or State Senator Edgar Brown, whoever comes out on top in the primary. There is the possibility, also, it was said, that he might intervene again in behalf of James H. Fay, New Deal opponent of Representative O'Connor, if need arises.

A request for comment on the recent speech of Earl Browder, head of the Communist Party, indorsing the New Deal and identifying the aims of communism with those of democracy prompted the President's derisive comparision of all attempts to tie communism to the New Deal with the linking of the child film actress with Communist propaganda.

The President's statement was construed to carry implied criticism of the activities of the Dies committee, before which the testimony concerning the inveigling of Hollywood stars to act as "stooges" for Communists was given. It also served as an answer to Senator George and Representative O'Connor, who have pictured themselves as victims of Communists, allegedly within the Administration, seeking to use the purge as a means of a driving wedge into the Democratic Party.

The Political Arena

By the United Press.

Dress rehearsals for the first test of the effectiveness of Presidential intervention in State Democratic primaries ended in South Carolina last night.

Senator Smith.

South Carolinians heard the final oratorical blasts of their three Democratic candidates for the United States Senatorial nomination. Tuesday they go to the poles to decide whether to retire anti-New Deal Senator Smith to private life in accordance with President Roosevelt's wishes, or send him back to Washington and thus deal a crushing blow to the President's prestige.

Whatever the outcome of the race, in which Smith is opposed by Gov. Olin Johnston, New Deal favoriate, and State Senator Edgar Brown, it is e xpected to be a fairly accurate gauge of what the President can anticipate in other States where he has asked for political extermination of conservative Democrats in his struggle for liberal control of the national party.

A joint national speakers' bureau, to continue in constant operation from now through the 1940 Presidential campaign, was set up yesterday by three Republican organizations, the National Committee and the senatorial and Congressional campaign committees.

Adolph K. Barta, Washington attorney, native of Iowa, was placed in charge of the bureau, with offices in the National Press Building. Barta was active in the temporary Republican speakers' bureaus set up in each of the last three national campaigns.

Charles K. Schwartz, Chicago manager of the Illinois Democratic primary ticket headed by Gov. Henry Horner, informed the Senate Expenditures Committee yesterday no funds were spent by his group solely to aid the senatorial candidacy of Representative Lucas.

Lucas, who ran on the Horner ticket and won the Democratic senatorial nomination, reported contributing $2,700 to the Horner ticket's Chicago campaign. The committee had asked Schwartz for an itemized list of expenditures and contributions in behalf of Lucas.

San Francisco, Aug. 26 (AP).—Opponents of Senator McAdoo in California said the President's attack yesterday on $30-per-week pensions represented more White House aid for the 74-year-old Senator, in view of the fact that the pension plan had been indorsed by Sheridan Downey, generally regarded as McAdoo's most fohmidable opponent.

Herbert Smith, Downey campaign manager, said "the President could not have evolved in his own mind in a few short hours any statement fully evauating the pension plan. The statement must have come from a panicky feeling in the McAdoo camp."

A petition to put the plan on the State ballot in November had 789,104 signers on July 18 and the number reputedly has grown to 1,000,000.

New York, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Allen W. Dulles, "regular" Republican candidate for Congress in New York's hotly contested Sixteenth District, in a radio broadcast tonight, warned voters that the "purge" by President Roosevelt of Representative O'Connor does not qualify the incumbent Representative to become the Republican standard-bearer.

"If this is to be the principle which is to guide the Republican Party in the selection of its candidates, the party will have surrendered its own freedom of judgment, and by making the Republican Party a refuge for a Tammany politician he will have taken a long step toward abdicating any claim to be an independent influence in this country," Dulles said.

O'Connor is seeking both Republican and Democratic support.

Greensburg, Pa., Aug. 26 (AP).—Senator Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, was pledged today to aid his party in removing "politics" from the bituminous coal commission.

The Senator, addressing an 11-county rally in the heart of Pennsylvania's bituminous fields, said:

"When our party comes back into power I shall do everything in my power to take politics out of the administration of the coal industry and to continue the stabilization of prices that will protect the wage scale of miners, save operators from unethical cut-throat competition and give the consumer a chance."

Davis is a candidate for re-election.

for such action. The fair labor standards act which will become effective October 24, does not prohibit the employment of persons between 16 and 18 years of age. It does authorize the chief of the Children's Bureau to find and by order declare that an occupation is particularly hazardous for the employment of children between such ages, or detrimental to their health, or well being."

Investigation First.

"Such an order would have the effect of making it illegal for establishments employing persons of such ages in such hazardous occupations to ship goods in interstate commerce.

"No such orders have been issued. Furthermore, no such orders will be issued except after careful investigation and consideration. Full notice of such orders will be given with ample time for readjustments in the industries concerned before they become effective. In the meantime, no employer need have any fear whatever that he is violating the Federal act by reason of the continuance of the employment of young persons 16 to 18 years of age."

"Hate to See Them Go."

The youths to be discharged, according to an Associated Press dispatch, are above the maximum school age fixed by State law and already are turning to other fields for employment. One plant foreman said:

"I hate to see them go but there is nothing I can do about it. I don't know what they will do. In many cases I know, these youngsters are the sole support of their families. We have ten men applying for every open job."

The Southern Combed Yarn Spinners Association, with headquarters at Gastonia, N. C., has 100 per cent of combed yarn mills in its membership. The association's organ told its members yesterday:

"This is not a drastic upheaval as it is found that there are actually only a few minors employed and although it is hard on the minor to lose his job under this ruling, the manufacturer must, in an act of self-protection, take this step before September 23 unless, of course, in the meantime the cotton textile industry is declared not to be a hazardous calling."

Got Legal Advice.

Certain attorneys had advised the association, it was believed here, that the law's language implies manufacturing and mining are hazardous occupations. No such regulations actually have been issued.

Meanwhile, a North Carolinian, A. L. Fletcher, of Raleigh, State labor commissioner, said he would announce today whether he would accept appointment as assistant administrator of the wage-hour law. He conferred Thursday here with Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer F. Andrews.

Meeting on Reforms Set.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 26 (AP).—Representatives from 13 Southern States will map a program for obtaining reforms to cure the region's social, economic and political ills at a meeting here in November.

Organized as the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the group will include more than 1,000 outstanding Southerners. Mrs. Louise O. Charlton United States Commissioner at Birmingham, will serve as temporary chairman.

"The conference will be the South's answer to the challenge contained in the National Emergency Council's report," Mrs. Charlton said. "It will be the first great Southwide movement to focus attention on ways and means of improving Southern economic and social conditions to remedy the evils outlined in the report."

States which will be represented at the meeting, Mrs. Charlton said, are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma.

Among members of a committee which has summoned the conference are Dr. Frank Graham, president, University of North Carolina; Virginius Dabney, the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch; George Fort Milton, the Chattanooga News; Clarence Poe, the Progressive Farmer, Raleigh, N. C.; William E. Dodd, Round Hill, Va., former Ambassador to Germany; Dr. Dabney Lancaster, Sweet Briar, Va., former dean of men at University of Alabama.

Dubinsky Asks Lewis to Help Reunite Labor

Visit on Advice of A. F. L. Chief Apparently Has No Success.

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 26.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, disclosed tonight that new, but apparently unsuccessful efforts, were being made to reopen peace negotiations between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O.

After a meeting of the federation's executive council today, Green told newspaper reporters a committee from the International Ladies Garment Workers Union in New York sought him out privately a few days ago and asked for his suggestions on how the peace negotiations, broken off last December, could be renewed.

"I told them it was very difficult to answer that question," Green said, "and suggested they go to Washington and meet the C. I. O. and see what statements they might make."

Dubinsky Sees Lewis.

David Dubinsky, president of the I. L. G. W. U., later conferred with C. I. O. Chairman John L. Lewis in the Capital, but there was no sign he had received any encouragement for a fresh start on negotiations to reunite Lewis with the A. F. of L.

Besides discussing labor peace, Green said the executive council today received without comment or action the news, that President Roosevelt had reappointed Donald Wakefield Smith to the Labor Relations board over protest of the A. F. of L.

Sea Union Planned.

The council also considered proposals for changes in the social security act and plans for establishment of an A. F. of L. international union in the maritime field.

The council did not disclose suggested social security act changes or do anything about efforts of the I. L. G. W. U. committee to stir up interest in renewing peace conversations.

The A. F. of L. chief indicated, however, that the federation expected the C. I. O. to make the next move.

U. A. W. Peace Sought.

By the Associated Press.

An editorial for the C. I. O.'s newspaper urged warring factions in the United Automobile Workers Union last night to end a threat against the "whole Committee for Industrial Organization," by accepting Chairman John L. Lewis' peace proposals.

Lewis, after a two-day conference with President Homer Martin, and five U. A. W. officials ousted as a result of dissension in the union, suggested reinstatement of the five and a truce until the union holds its annual convention next August.

$60,000,000 Spent On New Auto Models

Detroit, Aug. 26 (AP).—Ward's Automotive Reports in its weekly survey of the motorcar industry said today that it estimated $80,000,000 had been spent to retool factories for 1939 model production. This was in addition, it said, to commitments for "hundreds of millions" worth of materials during the coming months.

This week's assemblies were estimated at 18,700 units, compared with 23,940 last week and 83,310 this week a year ago.

Group Pledges Tax-Rate Cut In Montgomery

United Democrats Promise to Reduce Levy to $1.

A pledge to reduce the present Montgomery County tax rate of $1.50 per $100 is among the planks in the 1938 platform of the United Democratic Organization made public yesterday by Robert Peter, chairman of the organization and its candidate for State Senator.

The platform promises to seek immediate reassessment of all county property and to improve county roads, erect new schools and develop recreational centers.

These planks and a number of others coincide with planks contained in the Independent Democratic platform released Monday. The organization platform, however, makes no criticism of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. An investigation of the commission, with a view toward obtaining a reduction in water rates, was demanded in the independent Democratic platform.

Organization planks, which roughly parallel the independent platform, include pledges to maintain and improve transportation facilities, employ county residents on county jobs, create a constitutional system of police justices to replace the present justice of the peace system, provide adequate police protection, including establishment of a State police substation in the county and establishment of a pension system for county police.

The platform, after declaring that "practically all of the public improvements enjoyed by our people were built by Democratic county and State administrations," sharply assails Republican-Fusion administrations that have controlled the county since the 1934 election.

Denounced in the platform are the increase in the county tax rate from 90 cents to $1.50, which was voted by the Fusion administration in 1935 and which still prevails; issuance of $1,035,669 in new county bonds since 1934, and the extension of $1,103,500 county bonds during the same period while $296,500 were retired.

"During the past four-year period of Republican-Fusion responsibility," the platform reads, "Montgomery County schools and roads have for the first time in 20 years lacked adequate maintenance and improvement and the Republican management of Montgomery County has given to citizens nothing to justify collection of an additional $3,200,000 through direct taxation."

Speaking as chairman of the organization, Peter declared:

"The United Democrats are the only political group that, during the past quarter of a century, has been able to co-operate and co-ordinate all of the instrumentalities of local government available to the service of the people of Montgomery County to produce wise development and efficient and economical services in local government for our citizens."

To Back Cantrel.

The Independent Democratic faction of Montgomery County yesterday announced it would back Joseph A. Cantrel, of Bethesda, in the primary race for Representative from the Sixth District.

In indorsing Cantrel, the independents split openly again with organization Democrats, who are supporting State Senator William D. Byron, of Williamsport.

It marked the second time in three days that the independent Democrats have voted indorsement of statewide candidates. Early this week, the independents announced they would support Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor for Governor.

The organization Democrats have indorsed Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Cantrel became a prominent figure in Montgomery County politics in 1934 when he was elected to the House of Delegates on the Fusion ticket.

Legion Teams to Play.

Members of Cissel-Saxon American Legion Post, of Silver Spring, will play the post's junior nine in a baseball game this afternoon on the Montgomery Blair High School field in Sligo valley Park.

The senior team boasts many members who made a name for themselves in sandlot baseball circles before and just after the World War and many of the men are fathers of boys playing on the junior team. The veterans will be assisted by Walter Johnson, former big league hurler, who will toss out the first ball, and by Joe Judge, Sam Rice, Jack Bentley and other former big leaguers who live in the county.

Dance Scheduled.

The United Young Men's Democratic Club of Montgomery County will hold a post-primary dance September 16, at the Manor Country Club, it was announced yesterday by Leonard Warner, chairman of the dance committee.

Assisting Mr. Warner on the committee are Alger Barbee, John C. Livingston, Gordon Stup, William W. Evans, Samuel Bogley, William Wootton, Clagett Jones, John B. Diamond 3d, Charles Jamison and Garner Duvall.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. BOX 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Falls Church 2088-M.

2 Women Hitch-Hikers Accuse Each Other in Farm Murder

By the Associated Press.

Fairfield, Ill., Aug. 26.—A country sheriff played two young hitch-hikers against each other in obtaining mutual accusations today of complicity in the slaying of Felix Shannon, 56, Mount Erie, Ill., farmer.

Sheriff Ernest Burkett said the women—tall, slender Jean Brooks, whose dyed red hair is fading to its natural brown, and blonde, buxom Beulah Honeycutt—blamed each other for the shots that killed Shannon as he lay nude in bed Sunday night.

The women, both of whom are married, left their Tennessee mountain homes several weeks ago to seek adventure on the road., Mrs. Brooks, 23, lives in Elizabethtown, Tenn., and Mrs. Honeycutt, 25, in Johnson City, Tenn.

Shannon's 8-year-old son, Carlyle, identified them as the hitch-hikers his father picked up Sunday morning and left at a tavern in Oakland City, Ind., while he took the boy to his mother's home in Somerville, Ind. The Shannons are divorced.

On his return trip, Burkett said, Shannon stopped for the women and brought them to his farm home.

"I was in another room," the sheriff quoted Mrs. Brooks as saying, "when I heard two shots. I went into the bedroom and there was Beulah. She handed me the gun and said: 'Here, you fire one so you can't squeal on me.' I closed my eyes and fired one shot—past his head into the pillow."

Mrs. Honeycutt, in turn, charged her companion fired the first, and fatal, shots, the sheriff reported. The farmer was slain with his own gun, which was found beside his automobile, abandoned in a ditch, a mile from his home.

The motive for the slaying was obscure, Burkett said, although he learned the women had been told Shannon was "good pickings and had a lot of money."

A man, whom Burkett claimed had given the women this information, was arrested at Princeton, Ind., and is being held for Illinois authorities.

was no longer able to assume responsibility for the liberty and property of party members because of recent attacks upon them by "Marxist terrorists" and therefore, it was compelled to rescind its previous order.

Henceforth, it was said, Sudeten Germans will be permitted to fight back and it will be left to their discretion as to how they defend themselves within legal limits.

Political Aim Charged.

The German-language radio broadcast warning the Sudetens was prefaced with the explanation that it came "with the fullest authority."

"The Sudeten German Party, whose representatives today visited Viscount Runciman (British neutral mediator in the minority crisis), are preparing to increase pressure on the Czechs by playing up minor incidents from the police chronicle in the foreign press," the broadcast said.

"The party leaders made it clear that they have both domestic and foreign political purposes in this activity. They informed party members in the proclamation that they are menaced by 'Marxist terrorists who are trying to prove themselves a political factor by the use of violence.'

"The party leadership is using this artificial but transparent construction as a pretext to withdraw previous instructions given by the party.

"No Authority."

"These words clearly show that Dr. Francz Koellner and Karl H. Frank, who signed the proclamation, assumed a role for which they possessed no authority.

"Should anyone misuse the proclamation as a motive to endanger peace and order they will meet with energetic police measures.

"We hereby point out to the citizens that the preparation of this proclamation was a violation of law. Order and peace of the republic will be secured through the responsible body, namely, the police."

The order was issued shortly after Germany was reported, in a Prague newspaper dispatch, to have told European powers that she will support the Sudetens "with all her resources" if there is prolonged delay in solving the minorities dispute.

(The German foreign office in Berlin officially denied any such representations had been made to foreign powers.)

British "Tone Down."

London, Aug. 26 (U.P.).—Great Britain's reluctance to provide German anger was revealed tonight to have resulted in a "toning down" of the foreign affairs speech which Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon will deliver tomorrow at Lanark, Scotland.

Now the Prague government has offered new concessions in dealing with its minorities and a decision for resumption of negotiations rests with the Nazi-supported Sudeten Germans, a forcefully worded speech was regarded as inadvisable.

Berlin Pessimistic.

Special Cable to The Post.

Berlin, Aug. 26.—On the eve of a statement to be made by Sir John Simon, for the British government, regarding the Sudeten German movement, the attitude of the German press was remarkable for its pessimism as well as for its aggressiveness. Nazi newspapers played prominently the Sudeten German leader's manifesto advocating self-defense under headline streamers such as "Patience of Sudeten Germans Is Exhausted."

In an apparently officially inspired editorial, the Hamburger Fremdenblatt said London ought to recognize that the moment has come for Runciman's own initiative and "to put pressure on Prague," to agree to the wishes of the "suppressed national groups."

Handclasp for Horthy.

Berlin, Aug. 26 (AP).—A five-minute handclasp by Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Hungarian Regent Admiral Nicholas Horthy today ended five days of intimate association of the two heads of state—five days of history-making for middle and southeastern Europe.

The regent and his entourage entrained for Karinhall, the estate of Field Marshal Goering. Their itinerary called for a journey tonight to Nurnberg before the return to Budapest.

The regent's visit, according to all circumstantial evidence available, has had six positive results:

Germany and Hungary now support each other in insistence upon autonomy for German and Hungarian minorities in Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia is to be isolated further by conclusion of nonaggression pacts between Hungary and Yugoslavia, and between Hungary and Rumania.

Hungary will endeavor especially to come to amicable terms with Germany's and Italy's common friend, Yugoslavia.

Economic relations between Germany and Hungary will be extended and intensified with the ultimate purpose of welding a strong economic bloc of Danubian states.

Hungary to all extens and purposes is an adjunct of the Berlin-Rome axis.

Germany, having given assurances of the inviolability of the German-Hungarian frontier after similar assurances to Italy and Switzerland, now considers her southern boundary one of the safest in the world.

Prague Worried.

Special Cable to The Post.

Prague, Aug. 26.—A high-strung Czechoslovakia, deadlocked in negotiations with its Sudeten German minority, reacted sensitively today to warnings of danger ahead.

A startled people, eyes on London, Paris, Moscow and Berlin, were told that Germany had warned the capitals of Europe that a satisfactory settlement of the minority problems must be found in the immediate future.

A worried government, in secret meetings yesterday and today, worked to figure out the maximum concessions they could make if the crisis became dangerous.

The feeling grew that the next two weeks would settle the country's fate. One government leader said the period of danger might begin next Thursday.

Commissioner Hazen Accepts First 'Drive Safely' Sticker

Harvest Worker Takes 'Chaw'

The great outdoors left its grimy stamp on the face of Paul Ertelt, a harvest worker from Oriska, N. Dak., thus "dusted" over by wheat being threshed in Northern fields. He takes a "chaw" of tobacco while awaiting a chance to wash up.

Stationary Tubs Have Many Uses

Stationary wash tubs can be made to work every day in the week by the installation of several handy adjuncts.

The wash tub can be enclosed on sides and at the bottom in a cabinet which will afford a storage space for little-used utensils, vases, and those patent kitchen appliances that the husband will bring home from time to time. A plain wooden top, which can be used for cutting, chopping, and preparing vegetables and meats, is also a worth-while addition.

Modern Hotel Sports Much Smaller Lobby

Hotel design has changed radically in the past several decades, particularly with reference to the size and arrangement of lobby space. Many of the older hotels featured spacious lounges, writing rooms and parlors.

The modern hostelry, unless it is strictly a resort hotel or inn, reduces the size of the lobby and utilizes the remainder of the ground-floor space for stores. In this way revenue is increased materially and nothing essential to the comfort of guests lost.

3. Drive in your own lane—don't weave.

4. Practice courtesy—give the other fellow a break.

5. Obey all traffic regulations.

On the oval-shaped face of the emblem are the words:

"Pledged to drive safely. Cooperating with The Washington Post and Junior Board of Commerce Safety Institute."

Holders of the stickers will be asked next month to attend sessions of the traffic safety institute sponsored by the Junior Board. A series of instructive and entertaining courses covering a ten-week period will be conducted.

Company officials who have joined the movement have agreed to send their drivers to one or more institute programs. Complete plans for the institute will be announced later.

Sponsoring a unique program to stimulate safety interest among children, George E. Muth, a dealer in artists' and draftsmen's supplies, announced yesterday he would offer a year's free tuition at a local art school to any youngster who designed the best safety poster in Washington.

Prepared to foster a contest for children under 14, Muth's plan calls for four separate types of posters—"Walk Safely," "Back to School Safely," "Play Safely" and "Drive Safely."

He has offered a year's tuition for Saturday afternoon art classes at a school to be named by the winner, and a number of cash awards for runners-up. Details of the contest, Muth said, will be completed next week.

Meanwhile, police and traffic officials met yesterday at the American Automobile Association to discuss future plans for improving enforcement methods under activities of the Commissioners' permanent traffic advisory committee.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, went on record as favoring a rigid program of pedestrian control. He said his department would be willing to enforce regulations against pedestrians if the walkers themselves, would agree to co-operate and share responsibility.

"And I believe such action would materially aid in reducing accidents and fatalities," said Maj. Brown.

He also issued an appeal to the city's clergymen to help authorities reach the adult class of potential accident victims.

Pointing out that 26 of the 61 persons killed this year on District streets were persons over 50, Brown urged the church to join current life-saving efforts by appealing directly from the pulpit.

Yesterday's meeting was attended by Washington I. Cleveland, A. A. A. manager; Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, assistant superintendent of police, and M. O. Eldridge, assistant director of traffic.

It also was announced yesterday that work of painting curbs to warn motorists of the 20-foot-from-building-line parking restriction will be started immediately.

Commissioner Hazen said the yellow markings had been abandoned and the curbs will be painted solid white.

Although District streets were free from serious mishaps yesterday, a Marylnad man was injured critically in nearby Prince Georges County.

Bruce Page, 32, of Edmonston, Md., was taken to Providence Hospital with serious back and chest injuries after his car plunged into a 20-foot ditch and struck a tree near the Beaver Dam Country Club. The crash occurred on the Landover-Largo road.

Wives Are Ready To Buy Plumbing

One of every ten housewives interviewed is ready to buy plumbing and heating equipment, a door to door survey by a trade paper has revealed. Housewives think the upswing is here, the survey discloses. To the question, "Do you think business this fall will be definitely better?" 75 per cent of those interviewed responded in the affirmative.

The majority of housewives told the interviewer htat they will buy when the upswing starts; nearly half plan to pay cash for their purchases, and half show an interest in a long or medium-term finance plan. Leading in housewife interest is kitchen modernization by the replacement of an old sink with a new cabinet model. The majority of housewives indicated a preference for white acid-resisting porcelain enamel. Many indicated a preference for ivory.

Modernization of the bathroom by the installation of new fixtures is contemplated by a large group while others interviewed stated that they were planning to add another bath or powder room. Ten per cent are interested in new heating systems. One family in 20 plans to install some type of air conditioning equipment.

NLRB Choice Faces Fight on Confirmation

sideration of amendments "clarifying" the act.

While the President stressed that no decisions had been reached, and that all factions would be consulted, the C. I. O. editorial stated bluntly:

"The Wagner act is under attack from all directions by the forces of reaction. All of labor and all progressives must rally to its defense, if the democratic rights which it embodies are to be preserved . . . The propaganda attack has been spread over the press of the country, broadcast over the air, taken up by reactionary politicians, and has generally assumed the proportions of a major campaign on the part of wealthy reaction.

"More real danger to the law comes from the support which these attacks are receiving from leaders of the A. F. L., who are so blinded by their hatred of the C. I. O. and their desire to obtain a partisan advantage, that they are playing into the hands of the enemies of all labor with demands for crippling amendments to the act."

Smith Cites Record.

Smith's statement noted that "During my two years with the board, it has conducted 1,345 secret ballot elections to determine collective bargaining representatives. It has settled or averted 1,725 strikes and has informally adjusted 6,185 labor disputes to the satisfaction of all parties.

"The Supreme Court of the United States has upheld the board in all 16 cases submitted.

"The crescendo of opposition to collective bargaining has passed its peak. Today more employers are enjoying stable labor agreements than ever before in our history."

While Green, after his conference with the President at Hyde Park, had indicated no particular opposition to Smith's re-appointment, he suddenly, after conferring with the federation's executive council, dispatched Thursday night a telegram to the President asking him not to rename Smith.

Asked Someone Else.

Instead, Green asked the appointment of "some capable, qualified person in whom the millions of workers represented by the American Federation of Labor have confidence as a fair and judicial-minded administrator of the act."

Green insisted Smith was biased and unqualified.

Many political observers here held that the President's session with Green and following announcement of possible Wagner act changes was a move designed primarily to "steal the thunder" of Republicans and conservative Democrats in the fall elections, as some of them are using the act's unpopularity with businessmen as the basis for a campaign issue.

These observers believed that no important changes in the present law, now highly satisfactory to the New Deal's high command, would ever be drafted by the Administration's Congressional leaders, and that any such major changes would be vigorously combated from the White House.

Smith, who has shunned publicity, refraining from public speeches of any sort, first drew widespread attention when the Weirton Steel Co.'s attorneys charged him with bias and lack of impartiality. They also charged that while he was a spectator at an examiner's hearing he made remarks disparaging to their presentation. White with anger, Smith later denied this at a board hearing.

A native of Pennsylvania, whose appointment was engineered by Senator Guffey of that State, Smith worked in the steel mills as a youth—his father still works in such a mill—and later was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh and Georgetown University law school.

had warned that Chinese aviation companies should notify Japanese naval officials of any intended passenger flights as "a possible means" of avoiding air attacks by the Japanese military planes.

He cited the warfare rules formulated at The Hague International Conference in 1923 as basis for attacks on commercial planes flying over war zones, saying that these rules "explicitly provide that a civilian plane entering the zone of hostilities is liable to attack." He added:

"Even under notification to our officials, it would be difficult for a Japanese flier to determine whether a passenger plane was carrying military officials or was on an observation mission, in which case it would be subject to attack. In this case the plane was judged to be an enemy because of suspicious behavior in attempting to escape.

"Japan is taking all possible steps to respect the rights of third powers in China and we expect that the attitude of Japan should be met by respect on the part of third powers of the military necessities of Japan in China."

The Japanese citation of the rules of warfare was noted here as oddly contrasting with the fact that Japan has not declared war on China, in line with the new international discovery of undeclared war. The Hague rules, as far as can be ascertained, are intended to apply to declared wars, openly acknowledged as such, and their citation by the Japanese has no bearing on the present war, it was believed.

The Chinese Embassy here released a statement last night from Chungking, China, denouncing the plane incident as "deliberate murder of defenseless non-cambatants."

Griv's note follows:

"Acting under instructions, I have the honor on behalf of my government to protest to your excellency against the unwarranted attack on August 24, 1938, near Macao, by Japanese airplanes upon a commercial airplane operated by the China National Aviation Corporation resulting in the total destruction of the commercial airplane, the loss of the lives of a number of noncombatant passengers, and the endangering of the life of the American pilot.

"This attack upon the plane has aroused public feeling in the United States.

"I am directed to point out to your excellency, with reference to the attack in question, that not only was the life of an American national directly imperiled but loss was also occasioned to American property interests as the Pan American Airways has a very substantial interest in the China National Aviation Corporation.

"I am directed to invite the special attention of your excellency to the following points in the account of Pilot Wood: The China National Aviation Corporation plane was pursued by Japanese planes which started machine gunning; after the China National Aviation Corporation plane had successfully landed it was followed down by Japanese pursuit planes which continued to machine-gun it until it had sunk; and when Pilot Wood started swimming across the river he was followed by one of the Japanese planes which continued to machine gun him.

"My Government desires to express its emphatic objection to the jeopardizing in this way of the lives of American as well as other noncombatant occupants of unarmed civilian planes engaged in clearly recognized and established commercial services over a regularly scheduled air route."

Unfinished Walls Should Be Covered

Unfinished brick walls should be covered at night with boards, canvas, or tar paper as a protection against weather and the absorption of excessive moisture or excessive drying in hot weather.

When the walls are finished they should be thoroughly cleaned and washed down. For washing away a 5 per cent solution of muriatic acid may be used, followed by a washing with clear water.

"Air Conditioning" with Awnings

Cool your house 10° this summer. Tests show that awnings keep out heat and make any house much more comfortable in hot weather. A set of awnings is the first step in air conditioning. Let us estimate on your needs.

from the records of Brothwell's business in narrowing down the dates of the pair's alleged appearance together to August 18 and August 25. Last night agents for the defense were busy in the vicinity of Bridgeport, Conn., obtaining evidence with which to counteract that which District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey had brought against the defendant from that region.

Brothwell Sticks to Story.

It was learned, too, that several residents of Bridgeport, who knew Dutch Schultz, when the gangster was staying there in 1935 as a fugitive from justice, are expecting to be called to testify here for the prosecution.

Brothwell stuck to his story under Stryker's cross-questioning today, and his wife, Mrs. Frances Brothwell, appeared briefly on the stand at the behest of Dewey, to corroborate her husband's denial that he had been coached by the district attorney's office in testimony. She said she was with Brothwell all the time in his visits to the district attorney.

The crowd in front of the courthouse, where Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora is hearing the case, was growing larger. There were more than 500 persons standing across the square at the noon recess, gazing at the courthouse facade. Within the courtroom the wife of the defendant and her three sons and daughters-in-law had resumed attendance.

be disastrous to reciprocal trade agreements, but thought a limited program over a short period would have no adverse effect.

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation previously had been engaged in similar purchase programs, but on a much more restricted basis. Its operations in the past have had the dual effect of providing low-cost supplies for relief and bolstering prices. Recently the corporation has made heavy purchases of butter for relief distribution and between February and June had bought approximately 13,000,000 pounds.

The corporation early this year had made heavy flour and cereal purchases.

The department's announcement said simply that the corporation would buy wheat this week-end and Monday, but it was indicated the buying would continue over other periods when conditions were favorable to entering the market.

Wallace announced the Government would buy the following grades of wheat:

No. 2 dark hard winter, No. 1 hard winter, No. 1 dark hard winter, mainly in the Southwest, and No. 1 hard winter, No. 1 soft white and No. 1 Western white in the Pacific Northwest.

To hold down next year's output, the AAA has requested farmers to seed only 55,000,000 acres for the 1939 crop, against 80,000,000-acre limitation asked last year.

Railroads Oppose Cuts.

By the Associated Press.

The board of directors of the Association of American Railroads voted opposition yesterday to a proposal by Eastern railroads to reduce rates 10 cents a hundred pounds on grain reshipped from Chicago to North Atlantic ports for export.

Eugene Morris, chairman of the Central Freight Association, announced in Chicago that the Eastern railroads intended to file the proposed reduction tariff with the Interstate Commerce Commission, to become effective September 26 or 27 and to expire December 10 at midnight.

The Eastern carriers proposed the reduction in an effort to recapture some of the grain-transporting business from Great Lakes carriers.

Christian Science Topic 'Christ Jesus'

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The Golden Text is from Micah 5:2: "Thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose going forth have been from of old, from everlasting."

Among the citations which carries the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "And as ye go, preach, saying, the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give." Matthew 10:7,8).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Those, who are willing to leave their nets or to cast them on the right side for Truth, have the opportunity now, as aforetime, to learn and to practice Christian healing. The Scriptures contain it. The spiritual import of the Word imparts this power."

Four men from the District and vicinity yesterday were named by the War Department to take entrance examinations March 7, 1939, for admission to West Point July 1.

The candidates are Charles Avery Dravo, Jr., c/o Col. C. A. Dravo, National Guard Armory, Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest; James Creelman Huntley, Army War College; Thomas J. Lynn, 1918 N street northwest, and James Allan O'Connor, Fort Belvoir, Va.

Simultaneously the department announced that Henry B. Cockrell, 1113 Allison street northwest, has been commissioned a first lieutenant in the 104th Quartermaster's regiment, National Guard.

No-Parking Zones Will Be Marked By White Curbs

Curbs near intersections will be painted white to mark nonparking areas, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen ordered yesterday after a tour of the downtown area with Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

Today District painters will begin painting curbs from intersections to a point 20 feet beyond the existing line of building. Parking will be forbidden in the marked areas at all times.

Commissioner Hazen said no arrests will be made where curbs are not painted.

From 22 in 1922 Has Flowered 15,000-Member Bible Class Unit

400 Delegates to Attend Westminster Parley Next Week-End.

(Having sketched in the past weeks activities of a few outstanding Bible classes in Washington churches, The Post today and next week will describe two of the foremost organizations of these classes.)

Gathering at Leesburg, Va., July 4, 1922, a group of 22 District church workers, headed by the late Homer J. Councilor, blazed the trail for a movement today embracing more than 15,000 members—the D. C. Organized Bible Class Association—scheduled to stage its annual conference at Western Maryland College Labor Day week-end.

President of the organization until his death in 1931, and supervisor of religious education at Calvary Baptist Church, where he also taught the Vaughn Bible Class, Councilor is memorialized in a chapel erected by the association at Camp Letts, Y. M. C. A. Boys' Camp in Maryland.

The establishment of a library at the Northeast Boys' Club and the furnishing of a memorial room to the late president Albert N. Ward, of Western Maryland College are special projects of the association, which supplies talent for class programs, provides teachers in emergencies, and acts as a clearing house for latest information on Bible class methods.

Climaxing the organization's summer activities, the three-day conference at Westminster next week is expected to draw 400 delegates from 175 local classes, who will hear, among other speakers of note, Dr. Albert W. Beavens, president of Colgate-Rochester Divinity School, in four addresses on the general conference theme of "Jesus Only."

Page McK. Etchison, Leesburg pioneer organizer and successor to Councilor as leader of the Bible movement, is serving as president and registrar of the conference, and will preside over the Saturday evening session, features of which will be a lecture by Dr. Beaven, and a song-service led by "Smilin' Bill" Schmucker, and the Petworth Baptist quartet.

A forum on Bible Class work, conducted by George E. Harris, executive secretary of the group, will open Sunday's program. Later, Dr. George S. Duncan, of American University, and Dr. Beaven, will speak. Vice President Irving L. Koch will be in charge of the Church Hour and H. M. Stackhouse will conduct the annual meeting in the afternoon, when William E. Harward, chairman of the nominating committee, will report. Mrs. Etchison, conference pianist, is to give a "fireside hour" at 9:30 p. m.

Delegates will be able to visit Gettysburg and other historic spots, use the athletic facilities on the campus, as well as participate in the fellowship hours which have been arranged.

Highlighting the Monday session will be a talk by Prof. Duncan on "The Nature and Purpose of the Bible," followed by a forum in Alumni Hall, in charge of Clyde D. Harrison and George E. Harris.

The advisory committee of the National Federation of Men's Bible Classes will meet in connection with the conference Sunday at 2 p. m. H. C. McClintock, Elkton, Md., national president, will preside.

Among other active workers in the Organized Bible Class Association are W. H. Harrison, Mrs. J. M. Smith, Noah R. Robinson, Mrs. Etta Zahn, Harold S. King, Dr. A. W. Cummings, Mrs. Gertrude Donovan, George M. Gooch, Chester S. Sheppard, E. M. Bryan, Miss Laura Lindley, Walter M. Hiley and J. A. Patterson, jr.

The Will To Succeed.

Although a number of minor details remain to be ironed out, an early and successful conclusion of the protracted negotiations for an Anglo-American reciprocal trade agreement now appears certain.

The prospect is most encouraging. An Anglo-American trade pact will benefit both nations. It will set the capstone on Secretary Hull's heroic endeavors to stabilize international relations by progressive improvement in world trade. It will give a powerful and far-reaching impetus toward further extension of the Hull program. And not the least valuable attribute of the agreement will be its successful manifestation of co-operative effort for the furtherance of a peaceful ideal.

The negotiations preliminary to this achievement have been going on over a period of many months. Great difficulties stood in the way, not least of these being the British opposition to making fundamental alterations in the imperial preference system. The depression in this country, and the softening of the American price level that ensued, increased British doubts. But by the same token the current revival of industry in the United States has removed one of the real obstacles to accord.

The negotiations, while sometimes slowed up, have never been even temporarily abandoned. Both governments have from the beginning been moved by the determination to succeed, and by the realization that success would constitute a real contribution to stability at a time when such a contribution is badly needed.

Attacks On The Labor Act.

Following A. F. of L. demands that the national labor relations act be modified to "insure more judicial and impartial administration" of its provisions, President George H. Davis of the United States Chamber of Commerce has presented a long list of proposed amendments sponsored by that organization.

Neither the program of revision under consideration by the executive council of the A. F. of L., nor the recommendations of the chamber, are acceptable in their entirety, because they are not well balanced. The A. F. of L., for instance, is anxious to limit the powers of the NLRB to insure maximum protection to craft unions. This is a natural self-preservative instinct, but, given too free expression, it would seriously retard the growth of industrial unionism. The A. F. of L. hierarchy is not the most impartial judge of the social desirability of that development.

The Chamber of Commerce likewise goes unreasonably far in its advocacy of restriction upon the scope of collective bargaining and upon limitation of the discretionary authority of the NLRB. It seeks abrogation of the majority rule requirement in bargaining negotiations—a change that would seriously hamper the effectiveness of the act, if not altogether destroy its usefulness. Extreme demands of this sort, together with attempts to ban discussion of the closed shop and the check-off except with the consent of the employer, create a suspicion that the underlying purpose is to undermine rather than revise the act. Such tactics, unfortunately, are likely to divert attention from the more moderate recommendations shown by experience to be essential.

The chief complaint of the A. F. of L. against the NLRB is that it has shown favoritism toward the C. I. O. Whether these charges are warranted or not, it is unquestionably true that the Labor Board has been given broad discretionary powers to determine the proper unit for bargaining purposes. As a result, it is in a position to show favoritism toward either craft or industrial unions. Had it not been for the split in the ranks of organized labor, the board's decisions would not have aroused such bitter antagonism. But as matters stand it seems desirable to introduce legal safeguards against discrimination, whether deliberate or unpremeditated.

The employers for whom the United States Chamber of Commerce speaks are likewise justified in demanding amendments to the labor relations act to protect them against flagrantly unfair practices by their employes. The right to organize entails the exercise of a responsibility for which unionism must be held accountable. Summed up, the general objective is, as the chamber states, "to assure impartiality of administration as between employers and employes and as between particular kinds of labor organizations."

To achieve this aim without so circumscribing the powers of the NLRB as to destroy its usefulness will be a very difficult task. But the growing hostility manifested toward the board by a section of organized labor, as well as by many employers, together with the patent failure of the labor relations act to promote industrial peace, is indication that careful revisionary legislation is greatly needed.

The Tax-Exemption Problem.

Abolition of tax exemption in future issues of Federal, State and local securities is a long-overdue reform. The same applies to the imposition of reciprocal taxation, by the Federal and State governments, on tax-exempt incomes of Federal and State officials.

Tax-exempt issues afford the wealthy a legal avenue of escape from payment of income taxes and hence introduce inequity into the tax system. They also discourage men of means from placing their capital in productive enterprise and thus retard economic progress. Exemption of official salaries from income taxation becomes a steadily more serious loophole as Government jobholders multiply. Consequently, the President has the support of the great body of informed citizens when he urges speedy action to eliminate these forms of tax immunity in the future.

Many who heartily indorse the proposal to end tax exemption, in line with the President's recent suggestions, nevertheless question the validity of the simple statutory enactment which he recommends. They point to the long line of Supreme Court decisions indicating that the Federal Government is without power to tax the income from State and municipal bonds or to levy taxes upon "essential" State officials.

The Federal Government may of course empower the States to tax Federal issues, or authorize them to tax the salaries of Federal employes. The constitutional issue arises only in connection with the proposal to extend Federal taxation to cover State instrumentalities. The question then is whether there are valid grounds for concluding that the Supreme Court might be induced to overturn earlier decisions in the light of changed conditions or because of new evidence.

Generally speaking it is an indefensible practice to pass laws clearly in conflict with the provisions of the Constitution. And the Administration has been deservedly criticized in the past for attempting in this way to put pressure upon the Court to uphold legislation of dubious constitutionality. In the present instance, however, strong arguments can be advanced in behalf of abolition of tax exemption by enactment of the "short and simple statute," which Senator Brown, chairman of the special Senate committee on tax-exempt securities and salaries, is now predicting. Senator Brown favors the legislative method of procedure and seems to anticipate a favorable decision from the Supreme Court in a test of its constitutionality.

The Department of Justice has prepared a very comprehensive study dealing with the taxation of Government bondholders and employes. After an analysis of numerous decisions bearing on questions of tax immunity the investigators deal at length with the events leading up to the passage of the sixteenth amendment to the Constitution, interpreting its meaning in the light of the debates and discussions of the time.

According to this report, "the question of the taxability of income from State and municipal bonds and the salaries of State and municipal officers under the amendment has never been directly presented to the Court. . . . While there exist expressions by the Court to the clear effect that income derived from such sources is immune, the Government has never squarely presented the question."

Furthermore, a large amount of new evidence has been assembled, designed to show that when the sixteenth amendment was ratified it was generally believed to empower the Federal Government to tax income from all sources, State issues included.

In view of these circumstances, it may well be that the Supreme Court would uphold a law abolishing tax immunity, provided the act were drawn in such a way as to safeguard the rights of the States against danger of undue Federal encroachment. Certainly the alternative procedure of specific constitutional amendment would be slow and uncertain, because of the opposition of some States to loss of tax-exemption privileges that make borrowing relatively easy.

There remains the possibility of eliminating tax-exemption by various indirect means, all of them objectionable subterfuges. By a process of elimination, therefore, students of the issue are becoming unanimous in the conclusion that the statutory route offers the best prospect for speedy attainment of a very essential tax reform.

Local PWA Improvements.

Doubly welcome because of the horrible prison news from Philadelphia, a $1,600,000 PWA loan-and-grant has now been authorized for enlargement and improvement of the District Jail. While there is no suggestion that Washington prisoners have been subjected to anything even faintly comparable to the treatment reported from Holmesburg, overcrowding has long been an admitted handicap to local prison efficiency. What Congress has refused to consider for many years is now handsomely provided by one of its own agencies.

The $1,600,000 item represents the largest yet allocated to the Capital by the PWA. In all, ten projects have been approved and financed to a total of $7,831,000 by Mr. Ickes' office. Outstanding among them are those promising a municipal court building, several new schools, additions to Gallinger Hospital and assorted sewer developments. At least eight more await Federal approval. Probably the most important are the applications for still more schools and two aimed at the city's disgraceful health record—a new 200-bed tuberculosis building at Glenn Dale and preliminary construction on the needed Health Center.

The $2,500,000 administration building planned for the Municipal Center is also included, as are the $2,750,000 National Guard Armory and the $1,080,000 extension of the Fort Drive to link the city's Civil War fortifications. There is a $55,000 item for Highway Department garages and, finally, a $300,000 project for branch libraries.

It has been a disappointment to many that the long-discussed and unquestionably desirable new central library could not have been submitted for current PWA consideration. The stipulation that detailed plans be available before October 1 has thus far prevented this. Accordingly, the library officers have inserted a $500,000 construction item in their 1940 budget application. Such an amount would permit a fairly prompt start on a building which is certainly as meritorious as many public works projects already pushed to completion.

Reply To Mexico.

In his second note to the Cardenas government regarding the expropriation of American properties, Secretary Hull patently intended his voice to carry beyond Mexico City. He was addressing the entire southern half of the Western Hemisphere. The whole tenor of the message was that of a Dutch uncle explaining a delicate matter to a family, in this case the 21 other American republics.

Thus, the message was naturally blunt. Mr. Hull asserted that despite Mexico's devious attempts to justify her long record of uncompensated seizures, the Cardenas policy amounts to nothing more than "bald" and "unadulterated confiscation." If continued, the Secretary declared, such tactics will lead to a breakdown of international trust and confidence, with peril to the "very foundations of modern civilization." He demanded an abrupt stop to expropriations and, as evidence of good faith, a monthly sum to be placed in escrow pending adjustment of compensation claims either by direct negotiation or through existing arbitration machinery.

Withal, however, the message was friendly. No hint of retaliation appeared. The "good neighbor" policy is still in effect. Outraged as the United States may be, it will not easily abandon its policy of inter-American harmony. Furthermore, Secretary Hull has a realistic appreciation of the difficult position into which the Mexican government has maneuvered itself. By all reports, the recent petroleum expropriations were forced on the Cardenas regime by a combination of political forces. To have resisted them might have seriously jeopardized the present administration in Mexico.

That such an overturn would disappoint Secretary Hull is indicated by his reminder that this country is "the consistent friend of reform." Social reform is a main concern of President Cardenas. Thus the remark is an official expression of American sympathy for the present Mexican government. Americans directly affected by the oil and land seizures not unnaturally take another view. Regardless of social philosophies, they want full and immediate indemnification. The need to qualify such hopes is suggested by recent researches which indicate that even if as much as one-fifth of Mexico's oil exports were set aside for indemnities, the amount would be inadequate.

Secretary Hull offered Mexico a way out by agreeing with its suggestion for a bilateral commission. However, he adds arbitration as an alternative in case of deadlock. This last makes it the more unmistakable that, whatever Uncle Sam may have tolerated in the past, he will not henceforward abide expropriation of his nationals' properties without instant and adequate payment.

As regards Mexico, this should suffice to postpone indefinitely the rumored nationalization of foreign-owned mining properties. More important will be the effect on other Latin-American countries said to be inclining toward expropriation as a result of Mexico's vicious example.

The volume of air traffic over the Atlantic is increasing so rapidly that it probably will not be long before the authorities find it necessary to designate the Atlantic a one-way ocean.

Sometimes when we finish reading the news of the day concerning the strange doings of the human race, we offer up thanks that it wasn't through any choice of ours that we became a member of it.

Dog's Life.

From the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Has too much sympathy been lavished upon the city dog? Lavished, mind you; not wasted! Dogs have a way of soaking up sympathy, just as most of their human friends do. Some of them probably would like to ask for more when their owners go on vacation.

It seems that city canines, contrary to common belief, have turned kindly treatment to the best advantage by outliving their country cousins. At least, that is what the director of a cat and dog hospital recently told a convention of nearly 2,000 veterinarians in New York City. Despite his close quarters and short leash, the average city dog is said to live about two years longer than the country rover.

While food for the town terrier or spaniel has been tested for vitamins and nutritives, the farmer's hound has taken potluck. Sanitary, ventilated quarters, well-timed haircuts, proper baths and other conveniences and cares account partly for the difference in longevity. The country dog, enjoying his full freedom, may suffer too much exposure to the sun, from improper bedding or from irritations caused by his running into weed and briar patches.

The Dies Investigation

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of August 24, "Poppycock," with its accompanying cartoon of Shirley Temple, will give great satisfaction to the Communists. Your sneering comments injure your paper, not the gentlemen to whom you refer.

Study the Daily Worker (which is allowed to be published in this country and to go through the mails) and see what aliens are trying to do to our Constitution. Just that one paper will convince any American who wishes America to be kept America that the group which Mr. Dies is investigating is alien, subversive and altogether undesirable.

This subject should be thoroughly thrashed out in Congress. Let everybody know the truth. Let all awake. The watchman has sounded the alarm—and none too soon.

We who work and worry our hearts out trying to arrest this disease which is threatening our country's life should be helped by the great papers. To ridicule a serious danger in an editorial is not funny. This is no time for ridicule. We are not tilting at windmills. This thing cannot be laughed off. Soon it will come to war and our good, old-fashioned American men will be obliged to die to defend us from these poisonous rats whose hole is Moscow. J. A.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Being a member of the naval service in good standing I have been considerably upset by la grande exposee, i. e., the Dies committee. Consequently, I feel it my solemn duty to report to the great American people, particularly Hon. Dies, via The Postvestia, that "virtually everybody" in the Navy Department except myself and a few of the cafeteria girls are affiliated with the Communist movement.

The situation is appalling. Captains and admirals greet each other by the clenched fist salute. Commanders play cribbage with the blackamoor messenger boys all in the spirit of racial equality as propounded in the tenets of Karl Marx.

Really, I think that some of the goldbraid boys from the CNO's (that's Chief Naval Operations) ought to be subpenaed so that they might be coaxed to tell all about their stand on this great question.
"SUPER-PATRIOTIC" MARINE.
Washington, Aug. 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Dies committee (all unconsciously, of course) is acting as the front for a Fascist plot to smear Shirley Temple, America's sweetheart.

Hitler has been out to ruin Shirley since July, 1937. I have seen with my own eyes the letter he wrote (it was signed "Fritz Kopplefritz," but it is common knowledge that Hitler often uses that alias, as do other Brownshirts—they are very clever and devious) to Mr. Metro, of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, trying to borrow Shirley and the quintuplets to make a German movie. This projected picture it was hoped would increase the German birth rate, for it was to end with Shirley falling in love with Mussolini's son and presenting him with the quintuplets, who would in turn rear 15 young male children who would grow up and be Storm troopers. (This last was to take place in a sequel, I understand.)

But Mr. Metro, a sterling American, refused and Hitler furiously turned his wrath on our beloved Shirley. Hence this campaign to "get" Shirley Temple on the part of the Nazis, using Representative Dies, an upstanding and right-thinking American, as an innocent front.

Will not the Nation rally to save Representative Dies from these subtle machinations and reveal to his unsuspecting mind the part he is playing in this devilishly insidious attack on an American institution?
QUINTUS LUCIUS PRO BONO PUBLICO.
Washington, Aug. 23.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In this morning's news columns of The Post we find the following: "Youths of four nations culminated their second world congress today with a pledge never to participate in a war of aggression. A minority group of 14 members of the American delegation opposed the pact and refused to sign on the grounds that the agreement should not be directed against wars of aggression only, but against all wars." That shows how our youth of today are imbibing principles set down by Stalin in communistic Russia and propagated in this country by Browder, Foster and our parlor pinks. The Communists even get our youth to sign the infamous Oxford pledge in which they take an oath not to take up arms even in the defense of the United States.

And in face of all this, newspapers like yours print such idiotic editorials as the one entitled "Poppycock," in your issue of August 24. Probably this was written by Browder, Foster or some lesser Communist. Then that silly cartoon: no one said Shirley Temple was a Communist.

All the testimony given by Messrs. Mathews, Steele, Frey and Sullivan was the truth, but not half of it has been told. They have only scratched the surface and shown up some small fry. There are a vast number of others higher up who are doing all they can to make over this glorious United States of America into a Communistic nation under Stalin in Moscow after over 150 years of unexampled peace and prosperity, and the newspapers are doing their part along this line instead of backing up the Dies committee in the effort to get the whole truth.

Go into 70 per cent of our universities and see what filth is being taught our youth under the plea of "academic freedom" and "free speech." These youth congresses are making of our youth a nation of cowards and poltroons.

Fredericksburg, Va., Aug. 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We can always count on spook-hunting parties on the order of the Dies committee containing their quota of silly little men. I wasn't too surprised today to read in The Post that Representative Starnes (Georgia) had pinned the bright red label on the writer Thomas Mann. No reasons were given for Dr. Mann's being called "Communist," but I am familiar enough with his life and writings to list a few salient points in his career: 1. He has been called the greatest creative writer of the twentieth century by a good many literary critics. 2. He left his homeland (Germany) and his material possessions because he would not live under the medieval tyranny of a Nazi regime. 3. Now in this country, he is author of the best-selling little volume, "The Coming Victory of Democracy," which more than 60,000 people heard delivered as a lecture in this country last spring.

Now I happen to know that the only political writing (or speaking) done by Thomas Mann has been in defense of democracy and in condemnation of Fascist barbarism. Are we to conclude, then, that Representative Starnes does not like the idea of the "Coming Victory of Democracy?" Are we to conclude that he resents seeing a truly great figure of our time trying to help build the democratic bulwark against fascism? If we go by Representative Starnes' ranting statement about Thomas Mann, then millions of Americans who share the same basic ideals of the great writer could be called "Communist" also. As an American citizen and believer in democracy I demand an investigation of the investigator.
J. M. SHERBY.
Greenbelt, Md., Aug. 24.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am referring to your editorial of the 24th, entitled "Poppycock," in which you went to great length in expressing your opinion as to the "absurdity" of the Dies committee investigating un-American activities. You were most profuse in classing that committee as "ludicrous" and purposely misrepresented the facts in your accompanying cartoon.

The work of the witnesses before the Dies committee has been merely to disclose and bring into the light facts already long known to a large number of the more astute and inquiring citizens. Yet this editorial treated these facts as if they were the mere idle imaginings of a few terror-stricken agitators. The author only exposed the ignorance of the supposedly omniscient press, of conditions which it should have discovered long ago. The writer who is responsible for that editorial is either too lazy to investigate the true facts, too shallow-minded to realize their import or is an actual Communist sympathizer.

Coupled with the opinions expressed in the editorial was the tendency to dismiss light-heartedly the danger that communism represents to the Republic, with such statements as "Americans are great joiners . . . It is the mere act of joining that appeals to us." . . . "Not even Shirley Temple, with all her smiles, will make us bona fide Communists."

This attitude you share with some millions of other Americans, who also are inclined to dismiss lightly any important political disclosures that are likely to make them feel uncomfortable.

I refer also to the front-page "news article" of that same date by one Sidney Olson, in which, far from expressing the facts impartially, as a reporter should, he pokes fun at the Dies committee and packs the whole article with his opinion of the ludicrousness of that committee. This is, by the way, the only item on that subject appearing on that page that day.

The charge has been made that the American press is Communist-controlled, and, in the light of such editorials and "news" articles, how is one to doubt it?
FRANCES S. PIERCE.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have waited two days—thinking things over—since you wrote the article, "Poppycock." I'm disgusted and several of my patients refuse to read The Post because of your attitude in regard to "Dies" investigation committee on un-Americanism. In my opinion, no one but a Red would write such an article.

I have taken The Post for more than 25 years. In my mind, you know much of the workings of the "isms" in this country. The pity of it all is that people are lax in fighting the propagandists while they bore in on our youngsters.

The cartoon of "Shirley" was equally disgusting to me—as if she were the whole thing. Don't forget she has managers. I think your attitude is wrong and I predict you will feel the effects of your wrong-sided article in the falling off of subscribers.

I happen to know a little about the doings of Communists in this country, although I have not been about for years.

"Defeat Japan!"

To the Editor of The Post— Sir: I was much impressed with the article of Mr. Nathaniel Peffer in today's issue of your paper,—"Defeat Japan."

In view of the fact that Japan has been declared the aggressor nation thereby being an international wrong-doer, or as you might say, tort-feasor, killer of innocent civilians, the remedies he suggested are appropriate. That this country and others of like mind boycott the products of Japan, and cease furnishing military supplies to Japan.

If high-sounding words mean anything or have a basis of any sincerity, it is hard for any Representative in our National Congress to escape introducing legislation, if necessary, to prohibit absolutely the gain to a few in the sale of these munitions to Japan, or to avoid carrying out the wishes of his own constituents as well as those of the country as a whole.

This action is not only logical but, it would seem, imperative, following the finding of guilt of aggression, if we are to avoid being a party to a war conducted by "bestiality," outraging not only the decency of civilization, but actual rights of the citizens of other countries. LEWIS B. PERKINS.

The Post Impressionist

Etude Philosophique.

I TELL you the Army Medical Museum is a liverish old nominalist. You ascend the steps, confident at least of your own existence, but once inside the door every nook and cranny of your person is pervaded by an eerie uncertainty. The preciosit of being scented and waved, gloved and hatted, fades away, leaving you defenseless, unsure of the purpose of life—that usually so definite purpose charmingly enhanced by the amenities of dress and deportment.

It is downright disconcerting to be thus suddenly stripped of personality, ego, prime importance and desirability by a sardonic length of hall lined with microscopes and surgical instruments.

Nothing in that museum is concerned with a person as a person, and it is hard to adapt oneself to the peculiar focus of its sinister eyes. To be sure, in the course of a lifetime all of us must make many subtle and varied adjustments. These, however, merely involve a different functioning of the self as such. If a man is interested in you as a high speed artist on the typewriter, it is no great strain to subdue your femininity and beam upon him with the clear bright efficiency of the nickel on your Remington. If he chances, however, to show signs of being about to invite you down the street for a schooner of beer, you can easily drop that look of speed and accuracy and turn your personality around a bit until a more gregarious facet is exposed. But whichever side of it may happen to be the outside at a given moment, the whole personality is none the less all of a piece, so to speak.

But once inside that museum you become quite a different kettle of fish. You are no longer a complete creature that charms this world today and will charm the next world some other day. You are only a collection of parts, a mere assortment, an assemblage from some great factory line—a mechanical and temporary entity, of which the part is, if anything, more important than the whole. The museum is especially interested in those of your organs on which the hand of the potter may have slipped a mit, on which time and circumstance has wrought some outrageous change. If you have a neurotic kidney, the museum will be glad to fix it all up in a nice bottle on a shelf, as snug as a bug in a rug, as the saying goes, and I do believe the old place in the wee small hours of the night might even wax a bit fatherly over this homesick part that you left behind you. But yourself, sub specie aeternitatis, it does not even see for the blood and bones and vertebrae. The old heathen would probably dub it a mere quantitative concept.

Naturally, you are thoroughly conscious of your component parts as you go from room to room, and shyly, furtively identify yourself with a skeleton grinning foolishly or a pathetic foetus bent over on itself in dumb growth. With drooping head you stand before the lurid reminders of something that was mortal of this one and that one, indecently aware of yourself as a bundle of raw red things. Before the stomach display, I am particularly wont to loiter in ruminating despondency, reflecting that, far from being an independent soul on a terrestrial jaunt, as I like to fancy myself, I am but an automaton in debentured service to earn the food and drink demanded by that gaping sack.

If you manage to survive the lower floor and stanchly mount the stairs to the upper with a shred of identity holding your parts together in some kind of order and decency and allure, still worse awaits in those shelves of bottled monsters, and you must clutch with all your might at the real, the true and the good as you wonder nervously where you might be now had grandpa been just a shade queerer than he was. Before those creatures twisted into unnatural positions from which they were never to rise upright as human beings, I reflect humbly that but for the grace of a chromosome there would be I.

I usually come away from the Medical Museum thinking about an old man I knew as a child. He was gouty, crotchety, fierce of eyebrows and mustache, and confined to his porch in a wheelchair—for his sins, the neighborwomen whispered.

Whenever I had to go there with a message from my mother to his daughter-in-law, I would wait nervously at the foot of the steps. What did I expect? Flashes of sulphur and brimstone? I don't know, but in a way it was wonderful. The world certainly loses the mystery of beetling brows as one grows older. Anyhow he would thump with his cane and growl "Come on child. Speak up. What is it?" I would climb the steps shakily, albeit a bit resentfully, under the glare of those penetrating eyes. For at that time in my life I thought I was somebody, and in my soul, although I could not possibly have been articulate about it, I knew that to him I was just a little whiff of something or other that had come and would go.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

My Old Man.

DAMON RUNYON, sitting down to crack his knuckles the way he does before starting his daily story, took a look at a piece about the liquidation of William C. Durant's art treasures and horned his A at the point where Old Man Durant said he had enjoyed living with these possessions for 30 years and had no regrets. Mr. Durant is the former millionaire who once, even twice, was commander in chief of General Motors, but was running a beanery not so long ago.

Damon said Mr. Durant's feeling about the loss of material possessions reminded him of his old man's philosophy in such moments. Damon's old man was a printer and editor out around Kansas and Colorado, and Damon says that whenever he lost possession of something—whether his little house, the farm that came and went or his pet shotgun—his Old Man would say that the joy of possession compensated the financial write-off.

I guess my Old Man's feeling would have been about the same about material possessions if he had ever had any. He did take a claim to a quarter section of timber up around Hibbing, Minn., one time and put an Indian on it, according to the custom of those days, but the Indian jumped the fence and somebody came along to protest the claim on the ground that it wasn't working worked, and took it. According to the law, you had to settle on and work the piece yourself or get someone to do it for you, and it was common practice to get an Indian to build a cabin and putter around a little clearing between brannigans. But if your Indian didn't hold still you might not learn of his disappearance for six months or a year.

• • • •

ANYWAY, the lumber barons probably would have flawed my Old Man's title later on even if he had closed it. They often did that. They were the law and the courts in the timber country, and if they couldn't trick you out of your place by changing the local map or finding a bug in your title they would flood, burn or shell you out.

Anyway, my Old Man didn't mind. He had done a little shooting in his timber and had felt the pleasure of nominal ownership for a spell, so it was all even with him. You know—easy go.

As a reporter in the old get-the-story days in Minneapolis or Chicago he never was much bothered by accumulation, but there was rank and pride in the title of Star Reporter, and my Old Man was acknowledged a star by friend and foe. I am not writing of my Old Man in the past tense, please, but only of those days. My Old Man is still in action, writing the story of his life and a phase of this country's journalism which has been depicted in terms of externals but never has had the benefit of an inside job. He didn't sneer at his work. He was in it and of it and played it with the abandon of a college football star.

• • • •

I think the only pang my Old Man ever felt over a loss was along with various attempts to cloud his credit for the authorship of a melodrama of the white slave era called "Little Lost Sister." There is talk now of producing this show on Broadway, after 25 years, in the supercilious mood of the recent presentations of "The Fireman's Bride" and "Broadway After Dark." My Old Man stands to get nothing out of this because he wrote the play in a week and sold it for $100 an act, cash on delivery, at a time when there was bad sickness in the family and he had to get money. I know he wrote it because I saw him write it, and I went with him the night he went down to deliver the last act and got the last of the money.

Well, it didn't seem much at the time, but it got its second wind after a while, and that play has been running on the road as long as there was any road, in stock as long as there was any stock, in rep shows and on showboats on the Mississippi and the Southern East Coast ever since. In Dayton, Tenn., at the time of the evolution trial, I met an old trouper with a little motorized rep show working under canvas who said that next to "The Trail," "Little Lost Sister" was the best show in the business. "The Trail," of course, is "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine."

• • • •

FOR A TIME nobody else claimed authorship. A woman named Virginia Brooks was named on the billing, but she was just a local vice crusader in whose name my Old Man had ghosted a series of sensational newspaper articles under the same title. Because her name was hot and associated with the title, she was paid more for its use on the billing of the show than my Old Man got for writing it.

Since then various authors have decided that they wrote "Little Lost Sister," but the only other who had anything to do with it was a play actor named Rose, who just hopped it up after the opening.

Maybe it was a lousy show, as the critical term goes nowadays, but it is beginning to make "Uncle Tom's Cabin" pant and look back, and my Old Man has always felt in a quiet way that those who enjoyed the material rewards could well afford to let him have his fair credit for a play which has been going a quarter of a century and is still full of run.

That Is Forever England

Scarce Laughter.

What makes a visiting American feel most helpless and lonely in England is, I think, neither the food nor the climate nor the damp houses nor the relentless subservience of the lower classes nor the spectacle of English gentlemen being consciously banal under the impression that it represents a magnificent discipline. What makes an American realize sinkingly that this, by God, is alien corn is the relative scarcity of laughter.

Rubbernecking.

From a purely tourist standpoint, Oxford is overpowering, being so replete with architecture and history and ancedote that the visitor's mind feels dribbling and helpless, as with an over-large mouthful of nougat.

All of Stratford, in fact, suggests powdered history—add hot water and stir and you have a delicious nourishing Shakespeare.

And The Food.

I was well warned about English food, os it did not surprise me, but I do wonder, sometimes, how they manage to prise it up long enough to get a plate under it.

The blower-offers are the 12 people who stand on either side of the kitchen door in any English hotel and blow on all the food as it goes out, just in case there should be any traitorous vestige of heat in it.

Notes.

Good news comes that the jail will be remodeled; and the thought occurs that they might remodel the hours put in by the attendants down there . . . A musical for the benefit of the Spanish Food Ship is being sponsored by U. F. W. A. Agriculture Local No. 2 at 724 Hamlin street northeast, at 8 this evening.

Three long-time employes of Commerce Department will be retired as of September 1, as follows: Henry D. Hubbard (Standards), 36 years, 11 months' service; Eugene M. LaBoiteaux (Census), 32 years, 7 months' service, and Andrew Frederick Lambert (Fisheries) 30 years, 2 months' service . . .

And a communication: "We haven't figured on the number of women who are supporting children on Government pay checks, but we know there are thousands of them, and that housing is their special problem. One young mother at the Agriculture Department with a son to support believes the solution is co-operative living. She herself is looking around now for a mother with a boy of school age who would like to share her house in Virginia and her excellent maid." She leaves her 'phone number with the Federal Diary . . .

Don't forget that the Agriculture Graduate School is preparing for opening the fall semester on September 19. Classes are open to all who qualify. And students in years past have come from every branch of the Government, from all departments and agencies and the White House. The only group which never has availed itself of the school's fine opportunities are members of Congress . . .

A. F. G. E. St. Elizabeth's Hospital Lodge 28 sponsors a dance cruise down the Potomac tonight, using the "City of Washington"; she leaves the Seventh and N streets wharf at 8:30 o'clock. On the committee are Harry F. Rader, Roscoe O'Flaherty, Mary Ruth Copsey, Frank H. Maxey, Mary Ruth McClinic, Carrie A. Brooks, Elizabeth Kleiner, Bessie Van Ward, Florence Harmon, Ethel Donahue, Hildred Dawson, Grace Guy, Mabel Barrett, Catherine Flanagan, Charolett Skiner, Mary Ann Webb, Marie Dennis, Margaret Kennedy, William Green, Phil Lloyd, Arthur Reynolds, Albert Donnelly, Barney Moder, Joe Krahling, Benson Taylor, Loren Landman, Arthur Morrisette, W. G. Wolf, John Wanley, Ainsworth Tucker, Judson Anderson, Browne Plumb, Joseph Blaher, and Paul Boswell.

If you are interested in photography, see those on display in the Agriculture patio. The exhibit, coincident with the issue of the Graduate School's catalogue of courses, dramatizes the classroom work of students in such fields as glass blowing, botany, mineralogy, public speaking, drawing and other fields covered by the curriculum. Supplementing the exhibit, are collections of photographs submitted by the Photography Class of the Graduate School, and the Camera Club of the Department. The entire exhibition was prepared by Joseph D. Cooper, editor of the Weekly Agriculture Exchange, Department house organ. The exhibit will be there until August 31.

Great goings on are predicted for the field meet to be held this afternoon at Fort Hunt by the renowned Interior Department Recreation Association. For the first time, bicycle polo will be played; Nelson A. Loomis thought up the idea and worked out the rules with his own pencil. There will be in addition, games of baseball and softball, and bathing beauty contest. After all this, they will eat . . .

The Civil Service Commission announces some interesting examinations, as follows: Mineral economist (nonferrous secondary metals), $3,800, Bureau of Mines, College training, with major study in metallurgical engineering, mining engineering, or metallurgy, and professional experience in the recovery of metals from nonferrous scrap, are required. The top age limit is 53. Associate warehouse examiner, $3,20. assistant warehouse examiner, $2,600, Bureau of Agricultural Economics. The top age is 40. Junior scientist (nautical), $2,000, Navy Department. A four-year course at the U. S. Naval or Coast Guard Academy, or a scientific course at a recognized college or university, or graduation from a recognized State school ship, plus certain experience at sea, is required. The top age is 35. The closing date on all is September 19.

As the American Federation of Government Employes prepares for its annual meeting in Chicago (September 12,) the national office announces the organization has nearly reached its 500th lodge. The U. F. W. A., we hear, is ready also to turn the organizing steam on.

PWA Punishes Applicants for Hiring 'Fixer'

California Allotments Are Canceled or Reduced Because of Fees.

By the Associated Press.

The Public Works Administration punished seven California communities yesterday for engaging Glenn E. Miller to speed action on project applications.

Acting Administrator Howard A. Gray said six cities and one county paid at least $7,100 to Miller, of Hollywood and Washington, "for alleged services" in behalf of eight separate projects.

Four projects lost allotments—Santa Monica, $158,787, city hall; Upland, $78,750, school, and Orange County, allocations of $25,512 and $9,316 for sewers and drains, respectively.

Grants to two others, on which work had been started, were reduced by the amounts paid by the towns to Miller. In the case of El Monte, Gray said Miller got $1,000. San Marino paid him $750.

A seventh community, Riverside, had its application for $429,064 to build a sewer disapproved, its own officials admitting payment of $1,000 to Miller.

The eighth project, contemplating a harbor improvement at Oxnard, was continued under suspension to enable investigators to determine whether Miller received more than just the $1,750 preliminary inquiry indicated.

"The projects," said Gray, "all were involved in payment of money to one Glenn E. Miller on the representation that he could expedite consideration by PWA."

Payment of funds for such activities, he added, is openly in violation of PWA rules and regulations and has been consistently frowned upon."

The Underlying Military Argument.

Paris, Aug. 26.

THOUGH THERE are circumstantial reports to the contrary, it would seem reasonably certain that Hitler has not yet reached a final decision about his course in Czechoslovakia. He has still to choose. He can have the moral satisfaction of very large concessions to the Sudeten Germans, concessions which would make them the most privileged national minority in Europe. If he accepts these concessions, there will be no war for the present. He can, on the other hand, order the Sudeten Germans to demand more than the Czechoslovak republic could conceivably grant, and incite an uprising which the Czechs would suppress. He would then intervene. The Czechs would fight. The French and the British would support the Czechs.

The choice between these two courses is at bottom a problem in military science.

The party in Germany which is urging him to precipitate the crisis holds that a quick decision can be reached in central Europe by a violent and sudden attack, and that the Czechs would be conquered before France, Britain and Russia could do anything about it. The other party, which consists, one may be certain, of the older professional soldiers, the diplomats and the industrialists, opposes the coup on the ground that even against Czechoslovakia a quick knockout blow is impossible because the military defense is so immeasurably stronger than the offensive, and because in a long war the position of Germany is hopeless.

AS REGARDS the near future in Europe, and the question of peace or war, the conflict between these two military doctrines is of ever so much greater practical importance than all the ideologies of fascism, national socialism and communism. The political ideologies are fed to the masses, but the directing heads of governments and their real advisers have their attention fixed upon the two opposing military theories.

It is clear, I think, that the believers in the possibility of the knockout blow are, on the whole, the armchair strategists, the cranks, and the writers of sensational popular books about the next war. They include all the people who believe that London, Paris, the British Empire and what not, can be destroyed in a week by air bombardment, by submarines, by tanks, by poison gas. They include crowds who are always disposed to believe that the newest invention is as irresistible as it is spectacular. And they include, alas, the political agitators who want to believe that they possess the means, that they have found the short cut, to the grandiose victory about which they make their orations.

IN THE OTHER school are to be found virtually all the experienced soldiers, and the serious students of military science. This is the case not merely in Britain and France but in Germany and Italy as well. Their view is that now, as in the past, great wars—that is, wars for European supremacy—must be long wars, and that great wars are not won by victories in the field but by exhaustion.

London and Paris are acting on this military philosophy. For this reason their military arrangements are essentially defensive. They accept the military doctrine that the offensive uses up about three times the number of men and at least three times the quantity of material that the defensive requires. Therefore, they have concluded that the correct military policy is to let the aggressor wear himself out in the attack, and to counterattack only when his reserves are spent.

• • • •

IT IS on this principle that the British and the French are proceeding. And, therefore, much to the dismay of some of the more ardent and excited spirits among them, they have decided not to imitate Germany and Italy by adopting a total militarism at this time. They are preparing carefully a first line of defense against the first shock of the attack—the fleet, the Maginot Line, air defenses for the vital spots in London and Paris. Above all they are training men.

But they are not turning the whole nation into a military camp with total conscription of labor and property. They are merely making the plans for doing that. For the rest they are trying to keep industry going in a normal way, and instead of asking their peoples to make the sacrifices now that war would require, they prefer to have the people take it fairly easy, to keep themselves rested and well fed, to enjoy their holidays and not to become overtired by excessive excitement and nervous strain.

THEY CAN afford to do this because they have no intention of attacking Germany and Italy, and they are confident that if they are attacked, it will not be battles but the long campaign that will decide the issue. They look upon the preparations of the Fascist states as based on an unsound military philosophy, and therefore certain to be disastrous. For the preparations are so feverish and require such sacrifices before the army and the people confront the enemy that these nations are tiring themselves out before they start to fight.

They are preparing an impressive military machine by using up not only their economic reserves but the nervous and psychological reserves of the people. Life is exhausting in a totalitarian regime. No one is ever allowed to relax. These nations are like an athlete who exercises furiously in the gymnasium before entering the race. The French and British, on the contrary, think the race will not be a sprint but a marathon, and that the problem is not how to get off to a quick start but how to keep fit for a long and sustained effort.

IN THE DIPLOMATIC exchanges which go on between the two camps into which Europe is divided, there is some discussion of specific issues, such as intervention in Spain and the claims of the Sudeten Germans. But the underlying discussion, and the one which will determine the outcome, is whether a war would be decided by a knockout blow or by exhaustion.

The matter is being discussed in private with a frankness which is, to the outsider who learns of it, astonishing. French and British soldiers discuss it with German soldiers. Diplomats discuss it with diplomats. It is a momentous discussion. For there will be peace only if the allies outside Germany persuade Hitler that the mastery of central Europe cannot be won by a sudden, violent, but short attack.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

What Are The Reform Waves Saying?

The country appears to be going into one of those antigambling cycles again after a long spell of tolerance toward games of chance and allied pastimes. You can't pick up a newspaper just now without reading where another area has suddenly "turned straight" and begun setting the bloodhounds on games that have been openly encouraged for the past decade.

• • • •

New England seems to be leading the sudden reversal of viewpoint.

• • • •

Connecticut has been staging an orgy of antigaming activities, suddenly coming out in an "anything goes" mood. Like so many other communities, it is centering attention on such small-time devices as bingo, wheels of fortune and pin games. They're even stopping the church fair and fraternity picnic folks from having the accustomed fling with fortune at summer rates.

• • • •

The sudden drive against-bingo in many States is another one of those "all-done-by-mirrors" proceedings. Bingo is one of the least offensive games of chance, and it has been tolerated in our best circles since away back in Cal Coolidge's era.

• • • •

Why, as a matter of fact, Aunt Carrie, Uncle Chidsey and even Grandpappy Gideon have been having the time of their lives yelling "Bingo" all over the country for ever so long. Folks who wouldn't let a deck of cards in the old homestead and who would yell copper at the sight of a dice box or a roulette wheel have been accepting bingo as an innocent diversion, rating with whist, checkers and dominoes. Bingo even got into the churches. The weekly bingo party had come to be a part of the parish announcements.

• • • •

But lo! suddenly the authorities become self-righteous, and, whereas they were recently talking about dedicating a horse track with parimutuels operated by button from city hall, they abruptly throw up their hands in horor at the sight of Grandma Whipple winning an electric flatiron through the medium of a handful of chicken corn.

• • • •

But that's America all over. It will welcome race tracks, imitation Monte Carlos, dog ovals, poolrooms and sweepstakes one year and blush at the thought of horseshoe pitching and cribbage the next. There are those who say a real antigambling crusade is in the making that will stop gambling everywhere, even at race tracks. Wanna bet?

Vacation's End.

The melancholy days are near—
The saddest of the year—
When normal living must return
And comforts reappear.

When decent beds we'll know once more,
And roofs intact and good—
With no more beetles in our clothes,
No more of that shore food.

In which there was a screeno ticket.

Monopoly Inquiry

By Mark Sullivan

The Criterion.

THERE ARE just getting under way two actions by Government having to do with business. One is a more thoroughgoing enforcement of anti-monopoly laws by the new Assistant Attorney General, Mr. Thurman Arnold. The other is an investigation of monoply by a joint legislative and executive committee, of which Mr. Arnold is a member. The importance of this development is recognized by everybody. But not all appraise it accurately.

For appraising the development, as for appraising practically every other development at Washington, there is one test more fundamental than any other. The test is: Does this development tend to take America toward a new order of society and government? Does this tend to destroy the system called capitalism or individualism, the system of private enterprise, and substitute some form of collectivism, whether communism or socialism or whatnot.

By this test is every development at Washington to be judged. If any development takes us toward a new system, all friends of the American system will oppose it as revolutionary. If the development keeps within the framework of the American system, no one can justly resist it as revolutionary, and all should look upon it fairly on its merits.

• • • •

THIS TEST, this line of demarkation, should be the guide for every thoughtful commentator or other student of public events. Unfortunately the test is not always easy to make—it is not easy to say which measures and policies tend to take America toward a new system, and which are within the framework of the American system. Because the test is difficult to make, some commentators, and numbers of businessmen, fall into an attitude of undiscriminating opposition to everything the New Deal proposes.

The enforcement of anti-monopoly laws is wholly within the American tradition. It is indeed a characteristic, almost a cornerstone, of the American tradition. We have had it from the beginning, and especially for the last 40 years since the Sherman anti-monopoly law was passed.

And insistence upon antimonopoly, upon preservation of competition, is not only within the capitalistic system but essential to it. If there is not competition there is not capitalism. If lack of competition is tolerated, if private monopoly is permitted, tnen inevitably the American temper will change private monopoly into public monopoly, which is socialism. Any one who resists antimonopoly laws and enforcement is not standing for the American system; he is contributing to destruction of the American system.

• • • •

THIS ANSWERS the test to Assistant Attorney General Arnold's program of enforcement of the antimonopoly laws. And the answer as to Mr. Arnold personally is the same. Mr. Arnold is not among those Administration officials who, whether accurately or not, are accused of a wish to destroy the American system of private enterprise and to substitute another. Mr. Arnold wishes to preserve the American system. He thinks that antimonopoly enforcement will help preserve it, and in this no understanding person can disagree with him. Furthermore, Mr. Arnold is a man of forthright and candid personality. No one could suspect him, as some within the Administration are suspected, whether fairly or not, of covertly wishing to undermine the American system, without letting their wish be seen. Mr. Arnold may be an able lawyer or not an able lawyer; he may be a person of good judgment or not a person of good judgment—that will appear later. But he is not an enemy of the American system.

Mr. Arnold in some of his writings does not do himself justice. One finds passages that are disturbing. He says repeatedly that:

The determination of the prices which the people must pay for the things they need to buy, or want to buy, is a taxing power subject to no public responsioility.

So far as this implies that prices charged by corporations for goods are equivalent to taxes laid by government, it simply is not true. It is not true even where the prices are monopolistic. Among other distinctions, no corporation can seize your person or your property for not paying its price.

• • • •

NO POSSIBLE oppression practiced by a corporation can equal the oppression that government can practice. This is a thing America should bear in mind as we resist the attempt of government to exercise more and more power, to be more and more autocratic, to be authoritarian.

However, some of the things that some corporations do about prices, and some of their other monopolistic practices, call for remedy. Mr. Arnold's program of enforcement of antimonopoly laws is a remedy well established in American tradition.

Ugaki's 'Instinct'

By Barnet Nover

Dirty Work At Hankow?

EARLY this month the Japanese air force succeeded in cutting the Canton-Hankow Railroad.

The event attracted much less attention than it deserved. But this is understandable. The road has been the object of almost daily bombardments by Japanese fliers. It has been cut many times. Each time, however, the damage has been speedily repaired and service on this vital line resumed. Thus the Chinese armies in Central China have managed to receive, via Hongkong and the Canton-Hankow Railroad a fairly steady flow of arms and munitions.

This time, as it happens, the line has remained out of commission. No arms and ammunition are moving from Canton to Hankow, and while there are no fewer than four other alternative routes, none of these is as practicable as the one which the Japanese have now succeeded in severing.

• • • •

SHOULD CHIANG be permanently deprived of the Canton-Hankow artery, his difficulties would greatly be multiplied. But it is hardly likely to weaken his will to resist. Indeed, the very fact that the Chinese authorities have been trying to develop alternate routes, that they are making long-range preparations to continue the war from some point well to the west of Hankow, shows that long ago they took into account the possibility of a severance of the link uniting Canton with the central and lower Yangtze Valley.

On the other hand, the cutting of the Canton-Hankow line and the stoppage of the flow of munitions to Chiang Kai-shek over this route represents a very real gain for the Japanese. They are now envisaging the speedy capture of Hankow and with its fall the end of frontal resistance by the Chinese. And even to a greater extent than was true before the fall of Nanking they expect that the capture of the capital will make possible that victorious peace which they so desperately need.

• • • •

THEY MAY again be wrong in their calculations. There is not the slightest indication of any weakening in the Chinese spirit of resistance. Guerrilla bands are operating throughout the vast region nominally under Japanese control. Whether Hankow falls or not it will prove no easy matter to cope with this many-sided menace. And Chiang Kai-shek, for his part, has sworn to fight on to the bitter end.

Indeed, the Japanese have long since realized that their problem is even more political than military. That is, they must not only defeat Chiang's armies they must also get rid of Chiang and put somebody in his place with whom they can make peace.

• • • •

FOR THIS reason it is not safe to dismiss out of hand the recent report from London that through Italian agents at Shanghai, Hongkong and Hankow, Japan has been seeking an understanding with Premier Wang Ching-wei.

The basis of such an understanding, it is said, would be the displacement of Chiang by Wang Ching-wei, a peace between Japan and China in which the former would not be ungenerous as to terms and the subsequent adhesion of China to the German-Italian-Japanese anti-Comintern pact.

Wang Chingwei has had a chequered career. He was an intimate collaborator of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, the "father" of the Chinese republic, the creator of the Kuomintang (the Chinese Nationalist party) and the author of China's political bible, the Three Peoples' Principles. He has at times been Chiang Kai-shek's colleague and at times his bitter rival. Once well to the left of the generalissimo in his political orientation he is now well to the right of him. And two years ago, as a result of what the more ardent nationalists believed was his pro-Japanese attitude, he became the object of an attempted assassination. At that time there were many high-placed Chinese who were pro-Japanese in tendency.

PROBABLY the number of these is not very large now. The war and the way Japan has conducted it has cut deep furrows in the Chinese soul. And yet, continued defeat may lead to schisms within the Chinese government which the Japanese will undoubtedly seek to capitalize.

It will be recalled that at the time Chiang Kai-shek was a captive at Sian, in December, 1936, there were elements in Nanking which opposed all compromise with Chang Hsueh-liang and the Chinese Reds. Rather than permit a truce they were prepared to let Chiang be killed. Fortunately for China they did not have their way. Yet by no means all of this element has been eliminated. On the contrary some of them continue to hold high places in the regime. And it is doubtful if they let look kindly on the Kuomintang-Communist alliance which made possible the kind of resistance China has put up.

• • • •

THE STRENGTH of this element was displayed at Hankow the other day when Gen. Chen Chang, political and military boss of the Wuhan metropolitan area (Wuchang, Hankow and Hanyang) ordered the dissolution of certain organizations believed to be under Communist sway. Whatever the justification for this move may have been, it did mark the first break in the 20-month old truce to which Chiang Kai-shek is committed.

The rift may grow. It is also not unlikely that the jealousy some officials have displayed toward Chiang has been completely wiped out by the war.

At Tokyo not very long ago Gen. Ugaki, Japan's foreign minister, said that while he could not forecast the end of the conflict, his "instinct" told him that the Chiang Kai-shek regime was "nearing its end." This may be pure wish-fulfillment. But it may also arise out of an anticipation of the successful outcome of such secret negotiations as those the Italians are reported to have undertaken.

G.O.P. to Start Fall Campaign With Rally in Indiana Today

Hamilton Predicts Gain of 40 or 50 Seats in Congress; Rep. Martin Thinks It May Be as Many as 70.

By the Associated Press.

Indianapolis, Aug. 26.—Republican leaders, heading with bands and battle cries to a novel "cornfield" rally at Washington, Ind., to open the party's Congressional campaigns, mapped Midwestern vote-getting plans at an 11-State conference here today.

John D. M. Hamilton, National Chairman, asserted the party would gain a minimum of "40 to 50" Congressional seats, adding the gain might be even larger.

Representative Martin, of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, predicted a gain of 70 seats in the House.

"Men and women of all parties," said Martin, "are rallying to the Republican battle slogan, "Let's Put America Back to Work."

Homer E. Capehart, 41-year-old Buffalo, N. Y., manufacturer and native of Indiana, is footing the bill for the "cornfield" rally, which will be staged tomorrow in a tent city on his 400-acre farm. Indiana Republican leaders estimate it will cost him $25,000.

Fried chicken and baked clams, as well as oratory, will be served. Capehart will have 8,500 Indiana Republican workers, from precinct committeemen to Statewide officers, as his guests.

The oratory is scheduled for mid-afternoon, with Representative Wadsworth, of New York, as the keynoter. Other speakers will be Hamilton, Martin, Miss Marion Martin, vice chairman of the Republican National Committee in charge of women's activities; Senator Townsend, of Delaware, and Dr. Glenn Frank, of Chicago, chairman of the party's program committee.

State chairmen, national committeemen and Congressional nominees from Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Indiana attended today's conference en route to the Capehart farm. Women workers had a luncheon meeting with Miss Martin.

Laws Will Take Bench Next Month

Confirmed several months ago as an associate judge of the District Court, Bolitha J. Laws, head of the District Bar Association, will take the oath of office and resign his bar affiliations early next month. Tentative date for his oath has been set as September 10.

Laws, now on vacation, will be succeeded in the presidency of the bar by Godfrey L. Munter, present first vice president.

It was considered likely the "baby member" will be given criminal court trials in order to dispose of the huge number waiting. With him in that category will be Justices Jesse C. Adkins and James M. Proctor.

2,500 Cases Await U. S. District Court

Approximately 2,500 cases will be awaiting trial when the United States District Court reconvenes in October, Charles E. Stewart, clerk of the court, reported yesterday. The report showed that 1,200 cases had been dismissed for lack of prosecution.

A year ago there were 5,595 cases pending in civil matters while now the number is 4,967. During the year there were terminated some 5,649 cases, both in law and in equity.

Navy Again to Ask Funds to Repair 2 Plane Carriers

By the Associated Press.

Navy officials indicated yesterday efforts would be resumed at the next session of Congress to obtain funds to modernize the aircraft carriers Lexington and Saratoga.

Congress late in the last session authorized the work to be done at a cost of not more than $15,000,000, but failed to provide the money. The work has been advocated by the Navy Department for several years.

The ships were under construction as battle cruisers when the Washington Treaty was signed, and were made over into aircraft carriers to avoid being scrapped under that treaty.

Adm, Leahy to Watch New Vessel Launched

Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Naval Operations, left yesterday for Kearny, N. J., where he will participate today in launching of the Navy's newest 1,500-ton destroyer, the U. S. S. Lang.

Mrs. Leahy will act as sponsor for the vessel. The Lang is named in honor of Seaman John Lang, who distinguished himself in an engagement between the U. S. S. Wasp and the BBritish ship Frolic on October 18, 1812.

'The Texans' Spouts Action At the Capitol

Film Play of Southwest Has Many Climaxes; Hall Band Hits.

"THE TEXANS." Paramount picturization of a story by Emerson Hough, adapted to the screen by Bertram Millhauser, Paul Sloane and William W. Haines, featuring Randolph Scott and Joan Bennett, with May Robson, Walter Brennan, Robert Cummings, Raymond Hatton, Robert Barrat, Harvey Stephens, Francis Ford, Bill Roberts and many more. Directed by James Hogan. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Mary Harris. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

"The Texans" is a "Western," apparently designed to end, stop or top all Westerns. The producers have tossed everything but the cameras into this hoss opera de luxe.

There's shooting, tomahawking, a drive of 10,000 tossing longhorns across the Mexican border, also the fording of the Rio Grande by this bunch of animated beef. When the contrary cows are finally herded to a shipping point, they stampede through the town, knocking down barrooms, fences and eating places without partiality. There's a knock-down, drag-'em-out fight between discharged Confederate veterans and Union soldiers. There's a battle with Commanches. There's a dust storm and a struggle through swamps. Finally, there's a prairie fire with soldiers, steers, plain Texans and the hero and heroine fleeing through clouds of smoke and flame. For a few moments we were bedazzled with the thought that the director had gone screwy and burned up the whole d.rned cast. That would have been stupendous!

Early reconstruction days and the advent of the first carpetbaggers from the North furnish the plot impulse. It seems the damyanks plan to tax Joan Bennett's 10,000 cattle a dollar a head, or to take her land from her through a tax impost. It's self-evident that you can't tax steers that you can't find, so Joan runs her livestock across the border and later heads back toward Abilene and its new rail head. It's this trek through rough and dangerous country that makes the story.

Scott Is a "Natural."

Randolph Scott is a "natural" as the strong, silent, dependable fellow who helps Joan in her perilous cattle marketing—not for money, but for love. Miss Bennett, too, makes a neat chore of her role, blending tartness and sweetness in just the right proportions. She's also more beautiful than ever in gowns of 1865 vintage.

But swiping the camera from one and all whenever she appears, is May Robson in the best part she's ever had, that of Joan's grandmother, and a very hardheaded and comical gramma she is. She had the audience in stitches when she got crocked to the eyeballs, but in a good cause. You see, she had to drink the ornery carpetbagger under the table while Joan was driving away the cattle. When he passes out, gramma sways to her feet and drinks a final toast—to Jefferson Davis.

Other fine character parts are played by Robert Barrat as the carpetbagger, Walter Brennan as an old ranch foreman, Raymond Hatton as an old Indian fighter who prefers the tomahawk, Francis Ford as a Southern veteran.

An unnamed hero of the film is certainly the cameraman. Not only are the action and thrill shots practically superb, but the flashes of the river and certain cloud effects are as phantasmally lovely as any ever caught by the lens.

The Stage Bill.

George Hall and his orchestra, with Singer Dolly Dawn, offer the current rhythm crazes, including "A-Tisket, A-Tasket," "Flatfoot Floogie" and the "Butcher Boy," all with smartly contrived trimmings highly pleasing to the audience. Always a hit, this crew.

Impersonator Steve Evans does a priceless bit as Mussolini, but spoils it with a tasteless and dated climax. Other Evans impressions include Bob Burns, Joe Brown, "Popeye" and Lon Chaney, as the Hunchback of Notre Dame. This last should explain any unwonted disturbance around the Chaney tomb.

As a juggler of barrels and the like, Van Cello is at the top of his class in timing, skill and grace. Sylvia and Clemence, rough and tumble girls, are mildly funny, a bit too devoted to derriere comedy.

Metropolitan

An interesting picture this, clever enough to earn a second week downtown.

The distinguished Dr. Clitterhouse, society surgeon, sometimes has strange commodities in his medical kit—stolen jewels mixed indiscriminately with his surgical implements. He has entirely for the purpose of research, undertaken to live a double life, that of doctor and of criminal. The criminal half is to determine the effect of such a life upon its participants, to judge by blood tests, heart examinations and physicological questionings during commissions of crimes, just how a criminal's life eventually changes his whole personality. The good doctor does not seem to realize that his little excursion into the underworld might alter his dual personality, but it does.

We didn't see this on the stage—we wish we had. Sir Cedric Hardwicke must have been a very different Clitterhouse from Edward G. Robinson. Robinson has been a gangster so long, talked out of the corner of his mouth for so many reels, shot so many gats, that he is, to us at least, a strange figure as a doctor just dabbling in crime.

However, for all our quibbling, there is suspense and excitement. Claire Trevor is excellent and quite convincing in her tough-but-not-too-tough characterization, and our new flame, Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom, is comfortingly present. As a matter of fact, most of the gangsters are very pleasant people—stout fellas and most co-operative—except Humphrey Bogart, a snarling sort of chap, too easily disposed of for one of his apparent metal.

The subsidiaries include a particularly fascinating film of Siam and its beautiful temples, the newsreel, and an amusing Merrie Melody, "The General Lied 'Til Dawn."

'Alexander's Ragtime Band', Palace, Is Smash Hit; Goofy Comedy Runs Wild in 'Boy Meets Girl', Earle

'Cavalcade of Music' Is Speedy Entertainment of First Rank.

"ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a screen play by Kathryn Scola and Lamar Trotti, adapted to the screen by Richard Sherman, with lyrics and music by Irving Berlin, co-starring Alice Faye, Tyrone Power and Don Ameche, with Ethel Merman, Jack Haley, Jean Hersholt, Helen Westley, John Carradine, Paul Hurst, Wally Vernon, Ruth Terry, Douglas Fowley, Chick Chandler, Eddie Collins, Joseph Crehan, Robeert Gleckler, Dixie Dunbar, Joe King, Charles Coleman, Stanley Andrews, Grady Sutton, Selmar Jackson, Tyler Brooke and Donald Douglas. Directed by Henry King. At Loew's Palace Theater.

There is nothing about "Alexander's Ragtime Band" that isn't sure-fire.

BELL.

With becoming modesty, Irving Berlin has subordinated the personal aspects of his spectacular career to the movement of a closely-woven story that traces the rise of modern American music from the title-song in a San Francisco honky-tonk to a starch - and - decollete orchestra concert in Carnegie Hall, New York, a quarter of a century later; into the warp and woof of this romantic comedy-drama have been interlaced the cream of the Berlin compositions since "Alexander" first rocked the Nation in 1911; the members of the cast are tried-and-true players who have brought distinction to innumerable film plays and the direction is by that ace veteran of his craft, Henry King, who has been a top-drawer director ever since "Tol'able David," and before. All of these unique assets have been embellished with a quality of "showmanship" that makes "Alexander's Ragtime Band" a practically perfect musical entertainment.

The drama has its inception with the misadventures of a young musician who has aspirations to become a concert artist on the violin. Through force of circumstances, he applies for an audition in "Dirty Eddie's Cabaret" and secures it through the kindly, if misguided, intervention of the bartender. Having lost his case of standard music, Roger Grant relies upon a piece of sheet music left on the bar by a gaudy young woman as the medium of his demonstration of the talents of his meager little band. With the girl singing the pilfered song, by way of protecting her right to its ownership, the piece becomes an instant hit and sets in motion the amusing, romantic and turbulent events that culminate in a national triumph and the consummation of a great love.

Is Nostalgic Triumph.

The action of the play progresses naturally and plausibly through the gradual development of modern music from squalid obscurity to artistic eminence. In each interval of the story the Irving Berlin songs that were most popular in that day are introduced with a melodious and nostalgic effect that provides the picture with an amazingly tuneful score and a variety of incident and movement that has seldom, if ever, been approximated on the screen. The emergence of Roger Grant (Alexander) and his ragtime band from the Barbary Coast bistros to the concert stage; Stella Kirby's eventual separation from the band by a Charles Dillingham Broadway contract to star in musical comedy; the outbreak of the Great War with its training camp activities and sudden embarkation of the troops for France; Roger's undoing by the grim terrors of the titanic struggle; Bill's graduation from the role of bartender to speak-easy proprietor in Greenwich Village, the final reunion of Stella and "Alexander's Ragtime Band", and the climacteric episode of the Carnegie Hall concert, with Stella listening-in over a taxicab radio, all mark recurrent high spots in an engrossingly vibrant and tune-backed work that has no exact counterpart in the whole history of the cinema.

In the title role of "Alexander," Tyrone Power does the best work he has ever brought to the screen and is closely seconded by Alice Faye, as Stella, and Don Ameche, as Jerry Allen, one of the "charter members" of the original band that soars to glory in the face of many vicissitudes. Their work is so diverse and variegated that it stamps each as tops in his field. To Miss Faye, of course, fall many of the choice Berlin ballads—there are more than two dozen of them logically introduced during the unfolding of the dramatic narrative which they always adorn but never dominate too obtrusively—sung in a manner that will thrill any theatergoer with a memory of the past. Many other memorable numbers are sung by Ethel Merman and still others by Jack Haley, Wally Vernon, prancing choruses and mighty ensembles.

Character Actors Score.

Jean Hersholt and Helen Westley, admirable players, are impressive as the sticklers for classic music, finally won over to the new vogue, and Paul Hurst takes on new stature as a character comedian by his portrayal of the role of Bill, the barkeep. His bit with the baby carriage, back in prohibition days, is a gem. Hosts of others add to the rounded enjoyment of a picture that is a star-spangled wow from first flash to final fadeout. The listening hit by John Carradine, as the taxi driver, and Miss Faye, as his fare, sitting outside Carnegie Hall, is a model of romantic suspense and effective direction.

It seems worth repeating that there isn't anything about "Alexander's Ragtime Band" that doesn't stamp it "big" in both concept and execution—assuming, of course, that its only purpose was to provide superlative entertainment and to prove that Irving Berlin's music is better and more enduring than many of even his most enthusiastic admirers ever have suspected.

"String Bean Jack," a Technicolor cartoon comedy of the first rank; a screen miniature, "The City of Little Men," and a new issue of the "News of the Day" supplement a feature that needs no bolstering.

She Was the Cause of It All!

MARIE WILSON

as she appears in the slightly muddle-headed role of the young mother, "Susie," in Bella and Samuel Spewack's own film version of their stage hit, "Boy Meets Girl," chief screen feature for the current week at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. James Cagney and Pat O'Brien appear in the co-stellar male roles, with an able cast in support.

Cagney and O'Brien Are in Top Comic Form; Martin on Stage.

"BOY MEETS GIRL." Warner Brothers picturization of the stage hit by Bella and Samuel Spewack, adapted to the screen by the authors, costarring James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, with Marie Wilson, Ralph Bellamy, Frank McHugh, Dick Foran, Bruce Lester, Ronald Reagan, Paul Clark, Penny Singleton, Dennis Moore, Harry Seymour, Bert Hanlon and James Stephenson. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. Previewed Monday, August 22. At the Earle Theater.

In the matter of hurling harpoons into the lunatic frenzies of picture-making, Hollywood not only can "take it," in the classic words of Edward G. (Little Caesar) Robinson, but also can "dish it out." The Spewacks' lusty farce of "Boy Meets Girl," already familiar to Washington in its stage form, brings a new amplification of its comic content to the screen of the Earle Theater this week, as one of the most hilarious film comedies of the season—on the goofy side.

The whole structure of "Boy Meets Girl" rests upon the play's ability to shoot stinging darts—none of them poisoned—into the quivering flesh of the big-wigs and nitwits of the film capital. The symbols of the West Coast's insanity are two slightly insane script writers, who have a problem on their hands in the fashioning of a new vehicle for the Western star of a studio that is tottering on the brink of financial collapse and reorganization as a result of too many flopperinos. They are in the midst of one of those legendary "story conferences" when a commissary waitress comes into the executives' offices with a tray of lunch, faints dead away and explodes the disconcerting news that there is nothing much the matter, except that she is going to have a baby!

The Messrs. Benson and Law, tearing their hair and chewing their pencils—and with that lunch standing right there on the table—seize upon the prospective advent of the unborn child as a convenient way out. They place it under contract and proceed to shape their scenario around the to-be-new-born babe, relegating Larry Toms, the Cowboy Adonis, to a mere supporting role. Simple enough, up to that point. But once the baby arrives, it is something else again. The entire motion-picture establishment goes mad, including the hilarious plot contrived by Belle and Samuel Spewack.

For Laughter Only.

There is no profit for anyone concerned in attempting to skeletonize what happens in the subsequent footages of "Boy Meets Girl." It would sound very silly—which it is. The only way to discover how convulsingly amusing sheer insanity can be made is to view the film. For those who find it possible to surrender to the extravagances of sheer farce it will prove a stimulating late-summer tonic; to those who take the world and themselves too seriously, I wouldn't be so sure. In the preview projection room, it seemed to a majority of the drama desks to be extremely funny. Yesterday's audiences at the Earle reflected a similar point of view.

Certainly the piece is played like a streak of lightning by a cast that has been judiciously selected to get the most out of situations that are as frantic as they are fantastic. James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, as the playwriting zanies, are exceedingly well teamed, both being adepts at closely clipped and rapid speech and each, at heart, a comedian. Mr. Cagney has a little the better of the going, thanks to a part a trifle more abundant in opportunities than Mr. O'Brien's. The capability of these costars is quite matched by the unsuspected ability of Marie Wilson as a comedienne who is as completely competent to sustain the interest and the fun of a "dumb Dora" role as she has been heretofore to make "bit" parts effective.

These three are supported by a long and energetic supporting cast that enters wholly into the balmy spirit of the antic comedy. Ralph Bellamy, as an harassed producer; Frank McHugh, as a chiseling actors' agent; Dick Foran, as the sagebrush star, and Bruce Lester, the "extra," who falls desperately in love with Susie, all do trip-hammer work in a mild tornado of action. The lesser roles are played with equally comic effectiveness. Script writers may all be crazy, but not the Spewacks.

Martin in Fine Voice.

Tony Martin and his orchestra and specialists were a hit on the stage at the Earle yesterday afternoon. One's first impression is that the brasses dominate the orchestra a bit too blatantly, but that is only in the first number. After that, they tone down and provide splendid background for their leader's singing and the other acts on the bill.

The Martin voice is in fine fettle this week—clear, strong and resonant—and is heard in a number of popular ballads and a reminiscent medley of songs Tony has introduced in the considerable number of pictures in which he has been featured in the last few years. All were resoundingly applauded at yesterday's second performance. So were the songs—"A Tisket, A Tasket" among them—sung by Lola Jensen, a restless, blonde canary who closed her individual turn with as speedy and intricate a tap dance as has been seen here in recent seasons and a storm of applause. Beau Lee's comic ditties met with similar enthusiasm.

Other acts are introduced by Mr Martin, who serves as his own master of ceremonies, in The Honey Family, six Australian dancing acrobats, three men and three women, who work in white ties and tails and long skirts, with no apparent impediment to their remarkable feats, and Al Bernie, one of the better of the impersonators aiming their caricatures at Hollywood celebrities. They clicked just like the rest.

As a matter of fact, the entire bill clicks.

Bing Records.

New Bing Crosby recordings were made for two pictures on the same day recently. He recorded "Small Fry," from "Sing You Sinners," for phonograph records, and "I Have Eyes," for "Paris Honeymoon," the picture in which he appears opposite Franciska Gaal.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Aug. 26.—It may be dog days for you, but here it's been one of the most exciting weeks of the year. Started with a bang when Charles Boyer warmed his new home. And what a home! Has that boy got it!

HEDDA HOPPER

You enter a cobblestone courtyard and pass through huge copper doors into a marble-floored reception hall. The whole first floor is marble, except the drawing room, which is carpeted until you seem to sink down to the knees.

It's a huge room, done in beige and white and containing rare paintings, a collection of jade, next to none; Chinese objets d'art and a marble fireplace brought over from his Paris apartment.

The dining-room table is old-gold glass, with an elaborate Fragonard design on the under side. Off that is a room where you push a button and the ceiling rolls back, revealing the sky. Nothing like this in Hollywood. The room is filled with Chinese dwarf trees, tropical plants, birds, flowers, fish (not including the guests).

An enormous playroom includes a projection machine, bar at one end and great easy chairs. It's glass inclosed and seats 50 persons at the same table. The room was built over the former owner's filled-in swimming pool. Off that, a brick terrace and patio with light shining from the trees. On the terrace, a ping-pong table and all sorts of sports. Easy chairs to loll in while you wait your turn.

Boyer dug out the side of a mountain to build a tennis court and swimming pool. (All I've been able to afford is a gopher hole.)

A winding stairway leads to his apartment and the circular library. Here's another fireplace from Paris. The room is paneled in bleached wood. First editions. Leather-covered desk. Directly below, Pat's sitting, dressing and bedroom—which contains the biggest bed in the world.

Boyer has a fortune in paintings and rare bindings. Even the ash trays are made of jade, cornelian and other semiprecious stones. The whole thing is done in exquisite taste.

Everyone, knowing it was a gala, wore his latest doo-dads. And entered with the best foot forward.

Joan Crawford, weighted down with four star sapphires big as silver dollars, in black taffeta over white organza, hair high—she's lucky, it's becoming to her. Joan was accompanied by Jimmy Stewart. He'll be known as Hollywood's handy man if he's not careful.

After dinner Joan and Miriam Hopkins discussed babies. I understand Joan will adopt a boy and a girl.

Hedy LaMarr spent most of the evening by the pool with David Niven, much to the annoyance of his best friend, Reggie Garner, who wasn't quick enough to conceal his displeasure.

Frances Dee, Sandra (Mrs. Gary) Cooper, Virginia Zanuck, Joan Bennett—were a quartet difficult to equal in pulchritude.

Pink champagne was the order of the evening—and dawn came up like thunder as the guest said good night.

Pasasic, N. J., gave a music festival with 500 citizens raising money to send their 15-year-old songbird, Lennie Lynn, to the Trocadero next Sunday. The Troc has been a showcase for Deanna Durbin, Judy Garland, Martha Raye, Gertrude Niesen and Michael Whalen. Here's luck, Jenny—I mean Lennie.

The Troc is the last round-up for headliners who would be doing vaudeville if there were any left. I heard Jack Major, of Paducah, Ky., there. He's the nearest thing to Will Rogers we've come across. Certain to be grabbed for pictures. And how Bert Frohman, Hal Nieman and Johnny Hyman know their stuff. Here Judy Garland did a mean rhumba with Johnny Downs, and Blumey switched to Joan St. Clair.

Harry Richman put on a great show at the Clover Club last night. He'll never win a beauty prize, but he could teach all Hollywood how to put over a song.

And tonight, under the stars, we'll listen to the greatest of them all—Flagstad. Like Caruso and Marion Anderson, her voice moves me more than any I've ever listened to. Yes, you've said it; we're mad about music.

"KEEP SMILING." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a screen play by Frances Hyland and Albert Ray, starring Jane Withers, with Gloria Stuart, Henry Wilcoxon, Helen Westley, Jed Prouty, Douglas Fowley, Robert Allen, Pedro de Cordoba, Claudia Coleman, Paula Rae Wright, the Three Nelsons, Etta McDaniel, Carmencita Johnson, Mary McCarthy and Hal K. Dawson. Directed by Herbert I. Leeds. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Sally Stroud.

"Keep Similing" is sure to cause all the youngsters to do just that and it is possible the grownups may find something amusing in its scenes.

Jane Withers is a precocious child who invades Hollywood, rejuvenates a drunken uncle, refurbishes his love affair, becomes a movie star, and somewhere in the running gives an impersonation of Bobby Breen which should make him sue her.

Grown taller, with another chin to her credit, Jane also has acquired further skill in her acting. True, she "mugs" a good deal, screams quite a bit, throws her weight around a trifle too much, but withal, presents such an attractive spectacle of a healthy child thoroughly enjoying herself, that she may be forgiven much.

Henry Wilcoxon, as the derelict uncle, is extremely good. Gloria Stuart has nothing to do but be sympathetic, she does very well.

Several scenes are particularly good. There is one sequence where Jane panics the Negro cook, another where she delivers some lines from "Julius Caesar," and finally the big sob number at the end. All in the good-for-the-family tradition; guaranteed to add nothing to the stature of Jane, but merely to the great good will she enjoys among the movie children.

"Mrs. O'Leary's Cow" 'is the subject of a cartoon which just misses being funny. The newsreel has some fine clips of the President at Kingston, Ontario.

And, finally, the first chapter of Republic's newest serial, "Dick Tracy Returns," unfolds in a burst of fisticuffs, pistol fire, staccato repartee and bloodcurdling action. Square-jawed Tracy carries on in the manner in which readers of the cartoon strip are accustomed to expect. The menace of this particular chapter is a villainous old man with five criminally inclined sons. They pull off a job, grab some coin and Tracy, hot on their trail, somehow gets smashed up in an airplane. And now we have to wait 'til next Friday to see is he dead or alive!

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, Aug. 26.

FINANCE DEPT.: Dixie Davis, who will take the witness stand to testify against Jimmy Hines, soon will discover that his legal difficulties will not end with the conclusion of this trial . . . The Collector of Internal Revenue has marked for prosecution the income tax return filed by Davis for the year 1936.

• • • •

LABOR DEPT.: Homer Martin, head of the United Automobile Workers Union, was in New York last Friday . . . Martin prepared for issuance of publicity release in which scathing reference was made to John L. Lewis, his C. I. O. chieftain . . . The statement was released—and then recalled.

• • • •

ILLUSTRATED DEPT.: A prominent New Yorker was notified recently that it was possible to obtain criminal photographs of a high official of the German-American Bund, whose desires are somewhat abnormal . . . The New Yorker, before agreeing to purchase these photographs, first wanted to ascertain whether this would prove that the Nazi official was guilty of violating the New York penal code . . . He therefore phoned his lawyers for a legal opinion and was told that no crime was committed . . . The law firm was that of John W. Davis.

• • • •

DRAMA DEPT.: Thornton Wilder, author of "Our Town," still is waiting for word from Max Reinhardt regarding the latter's production of Wilder's new play, "The Merchant of Yonkers" . . . Wilder now in Hollywood, is determined to stay there until he hears from Reinhardt . . . And so all his letters now are date-lined: "Hollywood, Calif.—till Doomsday."

• • • •

PERSONALS: Three months ago Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., assured a group of us that if his expected offspring would be a boy, he wouldn't be named "Franklin D. Roosevelt 3d." F. D. Jr. explained that he would not burden a child with a President's name and that, mindful of his own experiences, it would be better for the infant to develop his own personality and fame—rather than be tagged forevermore as a President descendant . . . This proposal, however, was overruled—but a compromise has been effected. They call the baby "Joe."

• • • •

• • • •

EMPLOYMENT DEPT.: In the New York Customs House are employed a number of men and women who reside in the congressional district where the Fay-O'Connor political battle now is being waged . . . Tuesday afternoon these employes were assembled and reminded of a ruling prohibiting Governmental employes from participating in such a political campaign.

• • • •

EMILY POST DEPT.: Lupe Velez arrived in New York this week, announcing that now she is a subdued, retiring lady and had learned to be in complete control of her emotions . . . Last night Miss Velez attended a performance of "I Married an Angel" . . . The retiring lady sat in the first row and was subdued—for two acts . . . She placed one hand upon her hip, leaned across the orchestra pit and told the band: "Lookame, I'm an angel, too" . . . "Wait'll you see those six beautiful angels in the next act," one of the musicians stated . . . "Beautiful," Miss Velez shouted, "in a pig's eye!"

• • • •

FOREIGN DISPATCH: When Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy first arrived in London he discovered that the household help at the embassy were accustomed only to the stiff tradition of Kennedy's diplomatic predecessor . . . "That's not the kind of atmosphere I want around my home," the Ambassador instructed them. The employes, however, persisted in their cold, dignified ways—until the arrival of Teddy Kennedy, the youngest member of the family. Teddy, 7 years old, marched into the elevator and operated it himself—up and down—for exactly 35 minutes.

College Girl Frowns on Uncultured Women Who Flirt With Strange Men; She Doesn't Give Them a Glance.

IS IT POSSIBLE to draw the line between innocent amiability and seeming invitation of behavior, in an attractive girl's dealings with chance-met men on city streets, in restaurants and on public conveyances? On August 15, a man asked how to cope with his 28-year-old fiancee's luckless propensity for meeting with presumptuous advances from strange men, within the hour—or even quarter hour—of their accidental encounter. He was advised that she is a regional-type coquette; "that she knows what she is doing and what she can expect . . . and just how far she can do without embarrassing or unduly endangering herself;" and that the power to obviate such advances, without giving offense, lies entirely in her hands if she cares to employ it. Many readers indorsed this analysis; others disputed it. One woman telephoned this desk and explicitly requested that the subject be re-opened for discussion, in order that "Wondering" (the young man in the case), might see the situation through other eyes than those of this columnist. So here is the situation as others see it. M. H.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I would like to say what I think about a girl to whom "Wondering" is engaged, whose artless friendliness and charming smile cause her to receive marked attentions from men of all ages. I am 18 years old and a college graduate. I have always prided myself on being friendly and cordial to everyone—that is, everyone whom I know. I am considered good looking and naturally I am often conscious of the glances and perhaps stares of various men and boys when I am walking down the street, but I never flash a gaping stranger a disarming smile, nor ever glance in his direction if it can be helped, and certainly I never speak.

As for this girl's being ignorant of what behavior is becoming to "the sweet, refined girl that she is," any intelligent girl of 14, whether she lives in a large city or a country town, and certainly a woman of 28, knows that accepting advances from strange men is in very poor taste, besides being a gateway to trouble. A woman who, at the advanced age of 28, flirts with any man she may meet in the street can be labeled in no way but common and cheap.

• • • •

Besides, she is certainly not displaying very good judgment in telling her fiance about all her silly adventures and expecting him to regard her still as an uninformed school girl who is merely returning friendliness which she considers unselfishly offered—but apparently he swallows such stories whole. A girl need not be rude to strangers, but no girl of culture would allow a conversation on a bus to reach the point where the man or boy feels free to ask for a date.

FIRM REJECTOR.

Frozen Faced Yankees.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In the fifth and sixth paragraphs of your answer to "Wondering" you speak as though no one ever flirted but the Southern girl. Personally, I would rather see someone with a genuinely friendly smile than have to look at the frozen faces of the Yankees. Being a Southerner to the bone, I recken I ought to know something about Southern culture, which follows the Golden Rule—"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." In other words, if you want friends, you must first be friendly yourself.

• • • •

It seems to me that "Wondering" should be mighty thankful that his fiancee has no worse fault than being friendly. The fact that she has never accepted any of the invitations of these men shows that she means nothing by smiling at them or allowing them to walk and talk with her while they conduct themselves as gentlemen.

• • • •

What girl hasn't had the experience of a stranger's speaking to her at some time or other, whether she smiled at him or not? . . . Honest and truly, I think "Wondering" is making a mountain out of a molehill. He doesn't think he is jealous, but he would be the type of husband who would lock his wife in the bonds of his own concept of propriety to keep her from talking with the insurance man or the grocery boy . . . However, she won't be in Washington long before she forgets how to smile and becomes another "frozen face." Sincerely,

SOUTHERN GIRL.

He'll Wonder, Indeed.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In regard to the letter from "Wondering" I wish to say that if he marries that girl and she keeps on flirting with every man who looks at her, he really will be "wondering." It seems that a man 35 years old should realize that a woman of 28 isn't a young kid . . . He ought to know that any woman can smile at and make friends with strangers and that she doesn't have to be pretty or charming to do it. I have always been taught not to be talkative with strange men, and I don't consider that a man is well reared who will try to speak with a strange woman on the streets.

FAITHFUL READER.

Golden Opportunity Lost.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: You certainly lost a chance, a wonderful opportunity, to do your daily good deed in your answer to "Wondering." His sweetheart is just a clean, fine-thinking young lady, happy in her daily life and expressing it in all her contacts . . . She has nothing to hide and he loves and trusts her, and you would make him suspicious of her.

• • • •

He should get down on his knees and thank God for her and know what happiness really is. Many think they know; but very, very few ever experience it. That is the reason for our busy divorce courts. I'll tell you a story of my own life. My first husband, a beautiful character, who idolized me, died, and afterward I married his chum . . . He was apt to be jealous, but jealousy is wounded pride, and I soon cured him of that . . . Please revive this question and see if you cannot be responsible for a few more smiles to replace the frowns so prominent on faces and lives through misunderstanding.

E. E. S.

The Case of Sally Lou.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I don't know when I have enjoyed anything as much as I did your answer to that trusting man (I've forgotten his signature) who is so worried because men try to date his Southern sweetheart wherever she goes. You certainly called the turn on that wide-eyed, innocent gal . . . We have one in our office and it is interesting to watch her work: provocative smiles, pouting lips, tears when the situation seems to call for it and, if all else fails, a last resort to a "swoon." She brings out the whole bag of tricks, and I will say that she is an artist.

• • • •

When the rest of us girls in the office get a headache we can take an aspirin and go on working. But not Sally Lou. The other day she developed a headache and the boss put her in a cab and paid the driver 50 cents to take her home. But Sally Lou, after getting in the cab, suddenly remembered she hadn't sent the usual birthday present to dear old Uncle Remus, a family retainer, so she had the driver drop her at a downtown store instead of at home. Since the fare there was only 20 cents, she wanted the driver to refund the other 30 cents. But he was a sordid, stony-hearted person and just wouldn' refund.

• • • •

She was so indignant that she told the boss next day and actually put it over. He not only believed her but was sympathetic and lost in admiration—so sweet and unselfish of her, with all that terrible headache, to sacrifice her comfort for a poor old colored man. It was noble; that's what it was! Well, the gentleman who wrote you need have no fear for his particular Sally Lou. She can take care of herself and him and all the rest of the men she meets. It's born in her.

MARTHA.

Southern Girl Confesses.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I really had to laugh at how neatly you "hit the nail on the head" in your reply to "Wondering." I wonder how many Southern girls are willing to admit how right you are. Very few, I'll wager. But I am one who is willing to admit it . . . I found out, shortly after coming to Washington, that my "personality and charm" were often mistaken for "freshness." I tried to tone myself down or, rather, to dim the light. And I did—so successfully that upon my return home I heard comments all around about the change in me. I heard that I was developing into a regular snob. In order to retain my previous standing with the crowd I reverted to type once more and again became the "charmer" and the "life of the party."

• • • •

I tried for several years to turn off and on my "charm," as the situation demanded, but found it such a bother that in desperation I decided just to be myself and to strike off my list those who misunderstood my friendliness. This I did until I met the "one and only." For a long time he accepted me for what I was, then gradually began to take exception to my speaking to "everybody" and accused me of disloyalty and flirting. He finally capped the climax by saying, "You would never be satisfied with just one man" and taking his departure.

• • • •

Yes, we Southern girls have learned the "art of charm," and that is one reason why the women hate us like poison, why the men doubt our genuineness and why we are always invited again—to be the life of the party!

Women Like Them, Stylists Declare of New Fad Shoes

St. Louis (AP).—Aren't they clumsy looking?

That is what some may say about the newest fad—triple soles—in women's shoes for fall.

But wholesalers and retailers alike declare "We've got something there." The women like them, stylists point out, especially for street and sports wear.

"And they are comfortable, too," said a women assistant in one stylist's office.

This new shoe—a member of the sandal family—is being shown in all price fields, so within a month or so the "platform or wedge" sole should be a common sight on the street.

Average thickness of the sole is from one-quarter to three-eighths of an inch. They come in both high and low heels.

New Fall Ribbed Fabrics Give Slimming Effect

SILKS are stepping forth in many new guises this fall and one predominant feature is their rough surface. They are crinkled, nubbed, ribbed, seeded and blistered. Some are wooly, and others are mossy like velvet. Ribbed effects are particularly important and used in horizontal, vertical or diagonal effects. One of the most popular silks for fall dresses is matelasse crepe, a rich looking material which is a rayon mixture designed to give the effect of wool, taffeta or crepe. The frock at left of black ribbon matelasse shows how this material may be used to give a flattering slender line to the figure. This vertically striped material was woven on a Jacquard loom to give a shiny raised ribbon surface which is emphasized by shiny acorn buttons and a cut-out leaf belt in shiny patent leather. White ruching around the neck and bracelet length pushed-up sleeves add to its feminine falttery. Designed by Herbert Sondheim.

Preserve Recipes May Win Award In Post Contest

Preserving season is probably due to reach an all-time high for abundance and quality as fruit crops have been unusually plump this year. Thrifty housewives have already been taking advantage of Mother Nature's bounty and have been availing themselves of pears, plums, peaches, citrus fruits and the bright new bushels of apples that are just starting to arrive. For several weeks, daily calls have been received by the Food Editor, on how to brandy peaches, pickle crisp watermelon rind or ginger pineapple.

Have you a preserve recipe of unquestioned accuracy and delicacy? Do you feel that your grape and apple preserves are the best in the world? If so, don't fail to enter the new recipe contest as it may be your good fortune to win one of five cash awards. First prize is for $3.00, second for $2.00 and there are three additional prizes of $1.00 each. Mail all carefully written, tested recipes to Alice Clayton, the Post Food Editor. All entries must be received before September 3.

Full Skirts?

Most of the skirts which go in for fullness this fall will confine this fullness to the front of the dress or maybe the back, seldom at the side. The slim silhouette looks newest.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Aug. 26.

THE SEASON for pouring the pretty young ladies into "society" at Newport is about over, and it is a salutary process to look back, briefly, at what has gone on in that sainted and mildewed spot this month.

ALICE HUGHES.

Usually the hapless daughters of the rich, born to be victims of news cameramen, wait until autumn for their official debuts in our town. By that time the beautiful youths of the stag line are ready for business and to leap to a coming-out party at the drop of a bid. Lately, however, it has been considered very hotcha to toss these 18-year-old babies, who barely know which way is south, to the wolves during the summer season at Newport. Eleanor Young, well-made daughter of a newcomer from the West, was so hurled, and she became No. 1 Glamour Girl for at least ten minutes. This year the hottest spotlight fell upon a youngster named Leslie Hyde Ripley, and a pretty thing, indeed.

• • • •

Astors and Vanderbilts and Dukes and Prince George of Russia (whose Newport saloon was a busto) were on hand in riotous profusion. The Ripley fortune came from soda pop. The debutante is plumpish, and pal of her shapely cousin, Leslie Bogert, who popped out four years ago and is a famed big apple hopper. Meyer Davis, of course, led the band, or it would not have been official. My spouse thinks of Uncle Meyer with much pleasure, since Davis ran the Le Paradis Night Club in Washington 10 years ago, and shrugged off many a modest check for him.

• • • •

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Inez Calloway Robb, clever society scribe who made a great and well-deserved newspaper rep here, now toils for the syndicate for which I have the pleasure and privilege of laboring. . . . Our town is appalled at the number of suicides among its policemen—over 70 in the past four years, with a force of slightly less than 20,000. A horrid rate. So now a "trouble clinic has been organized to struggle with coppers' problems—most of which seem to be concerned with either finance or health. New York cops, who are world famous, have the jitters, and something must be done. The "clinic" is a move to help out.

• • • •

It isn't often that we see Katharine Hepburn around the ice-cooled lunch spots, so when she tore a salad limb from limb at "21" a few moons ago, even the supercilious waiters dropped a few ripe olives. Katie's freckles are in fine August form, and the story from Hollywood that her dear friend Howard Hughes may star her in a film is interesting, at least, since she is out of work at the moment. But she should not be for long, after that brilliant performance in "Holiday." What a honey THAT was.

• • • •

But "Algiers" is still my pet movie of the summer, and Hedy Lamarr is still the dream girl of the boys here. That Sigrid Gurie is no ice floe, either.

• • • •

Sometimes the quick thinking of mothers seems really instinctive. The other day young Mrs. Helen Lashin was wheeling her 7-month-old son when a runaway auto hopped the curb and came at her. In a flash she tossed the baby from harm's way; but she herself was crushed by a wheel. It happened like a lightning bolt. The little boy was saved, but Helen may die.

• • • •

All right, suppose we do comb up our hair, instead of leaving it long and lovely, like Madeleine Carroll's. What do we stick in it? Fresh flowers are being used a great deal, and so are plain tortoise-shell combs. The newest is a little girl bow of velvet in any color, fashioned to earrings. Very nice.

Black Velvet Frock To Impress Stag Line

New York (AP).—For college evening clothes, designers have turned out a few ideas intended to "knock the stag line cold." Among them is a black velvet frock with a vee decolletage and a wide sweeping skirt made over a hooped petticoat of American beauty taffeta.

There are others of white satin, rust, blue and green taffeta—virtually all made with wide "swooshing" skirts. New flowers and jeweled ornaments are ready to add glamour to collegiate coiffures.

The GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay.

'You Haven't Changed.'

She felt a sense of triumph as she caught a glimpse of herself in the Pullman mirror. Her new permanent lay in sleek little curls; the bleach she had gotten yesterday at the beauty shop had taken the muddiness out of her face; her new $18.50 foundation gave her a svelte line—that heaven she had kept up her exercises in all that heat—and her new black dress and pert hat made her seem quite distingue and Eastern.

Yes, she was able to face any of them—after five years. She could see their appraising eyes—on the street, at church, at the luncheons, bridge parties, the family gatherings. She could see them looking her over searchingly, almost eagerly, for some scar of the last five years' battling, hear the surprise and faint disappointment in their tones: "Why, you haven't changed a bit!"

It was strange how after an absence of a few years people always expected you to come hobbling in on a cane and with a long, gray beard. Strange how they always thought of you as getting faded and feeble, or fat and settled, or worn down with work or dissipation, or changed into some alien—and worsened—personality while they themselves, of course, went on in the same old patterns.

That was one reason it was always so hard to go home on vacation . . . Well—she smiled to herself grimly—she would show them! Certainly she had worked hard enough these last two weeks getting ready. What with shopping and fittings and shampoos and facials and working on her hips and watching her posture, and seeing that every hook, eye and snapper was in place, why it was worse than getting ready to marry or die.

But it was worth it. Especially for Marjorie Simpers and Lucia Burlap—they were the worst cats of all. And, of course, old Mrs. Waggle, who was always figuring up people's birthdays; and Mamie Diggs, who had let herself go and was so eagerly looking for company; and Cousin Marty, who was always wondering if she "had a fellow yet?" Oh, there were plenty of them and, thank heaven, she was ready to face them.

She settled back in her seat and watched the familiar landscape glide past. It was rather nice to be going home. There really were a lot of people she wanted to see. Harriet and Sally and, of course, Rodney—and old Prof. Curtis. How would they all look? Would—would they have changed?

Well—she straightened up and surveyed herself in the mirror—they wouldn't find her looking any different. Still . . . still . . . that wouldn't be exactly what they would be searching for . . . these people who really knew her . . . who when they gazed at her would be looking past her coiffure and her pert little hat and her black dess and her sleek figure . . . looking . . . looking . . . for something else.

She could feel their eyes upon her, kindly, yet searching; sense the air about them—pregnant with the unspoken question. Well, after all, had she changed? What directions had her mind—and spirit—taken in five years? Had they turned into new channels, or followed the old grooves? Was she the same person who left five years ago . . . thinking the same thoughts . . . holding the same ideas . . . hugging the same prejudices . . . seeing life through the same perspective? What had five years done—inside of her? Or had it done nothing? Was it—could it be true, that she "hadn't' changed?"

• • • •

Modern Science Turns Attention To Mind's Study

Seeks to Find What Makes for Success or Failure.

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

One of the most interesting matters confronting the medical profession is the study of the problems of human behaviorism and their effect upon society.

Very little is actually known about the brain and its workings. We know that certain parts of it have to do with voluntary acts such as walking, talking, eating, etc., but the major portion of it remains a great mystery. We speak rather glibly about "emotional centers," but do not know where they are situated or if they actually exist. If a human brain is examined after death it cannot be determined if that person during life possessed an unusual intelligence or was just average. It cannot be determined if the person was highly emotional or very sober and serious-minded.

It remains for future generations to disclose, if they can, why nature turns out of its mold a Webster, a Shakespeare, a Napoleon or a Charlie Chaplin.

While so little is actually known about the construction and workings of the human brain, the situation is far from hopeless because a great deal is actually known about behaviorism and many of the motives which activate it.

It is difficult or impossible to explain why individuals in a family choose to become farmers, lawyers, doctors or ministers. Furthermore, it is not easy to explain why certain ones are successful and others are not. It may be advanced that some are just indolent by choice; some achieve success by accident; others simply have hard luck; yet there may be something more behind the scenes that makes for success or failure.

Possibly the eminently successful are the unwitting recipients of more complete germ plasma, and endowed from the start with the elements that insure success. Possibly it is a matter of environment or chance contacts or mental impressions during the adolescent years.

Whatever the reason, it is trite to say that the greatest difference does develop with mature years, and it may be that this is beneficial to society. Certainly it is evident that a great diversity in occupations and tastes is necessary to build and maintain society. At times it seems that the world becomes a bit top heavy with certain classes, just as at present with our large group of politicians and government employes, but this is merely a symptom of a distorted mental balance and will pass. There also seems to be a growing conviction that everyone is entitled to be a captain or colonel in the scheme of things, leaving only a bedraggled remnant to do the work of the world—another distorted point of view which will pass.

Diversity and difference of opinion add interest to life. Certainly it would be embarrassing if all of us were endowed with the same desires and fell in love with the same girl.

Stylists Finally Give Short Girl Clothes Break

New Coiffures Also Aid Her in Appearing Taller and Slimmer.

By Ida Jean Kain.

AT LAST the short, stocky girl has been given a break by the stylists, for most of the latest fashions seem to have been designed for the express purpose of making her look tall and slim.

And it's about time, we think, for while more than half of us belong to this type, it's the tall, slim woman who has always been the pet of fashion. You know what the designers did to us last year with sleeves! A fine choice we had between the leg o' mutton variety and the broad shouldered dresses, both making the short girl look that much shorter.

This season, from what we can see in the advance styles, the fullness is up rather than out, and it is very flattering indeed to the girl who can use a little height. Moreover, the new bracelet length for sleeves makes the arms appear longer. Bracelet length is about three-quarters, and not for the girl with the long arms.

Fabrics Help.

The latest thing in fabrics is the corded or ribbed weave, and, used vertically, seems to slice inches off the silhouette in the vicinity of waist and hipline.

Skirts are still short, but the stylists agree that the height of the individual should always be the first consideration in following a fashion trend, and that the short girl should wear her skirts fairly long.

This year again your hat will probably not please your husband any too well, but it will be the envy of all the other women. For the short girl the newest trick is a hat that goes up on one side and down on the other so that nobody can tell exactly what it was intended to be, but it's very nice for you.

And if you can't resist one of those tiny hats that perch on the top of your head, do get one with the feathers and plumes going up to add imaginary inches to your height. Carry out this same idea with your hairdo. The short woman never looked better than with her hair brushed up, curls piled on her head. Long shaggy locks about the shoulders make you look shorter than you are.

Up and Down Lines.

Always stick to lines that are up and down instead of around. In your fall shopping you will have to call on your will power to stay away from the double-breasted jackets, choker necklines and two-color dresses with the blouse of one color and the skirt of another . . . but there are plenty of other style tricks this season to catch your eye and make you seem slimmer.

Bedtime Stories

The Wee Savage.

This statement's true though it be trite:
The world is ruled by appetite.
—Old Mother Nature.

Tweeny Weeny the Shrew, called The Littlest One by his neighbors, was a prisoner. Yes, sir, he was a prisoner and all because he was in such haste that he had tumbled heels over head into a pitfall prepared especially for him. It was a pickle jar that had been set with its open mouth flush with the bottom of the little runway along which Teeny Weeny had been running in such a hurry. Now the jar was on the Old Naturalist's table and Sue and Sammy were eagerly watching the restless little prisoner.

"If I hadn't been told what he is I would have thought he was a tiny mouse with an awfully sharp nose," said Sue.

"Is he really and truly fully grown, as big as he ever will get?" Sammy wanted to know.

The Old Naturalist nodded. "He never would grow any bigger no matter how long he might live," said he. "And that is funny, too, considering his appetite."

Of course Sue and Sammy wanted to know right away what he meant by that. Smilingly the Old Naturalist explained. "You are looking," said he, "at one of the smallest of all mammals in the world and he has one of the biggest appetites in the world and I am glad that he is no bigger than he is."

Sue and Sammy looked puzzled. Their cousin, Farmer Brown's boy, who had seen Shrews before and knew something of their ways, grinned. "Tell them what happened in that jar last night," said he.

"You are looking at a cannibal," declared Farmer Brown's boy.

"Tell us!" begged Sue.

"You remember," replied the Old Naturalist, "that we prepared the pitfall yesterday afternoon. Just before I went to bed I visited it and found that not only this little fellow but another had fallen into it."

"Do you mean that there were two Shrews in it?" asked Sammy.

The Old Naturalist nodded. "There were two," said he. "I brought the jar into the house and when I went to sleep there were two Shrews in it. They are about of a size. When I awoke early in the morning I could see only this one, but both were there. They still are."

Yes, sir, he was a prisoner.

"You mean——" began Sue and paused.

"I mean that they had a great fight in the night and this one was the winner. Being starved, he ate the other," explained the Old Naturalist.

"Aw, how could he have been starving?" demanded Sammy.

"Because his appetite is so enormous and he digests his food so rapidly that, according to a noted scientist, he probably needs about his own weight in food every 24 hours. Lacking any food, he would starve to death in less than a day," was the astonishing reply.

"It was my fault," continued the Old Naturalist. "I should have remembered what nervous, high-strung, quick-tempered little fellows they were and have separated them. Being confined in such close quarters they annoyed each other and got to fighting. It was perfectly natural. Now you know what I meant when I said that Teeny Weeny has one of the biggest appetites in the world. He lives chiefly on insects and worms and you can guess how active he must be to get enough. Such meat as he may find is always a treat. If he meets a Mouse it usually is too bad for the Mouse, even for one much bigger than himself. He is a wee savage and with such an appetite it is well that he is no bigger."

Fete for Holland's Queen May Open Season Here

Netherlands Envoy's Return Hailed as Presaging an Anniversary Party as Brilliant and Gay as Celebration of Princess' Birth.

By Elizabeth Ford.

Last year around this time, impeccable white cards with embossed gold lettering began to pop into society's mail boxes as various embassies and legations sent invitations to early receptions, opening the new season.

Now there are hopes that another early season will be under way, but the answer to that question lies entirely with the Netherlands Minister, Jonkheer H. M. van Haersma de With. He will arrive today in New York aboard the liner Statendam and with his return it should not be long before Washington discovers his intentions concerning the social scene.

Dr. de With occupies a pivotal position, because on September 6 there will be great doings in Holland as the land of tulips, wooden shoes and windmills takes time out of its busy life to celebrate no les sthan the fortieth anniversary of the accession of Queen Wilhelmina to her throne. An event as big as this one ought to have repercussions in the white-stoned building opposite Meridian Park.

Will there be a similar celebration at the legation in Washington?

It will be recalled that last spring champagne bubbled bounteously there on the occasion of the birth of her daughter to Crown Princess Juliana. Society flocked down the receiving line from 5 to 7 o'clock, and the party at the legation was the talk of the town for several weeks afterward. So, judging by the past . . .

Only the Minister knows, and he'll soon be telling.

Also returning on the Statendam is Mrs. George C. Thorpe who has been in Europe for some time, where she has been visiting her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pack, who live there.

It may be that she will come to Washington only long enough to pack her trunks for a late vacation elsewhere. Or she may brave the September sun and remain here until the weather definitely grows cooler.

Superintendent Of Orphanage Arrives Today

Miss Swiffhelm to Take Over Duties of Miss Meese September 1.

Miss Dorothy Swiffhelm arrives today from Ohio and will assume her duties September 1 as superintendent of the Washington City Orphans Home, 4119 Nebraska avenue. She comes from the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Orphans Home, and succeeds Miss Ethel Wood Meese, who retired last spring after 15 years as head of the institution here.

The Washington home is one of the oldest of its kind in the country. It was established 120 years ago by Dolly Madison, when she was First Lady, and Marcia Burn Van Ness, a prominent philanthropist of the of the day, whose residence was located on the present site of the Pan-American Union. It was intended at that time for the care of children orphaned by the War of 1812.

When Miss Meese came from the Sheltering Arms Mission, in Philadelphia, to take charge of it, the orphanage was located at Fourteenth and F. Street. From there it was moved to its present location. Mrs. Calvin Coolidge in 1926 laid the cornerstone for the nursery building, now designated as Edwin Gould Cottage.

OF THEE I SING: Of the bet between two young diplomats, $100 to $10, that there will be no Hitler vs. Anybody war in Europe this year . . . Of the nude bathing party, with the lights flickering on and off, in which the only New Dealer present declined to participate . . . President Roosevelt seems to be toying with the notion of encouraging a colossal vote in 1940 . . . In 1932 there was an abortive drive by young patriots in a "50,000,000 Votes Committee," but the total that year was around 42,000,000. In 1936 it reached 44,000,000, but there are about 70,000,000 votes in the Republic, if FDR can get them to the polls.

Among other things, apple-cheeked Senator Byrd, of Virginia, is famous for his ham-curing recipe, which begins "Kill your hogs when the wind is from the northwest" (I wonder who lives southeast of the Hon. Mr. Byrd?). His recipe is also notable for the large quantities of saltpeter, an ingredient of Virginia hams which might perplex war vets.

When my friend, the Hon. James D. Preston, escorted me through the great new Archives Building the other day, I made probably my first serious suggestion to the Federal Government, a hint that might save it millions, in the long run. I doubt that it will ever be adopted, even by this economy regime.

• • • •

"For every cubic foot of storage space," he said, "we must have three cubic feet of working space around the stacks."

"Why don't you use midgets?" I inquired.

He promised to submit the idea to the next meeting of the Archives Council. It's composed of the entire Cabinet, but they probably never thought of it.

Tired society matrons around the Capital are saying that Mrs. Roosevelt was told last spring she must take things easy this summer and not overdo . . . So she is sorta relaxing at Hyde Park and commuting back and forth to New York, with her program trimmed down to the activities of three or four ordinary women.

Some Government figures just published show that about 11,000,000 families in this Republic are either comfortably well off, very prosperous or too, too rich; while 19,000,000 families are either on the verge of starvation or constantly fighting poverty.

Oddly enough, this ratio is very near the Landon-Roosevelt vote ratio of 1936. It would seem that most of the voters just vote their pocketbooks; perhaps a million or two on each side of the dividing line, roughly, are swayed by loftier motives, if any.

CAPITAL CAVIAR: A rumor swept London recently that a third heir might be born early in 1939 to the King and Queen; it proved just a summer rumor, and Englishmen are quite reconciled to a feminine occupant of the throne about 25 years from now, if there's a throne to occupy then . . . Franco's bombers are said to be carefully coached about which are the correct neighborhoods in Madrid and other government strongholds, so no bomb will fall perchance on an aristocratic dwelling temporarily unoccupied by its owners.

Wm. Curran Machine Hit By Jackson

Baltimore Mayor Asserts Lawyer Backs Rival, Herbert O'Conor.

By the Associated Press.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 26.—Mayor Howard W. Jackson aserted tonight William Curran, Baltimore criminal lawyer, was seeking "control of the city and State governments" through candidates the Curran organization has put up for nomination in the current primary campaign.

"If he can nominate his candidates in this campaign he will, in May, 1939, try to get control of the city hall," Jackson told a rally of his followers here. "He cannot get it as long as I am Mayor of Baltimore, and he will not get control of the State government if I am elected Governor."

Recalls Early Charge.

Jackson recalled that early in the campaign "I made the charge that O'Conor (Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor, opposing Jackson as a city gubernatorial candidate) was the Curran candidate," and added:

"The effort is being made to nominate a Curran ticket headed by O'Conor."

The Jackson-O'Conor fued, productive of flare-ups at intervals since O'Conor entered the gubernatorial race as a "Stop Jackson" candidate, drew from the mayor a warning "the welfare of all the people of the State is at stake in this campaign."

"The people must rally to smash the Curran machine once and for all," he asserted. "We have had enough and more than enough of appointments for political purposes."

Other speakers on the program were Senator Tydings and members of the Jackson State-wide ticket.

First Viscose Unit At Front Royal, Va. Is 90% Complete

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., Aug. 26.—The first unit of the American Viscose plant at Front Royal, Va., which will employ 4,500 persons when operated at capacity, is 90 per cent complete, J. Bennett, chief engineer, said today. But not before next August will it be possible for production to begin, he added.

Ultimately, he said, it is planned to build a second unit, but the date is uncertain, depending upon business conditions and other factors.

Some concern is felt, it was stated, that those in charge of housing developments at Front Royal, may not have ample facilities completed for the influx of workers. There is already a shortage with the overflow finding houses at Strasburg, Winchester and other nearby towns.

200 Bankers Hear Attack on Court 'Packing'

Impartial Supreme Bench Most Needed Now, Says R. G. Williams.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Aug. 26.—"You bankers should watch with solemn apprehension the appointment about to be made by the President of a successor to Mr. Justice Cardoza," said R. Gray Williams, president of the Shenandoah Valley National Bank, of Winchester, in an address delivered tonight in the McIntire Amphitheater at the University of Virginia before an audience of more than 200 Virginia bankers and others, here attending a four-day conference of Virginia bankers.

"Another elevation of a mind akin to Mr. Justice Black would be a public calamity," declared the speaker. "The President undoubtedly plans to create a court in agreement with his New Deal. It is more important now than ever before that we have a strong and impartial Supreme Court . . .

"Bank officials cannot be expected to suffer in silence injuries due to unwise administrative experimentalism . . . Today, banks cannot lend much of the money they have to lend. The banks cannot lend their money until the private dollar is put to work at profit. The dollar will not risk itself in enterprise until conditions inspire confidence and many of the things done by this Administration actually impairs confidence."

Mr. Williams then enlarged his explanation of the American constitutional system and addressed himself to the character of the efforts made to strip the Supreme Court of its power to declare unconstitutional acts of the Congress or undue assumption of power by the President.

"It is clear," said the speaker, "that no mere self-denying ordinance would prevent either President or Congress from crucifying minority rights or confiscating private property at the bidding of a determined radical majority. There must be an umpire, intelligent and impartial, to declare invalid acts that offend the Constitution as the supreme law of the land."

Jugged Rooster Freed as Judge Absolves Owner

Mount Airy, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—Donald, the jugged rooster who spent most of his scientifically regulated life in a bottle, was placed in a separate coop today to learn the amenities of the barnyard by observation before being turned loose.

At the same time, Donald's owner, the Rev. Frank E. Williar, was found not guilty of cruelty to animals by Police Magistrate Albert Mitten in Westminster, a charge preferred by the Maryland S. P. C. A.

Donald had been bottled since he was four weeks old in an experiment to determine if he would grow faster and become a better rooster "under ideal conditions."

At 11 weeks, he weighs 2¾ pounds and is a pound over the U. S. standard for his age, Mr. Willar said.

Donald obtained his freedom when the jug cracked after Mr. Willar cut a small hole in it. The jug crashed to the ground yesterday and splintered after Donald posed with a hen for his picture.

H. M. Brune Files For Md. Governor As 'Independent'

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—Herbert M. Brune, jr., who withdraw as a Democratic candidate in the gubernatorial campaign, filed late today for Governor on an independent ticket.

The "non-machine" candidate presented a petition which he said contained 3,600 names, among them "laborers, steel workers, clerks, farmers, business and professional men, bankers and housewives." He needed only 2,000 signatures.

Because Brune, a Baltimore attorney, filed after the deadline for the September 12 primary election, he was not required to pay the $270 fee.

Three Communists filed by petition for State office also.

Harry Straw filed for the United States Senate; Samuel Gordon filed for Governor and Needham Horton filed for comptroller.

Mountain Lake Park Sold for School Center

Educational Group Plans to Break Ground for New Buildings.

By the Associated Press.

Mountain Lake Park, Md., Aug. 26.—The purchase of Mountain Lake Park as the site for a self-help educational center was announced today.

E. D. Ford of Cleveland, Ohio, formerly of Salem, W. Va., said the International Educational Association of Cincinnati, of which he is president, bought the 300-acre tract and the buildings on it.

The purchase was made from the foreign missionary board of the Methodist Episcopal Church which has operated the park, summer gathering place for religious and social groups, since its establishment many years ago.

The price was not disclosed.

Ford said a crowd of 10,000 is expected here for a program Sunday, at which the formal announcement will be made.

Ground will be broken shortly, Ford added, for buildings for the school, which will be open to boys and girls of high school age.

Maryland to Use Cottage-Type Plan For Women's Jail

Baltimore, Aug. 26 (AP).—The State board of welfare decided today Maryland's new women's prison, slated for erection near the house of correction at Jessups, would be a cottage-type institution, with buildings grouped about a center court.

Charles J. Butler, board chairman, said the board authorized its architect, Henry G. Perring, to proceed with plans on that line, and that the contract probably would be awarded by October 1.

A 45 per cent grant from the Public Works Administration will finance part of the $445,000 estimated cost of the prison, which will house 175 inmates.

The institution will be Maryland's first prison exclusively for women.

Satterfield Hits Coercion By U.S. Aides

Honest Ballot in Danger, Says Keynoter of Va. Democrats.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 26.—Representative Dave E. Satterfield, of Richmond, warning Virginia's Young Democrats that "the honest ballot is in danger," spoke out today against interference of Federal officials with "the right of the people freely to choose their representatives."

Declaring in his keynote address that he dealt with "a subject that is always vital to the preservation of democracy, and never more so than now," the Democratic Congressman from the Third District said that:

"Hitherto, in theory at least, of all parties, this great remedial right of the people has been held to be sacred from all interference on the part of the Government, or any pretensions of the agents of executive power to influence or control its exercise . . .

Old Lessons Ignored.

"Today many forget or ignore the lessons of yesterday. We see the officers of the Federal Goverrment, many of whom have never submitted their names to any electorate, attempting to influence the States as to whom they shall elect to the Congress.

"The claim has been made that Federal money has been used in some of our sister States to influence elections. We are told that assessments are made upon the salaries of both Federal and State employes in some States in order to perpetuate in power those who control the appointment of those employes.

"And, unless checked, this may soon be carried to the point where we shall find our Government controlled by officeholders maintained in power by the votes of those who are the objects of Government bounty."

King Made Chairman.

At the conclusion of his 40-minute address, which was broadcast over radio from the convention hall in the John Marshall Hotel, the keynoter and temporary chairman presided until the permanent convention chairman, James C. King, of Fairfax, was elected and took the chair.

The nominees of the committee on permanent organization were elected with one exception, and the report of the credentials committee, which at its preliminary meeting settled fights over seating of the Wise and Chesterfield County clubs, was adopted without debate.

State Senator William M. Tuck, of Halifax, was elected parliamentarian after L. Preston Collins, member of the House of Delegates from Marion, declined the committee's nomination because he said he had a personal interest in questions expected to come before the convention.

Other Officers Listed.

Redwood Council, of Suffolk, was made secretary; James Hunter, of Roanoke, chief tally clerk, and Ted Bauserman, of Woodstock, sergeant at arms.

Trial Justice Harold F. Snead, of Herico County, in the President's annual address, told the Young Democrats that "we should definitely encourage our representatives, both State and national, to freely express their opinions and vote their convictions on matters pertaining to government.

The poll-tax study will be continued for another year, and a report on road-fund diversion will be presented tomorrow.

U. S. Aid Assures Md. Skyline Drive

Hagerstown, August 26.—A new skyline drive from the top of South Mountain to the Washington monument, the first marker erected to George Washington, is part of a program of farm-to-market roads, which will be built during the next year in Washington County with a Federal allotment amounting to $287,970 which was approved yesterday.

The drive to the monument above Boonsboro, built in 1828, will follow the ridge of South Mountain from Dahlgren, under surveys made by State Roads Commission engineers. The present road to the monument has a number of curves and a heavy grade.

15 Counties' Road Deficit Is $210,363

Washington, Allegany Deepest in Red as Year End Nears.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 26.—With a month remaining until the end of the fiscal year, 15 of Maryland's 23 counties were "in the red" $210,363 in their lateral roads funds account with the State roads commission, the commission's July 31 figures showed today.

No additional funds can be disbursed from the gasoline tax and bond proceeds for roads construction in these counties until the deficits are wiped out.

Commission Auditor William A. Codd said nine counties showed credit balances totaling $193,176, including $142,304 credited to Harford County as proceeds of county roads. This credit gave the counties a net deficit in their accounts of $17,187.

Washington County, overdrawn $45,947, and Allegany County, with an overdraft of $38,199, were deepest in the red, the funds statement showed. Other counties overdrawn, and their totals, were:

Anne Arundel, $5,687; Calvert, $179; Caroline, $6,189; Carroll, $16,211; Cecil, $12,834 Charles, $2,585; Dorchester, $2,866; Frederick, $23,550; Garrett, $21,292; Kent, $6,909; Prince Georges, $15,002 St. Marys, $3,864, and Talbot, $9,044.

The deficit marked up for the highway planning survey, slated to cease operations September 30, totaled $71,040 at the end of last month, the statement said, and the prison-labor appropriation of $100,000 had dropped to $66,517 since operations began early in the summer.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 26 (AP).—A marriage license was issued today to Laura Williamson Watts, 23, of Charleston, W. Va., daughter of the county prosecutor there, and Stephen Graee, 46, engineer, novelist and newspaper man from New York and Iceland.

Tigers Halt Streak of Nats, Winning, 9 to 3

This Morning

Out of the Mail Bag.

"Dear Mr. Povich: Well, well! So you point out that we should 'contrast the awful fumbling of pennant chances in the National League with the sure-fire surge of the Yankees in the American League race,' How you do compliment American League baseball!

POVICH.

"I haven't noticed a race in the junior league of late, unless it's been the race for second place. Friendly hint—see an oculist soon, for that 'awful fumbling' you see in the National League is a real race—one of those good old nip-and-tuck things that keeps fans interested.

"The whole American League should bow their heads with shame at the race they are NOT giving the public. The Yankees are good, but they make a runaway of the pennant race every year because of the lack of opposition, not because they are so all-fired might.

"If the Yankees were playing the Pirates, 50 per cent of the balls the slow-motion infields in the American League make into hits would be turned into outs and double plays by the Pirates.

"The Pirates aren't the hitters the Yankees are, but the Yanks wouldn't be quite so terrific if they were put up against the National League defense. Of course, I don't have much to back me up except the All-Star game when one looks at the last couple of world series, but just the same there is nothing I would like better than to take out the Phillies, for example, and put the Yankees in the National League for a whole season. Wouldn't it be fascinating to watch those Yankee batting averages falling? I'll admit they might win the pennant, but they would have a much harder and more interesting fight to the top.

"Here's hoping the American League managers (?) will try to get some pitchers and improve their sieve-like defense instead of hunting sluggers with the dropsy.—J. A. BROPHY."

Dear Mr. Brophy: You are exactly right—it would be fascinating to watch those Yankees' batting averages drop against National League pitching. After the way the Yanks' batting averages have been zooming against National League pitching in the World Series, it would not only be fascinating but downright amazing. And you choose a bad day, Mr. Brophy, to deny that the National League contenders are fumbling the pennant. Because what happened during the last 24 hours? The Pirates, with a chance to make a run-away of the race, lost their third straight game to the Phils. The Reds, with a swell chance to overtake both the Pirates and Giants, lost their third straight game to the Bees. And the Giants get themselves knocked off by another second-division club, the Cardinals. Sorry, but we still think they're fumbling.

"Dear Mr. Povich: Congratulations on your fight column. If that wasn't a cold kayo that Bill Boyd landed on Billy Nichy's chin the other night, I've never seen one that was on the level. It couldn't have been a dive and furthermore Jack Dempsey, at this stage of his career, couldn't afford to be associated with anything that smelled of a tanker.

"Boyd was simply too big for Nichy. At equal weights, the fight would have had a different ending. A 175-pounder can't fight a heavyweight with any decent sort of a chance to win. There should be another class between the 175-pounders and the heavies.

"How far would Carnera have gone with Tommy Loughran if the weights had been equal? Tommy would have won that one in an early round instead of getting licked. The fellows who are most opposed to an in-between class are the managers of punk heavies who like to pad the records with kayos over 175-pounders.

"The whole subject of prize fight weights doesn't have a very honest history. The weights were manipulated by managers of old-time fighters and the present generation is stuck with 'em. The featherweight limit used to be 122 ringside for Attell, Kilbane and the like. It jumped to 126 pounds at 2 p. m. to take care of Johnny Dundee. The lightweight limit was 133 pounds ringside for Gans, Nelson, Wolgast and Ritchie. Billy Gibson succeeded in pushing it up to 135 pounds to take care of his champion, Benny Leonard.

"There never would have been a light-heavyweight class except that years ago fellows like George Gardner and Root were too small for the heavies of that era and barely too big for the middleweights.

"The fellows who think a weight class between the 175-pounders and the heavies isn't needed always bring up one stock argument. They always dig up poor old Bob Fitzsimmons to prove that 161 is heavy enough for a good fighter. Fitzsimmons, you remember, coined the phrase 'the bigger they are the harder they fall.' That's with us today. But no one sings out Jim Jeffries' reply: 'The smaller they are the farther I knock 'em,' and when they have to dig up a guy as long deceased as Fitzsimmons, their argument must be pretty weak.—M. L. H."

Errors Lead To 4 Bengal Runs in 3d

By Shirley Povich.

Plagued by an annoying habit of hitting into double plays, and otherwise aiding the Tigers considerably, the Nats managed to take a 9-3 beating yesterday and bring their three-game winning streak to an end.

Fifteen thousand shrieking Ladies' Day customers saw Zeke Bonura avert the ignominy of a shut-out for the Nats by swatting his 17th home run of the season with two colleagues on base, but save for that blow the Nats were exceedingly old-womanish with their bats.

Their conquerer was Alton Benton, a large right hander whom the Tigers reclaimed from Toledo a few weeks ago after he had been discharged from the staff of the Athletics. Benton was a competent fellow yesterday, pitching three-hit ball while the Tigers were amassing a 5—0 lead in the first five innings. He finished up with a nine-hit performance.

Harry Kelley, Jimmy DeShong and Joe Krakauskas contrived to pitch 10 hits to the Tigers, who rustled four runs out of Kelley in the third inning. But they were four grossly unearned runs, spawning as they did from a pair of crude errors by the left side of the Nats' infield—by Buddy Lewis and Cecil Travis, to be specific.

Trouble for Case.

Bonura personally reinstated the Nats in the ball game in the sixth when his lusty sock into the left field seats with Lewis and Simmons on base reduced the Tigers' lead to 5—3. But Krakauskas was pounded for three runs by the Tigers in the sixth, and Benton pitched three-hit ball after falling victim to Bonura's clout.

George Case averted trouble for Kelley in the first two innings when he made a pair of spectacular catches in right field, but in the third Kelley found himself knee-deep in worries. That was when Travis muffed Christman's grounder and, with one out, Lewis muffed Morgan's.

Two Tigers capitulated on those two misplays immediately. Dixie Walker doubled to right, and after Gehringer was intentionally passed, Greenberg singled to left. Those incidents accounted for three runs and York produced the fourth run of the inning with a fly to West.

Jimmy DeShong surrendered a run to the Tigers in the fifth after he walked Gehringer and York, by pitching a rightfield single to Fox. Thus Benton had a 5-0 lead.

Two Double Plays.

The Nats didn't get a hit off Benton until Case singled with two out in the third. After Simmons drew a walk to start the fourth, Bonura hit into a double play, and after Myer opened the fifth with a single, Ferrell swatted into another double play. Despite the gleeful shrieks of the Ladies' Day fans, it was a double play.

All of a sudden, in the sixth, the Nats installed themselves in the ball game. Case drew a walk and was forced by Lewis, but Simmons breathed life into the uprising with a single to right. Then along came Bonura with that home run of his and the Nats were trailing only 5-3.

But visions of overhauling the Tigers faded in the seventh when Walker beat out a hit to Bonura and Krakauskas pitched a single to Gehringer. Krakky struck out Greenberg for the first out, but then lapsed to the extent of pitching singles to York and Fox. And when Piet flied to Simmons, the Tigers had their third run of the inning, an 8-3 lead, and the ball game.

Galento and Lewis Are Pals!

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Only a few months ago Tony Galento (left) was calling John Henry Lewis a "big bum" and was preparing to meet the colored champion of the light-heavies in the ring. But Thursday night they assumed this friendly pose before Lewis went out to score a third-round knockout over Dominick Ceccarelli. Pneumonia attacked Tony last month just before his scheduled bout with Lewis. They plan to meet in February.

College Passing Rule Will Hinder Pros in Star Game, Baugh Says

By "Slingin' Sammy" Baugh.

(Forward Passing Champion, National Football League.)

This is no advance alibi, because I am willing to go right out on the limb now and predict that the Redskins will lick those College All-Stars at Chicago next Wednesday night. But the pros do not have any the best of the arrangements for that game.

SAMMY BAUGH.

Except for a couple of minor changes, the pros will be playing the college game. That is, we will be playing under the college rules. There is only one main difference between the college and the professional rules, but that one may work quite a hardship on us Wednesday night.

That is the forward passing rule. On Wednesday night, we won't be permitted to throw a pass from within 5 yards of the line of scrimmage. That rule is only fair, I guess, inasmuch as the Collegians have always played the game that way, but it figures to handicap the Redskins' offense.

Some of our best pass plays are those quick short passes off reverse formations with the passer usually close to the line of scrimmage. And we'll have to discard those plays. That means we won't be using exactly the same kind of offense that helped us to win the National title last season in the pro league. If we could use those plays, I don't think that the score on Wednesday night would be close. The Collegians have had no experience against that kind of pass and I know we could pass 'em dizzy.

Of course, they are keeping the goal posts on the goal lines as they do in the pro league, but I doubt if that is going to be much help to the Redskins. After all, both sides can shoot for field goals, and we have only one really good place-kicker—Riley Smith. Those All-Star coaches, with a squad of 65 to pick from, are liable to have a half-dozen pretty fair place-kickers at their beck and call.

According to the notices the Chicago people have sent us, we won't be able to run with a fumble on Wednesday night as we do in the pro league; but that may not be important. Darn few games are decided by plays like that and it's just as fair for one team as it is another.

But there's another special rule they will put into effect Wednesday night that may affect us. In college football, as you know, the ball-carrier is considered down if his knee touches the ground. Well, the pros don't consider a ball-carrier down until he is tackled and his progress has been stopped. We are in the habit of getting up off the ground and running again if we slip or go down from a half-tackle.

But out there Wednesday night, we won't be able to do that. According to the special rule, the ball-carrier who goes down on one knee can get up and run again only if he went down in a spot where there was no defense man within ten yards. The referee will decide about that. It looks like an edge for the Collegians because our boys, as I say, have a habit of getting up unless they are stopped cold.

And another thing. I think too much sympathy is being wasted on the College All-Stars by the folks who say that they have to unlearn their individual systems and learn the systems of their new coaches. That isn't exactly true. In the first place, most all of the systems are alike fundamentally. The variations are simple and it's no hard job to play for a new coach.

I know how they work those practice sessions of the Collegians out there. It's simple enough. One coach takes the backs, another the lines, another the ends. And the kickers and passers are in separate groups. They take the plays of the man who is head coach. This year it's Bo McMillan, of Indiana, and they'll be using Indiana's plays mostly.

The fellows who were good enough to make that All-Star squad are smart enough to learn a new set of plays in three weeks and learn them well. Shucks, that's no more than a lot of fellows with the Redskins are doing. They were turned out by different coaches, too. And it isn't tough. When I came up to the Redskins last year, I didn't have to unlearn anything. I just had to sop up a few more tricks.

Those All-Stars are going to have an edge, too, in that big squad. Don't forget, the Redskins are limited to 30 men, while the All-Stars can use all of their 65 if they like. And 60 minutes of football this early in the season, especially if it's a warm night, is no picnic. There'll be many a Redskin on that field Wednesday night who will be plenty tired and still playing against a fresh college man.

There's one thing I can't quite understand about the colleges. They make a big hoop-de-doo about cutting down injuries and protecting their athletes, but they've let the pros get ahead of them in that respect. The pros last winter were the first ones to take steps to protect a comparatively defenseless forward passer, but, in the college game, he's still at the mercy of the men who rush him.

In our league, now, the fellow who knocks the passer down after the ball has been thrown brings a penalty on his team. But, under the college rules, they can still hit the passer after he has let the ball go. Anything less than intentionally roughing the passer is alright in college football. The pros don't stand for that any more. The moment he gets rid of that ball, he's safe from attack. That's one pro rule the colleges ought to copy.

Joey Archibald Is Ill; Dupre Bout Postponed

Two Physicians Verify Manager's Statement That Bad Cold Will Keep Joey Idle; Another Card Is Being Arranged for Monday.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Joey Archibald's ten-round bout with Tony Dupre, scheduled Monday night at Griffith Stadium, last night was postponed because of an ailment which struck Archibald with the suddenness of a knockout punch and sent him to bed under a physician's care.

The fight tentatively has been re-scheduled for September 12 at the stadium, although future plans necessarily depend on the rapidity of Archibald's recovery. He is expected to be able to fulfill the engagement on that date, barring unforeseen developments in the case.

Appraised of Archibald's illness by his manager, Al Weill, who telephoned at 4 a. m. yesterday, Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn immediately appealed to the District Boxing Commission to aid in determining if the Providence lad actually was ailing. The commission's action is summed up in the following statement released last night:

"The Boxing Commission has authorized the postponement of the Joey Archibald-Tony Dupre contest due to the illness of Archibald.

"Yesterday evening (Friday) the commission got in touch with Edward C. Foster, executive secretary of the N. B. A. at Providence, R. I. Mr. Foster, accompanied by Dr. Howard F. Keefe, of the Rhode Island Boxing Commission, drove to Pawtucket and there found Archibald in bed, attended by Dr. L. M. Healey, his family physician.

"Both physicians pronounced Archibald too sick to box.

"The illness later was confirmed by a telegram from Dr. Keefe as follows: 'Saw Joey Archibald today with Ed Foster. Personally know attending physician Dr. Healey. Boy really sick and in no condition to fight.'"

Ahearn, meanwhile, announced that Monday night's show will be staged on schedule, with two eight round co-features heading the bill. Lew Feldman will box Paul Lee in one bout, and Cal Cagney will oppose Bobby Cortez, a Mexican, in the other. The remainder of the card will stand up, with Jack Johnson refereeing a brace of colored bouts.

Suspicions that Weil might have arranged Archibald's illness for his own convenience were allayed by Weil's willingness to go through with the match in September, plus the two physicians' statements. Washington, moreover, has a working agreement with the New York Athletic Commission and would ask that Archibald be suspended in the Empire State in the event that he failed to abide by his contract with the District promoter.

Rumors that Weil was unwilling to go through with the fight after hearing that the winner might be recognized as featherweight champion by the National Boxing Association are unfounded. The Association, it was pointed out, would suspend Archibald for failing to fulfill his contract, rather than give him its blessing as successor to Henry Armstrong.

Observers also agreed that Weil had nothing to gain by attempting to pull out of the match in the hope of having it staged elsewhere—preferably in New York. In the first place New York could not sanction the fight, or any fight in which Archibald was a participant, without breaking its agreement with the Washington commission; and secondly, the bout actually stands to gross more money in this city than it possibly can in a foreign arena.

Weil will accompany Cagney, another of his fighters, to Washington Monday, at which time he will meet with Promoter Joe Turner, Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn, and the boxing commission, and decide on a definite date for the match. There is a strong possibility that it will be stretched to a 15-round bout, to strengthen the victor's claim to the world championship.

Phils Bump Pirates Again

Tail-Enders Hang a 6-4 Defeat on Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 26.—Philadelphia's Phils walloped the wobbling Pittsburgh Pirates for the third straight time today, 6 to 4, clustering five runs in the fifth inning to come from behind.

Lefty Al Smith, who like old Bill Hallahan yesterday, had not won a game all season, handcuffed the jittery Pirates with seven safe blows.

The National League leaders collected four of these, including Paul Waner's triple and Pitcher Jim Tobin's double, in the first two innings for three runs. But the Phillies chased Tobin with their barrage in the fifth and Pittsburgh never threatened thereafter.

The entire visiting team went to the plate in their big inning, making their five runs on a combination of five singles, an error and a sacrifice.

Gil Brack's triple off Mace Brown scored the Phillies' final run in the eighth and the Pirates made a parting gesture in the same frame—Arky Vaughan scoring from second when the Philadelphia infield let Pep Young's pop-up drop untouched between second and third.

Pittsburgh played with John Dickshot in leftfield and Bill Brubaker at third, but afterward Manager Pie Traynor said he intended to put Johnny Rizzo back into the outfield tomorrow and probably would return Lee Handley to the hot corner "in a day or two."

Thanks to the Cardinals the Pirates maintained their 4½-game margin over the second-place New York Giants, who lost to St. Louis. The Cubs, beating Brooklyn, gained a game, now standing 5½ behind Pittsburgh, while Cincinnati, losing to Boston, remained 6½ in the rear.

Champions Uncork 15-Hit Attack to Win Opener, 15-9; Indians Win Second, 8-5.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 26.—The Yankees and Cleveland Indians split a double-header today before a Ladies' Day crowd of 37,139, leaving the New Yorkers 12 games in front in the American League race.

Joe DiMaggio drove in seven runs to lead the way to a 15-to-9 victory in the opening slugfest. In the nightcap, Willis Hudlin pitched his best game of the year, a five-hitter, and Frankie Pytlak batted five runs in as the Tribe clicked for an 8-to-5 decision.

Neither starting pitcher—Wes Ferrell and Bobby Feller—was effective in the first game, as the Yanks collected 15 hits and the Tribe came up with 18. A big seven-run rally in the fifth inning, during which they batted around, put the game on ice for the Yanks.

DiMaggio clouted his twenty-sixth homer, two doubles and a single. Lou Gehrig also hit his twenty-sixth four-bagger of the year.

In the nightcap, three errors in a row—two by Skeeter Webb and one by Lyn Lary—almost threw Hudlin's fine pitching effort away in the eighth inning but Pytlak's homer inside the park in the same frame, kept the Indians one run in front, and a two-run barrage in the ninth, with Frankie driving both tallies across with a timely single, sewed up the game. Pytlak also hit a triple which was good for two more runs.

Paul Derringer was sent to the showers in the ninth after a three-run eighth-inning uprising. The Bees scored three in the fifth, including a homer by Vince DiMaggio.

Jersey Joe Stripp was chased from the game by Umpire Lee Ballanfant in the third inning when he was called out on a slide at second base.

Dodgers Bow To Cubs, 7-3

Bruins Score 6 in 5th to Turn Trick.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—The Cubs climbed into undisputed possession of third place in the National League today by whipping the Brooklyn Dodgers, 7 to 3, on the strength of a six-run outburst in the fifth inning.

The win stretched the Cub streak to four straight. Clay Bryant went the route and chalked up his twelfth win of the year. He also contributed a homer to the attack.

The loss was the Dodgers' sixth in a row. Bill Posedel, who started, pitched shutout ball for four frames, but in the fifth the Cubs landed on him for six hits and the ball game.

Boston Takes Second Game on Higgins' Single in 10th After Streak Is Broken.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 26.—Jimmy Foxx, Red Sox "muscle man," made the 2,000th hit of his major league career today, then added two home runs for good measure as the Red Sox split a double-header with the Chicago White Sox.

The veteran Ted Lyons pitched the visitors to a 12-to-2 victory in the opener, but the Red Sox came back to squeeze out a 9-to-8 triumph in 10 innings of the nightcap. The doubleheader was the second the teams are scheduled to play in three consecutive days.

Doc Cramer scored the winning tally in the second game. He walked, advanced on a sacrifice and an error and came home on Higgins' single.

Budge and Mako Face Australians in Doubles Finals

D. C. Player And Partner Enter Finals

Lawrence Baker, McKay Play for Veterans' Net Crown.

By the Associated Press.

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 26.—The National Doubles Tennis Championship final became a dress rehearsal for part of next week's Davis Cup competition when Don Budge and Gene Mako advanced today into the title round with Australia's unbeaten Adrian Quist and Jack Bromwich before 4,000 spectators at Longwood Cricket Club.

Both pairs of finalists had to play four sets to overcome their semi-finals rivals. Budge and Mako were extended the most and played the best while defeating Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, of Austin, Tex., twice winners of this tourney, 6—1, 6—2, 3—6, 10—8.

Quist and Bromwich, who have won every match they have played since they teamed up ten months ago, including three over Budge and Mako in Australia, were not hard pressed at any stage as they built up a 7—5, 4—6, 6—3, 6—3 victory over their countrymen, Harry Hopman and Leonard Schwartz.

International Affair.

The championship match in the women's division became an international affair after Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, and Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, of Poland, caused the only upset of the day by eliminating the top-seeded Australians, Nancye Wynne and Thelma Coyne, 6—4, 6—2. That surprising triumph moved the Franco-Polish team, a very capable one, against the defending champions, Alice Marble and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan.

Allison and Van Ryn, who were appearing in their eighth United States semifinal round match in ten years, displayed great improvement over their showing last week at Newport, in which they bowed to Budge and Mako in straight sets. And as for the United States Davis Cup aces, they turned in their best match since they returned from their highly successful European invasion.

Budge and Mako put together 45 earned points, one less than their rivals. The latter, however, piled up 97 errors, 57 of which were charged against Van Ryn. The Davis Cup pair made 75 misplays.

D. C. Player Wins.

The All-Australian semifinal resembled a practice contest rather than a national championship match. During the fourth set Hopman made six double faults, three of them in a row in the final game.

Defending Champions Lawrence A. Baker, of Washington, and John G. McKay, of Miami, qualified for the veterans' final against Dr. William Rosenbaum and Fred C. Baggs, of New York, who have gained that bracket four times in the past. The father-son competition narrowed down to a contest between Howard York, senior and junior, of New York, and F. J. and A. W. Sulloway, of Concord, N. H., two unseeded teams.

Redskins Entrain This Afternoon for All-Star Game With Collegians in Chicago

As brown as turkey gravy and as tough as shoemaker's leather after three weeks of training, 31 Redskin gridmen this afternoon entrain for Chicago where the opening gun of their 1938 campaign will be fired Wednesday night in the annual All-Star game at Soldiers Field.

And it will be with honors seldom accorded conquering heroes home from battle that the squad takes leave of Washington. A cavalcade of motors, led by the Redskins' marching band afoot, will parade from the Burlington Hotel to the Union Station, starting promptly at 4:45 o'clock. The train leaves one hour later.

A radio broadcast has been arranged at the depot and players, coaches and fans will be interviewed immediately before train time. The Redskins' official song will be played and sung, and there may even be an official send-off speech or two.

Coach Ray Flaherty pronounced his men fit and almost ready for action after yesterday's drill and expects to have them in high gear when the opening whistle blows. A light practice is scheduled this morning at Ballston, Va., after which the squad will lunch and rest before entraining.

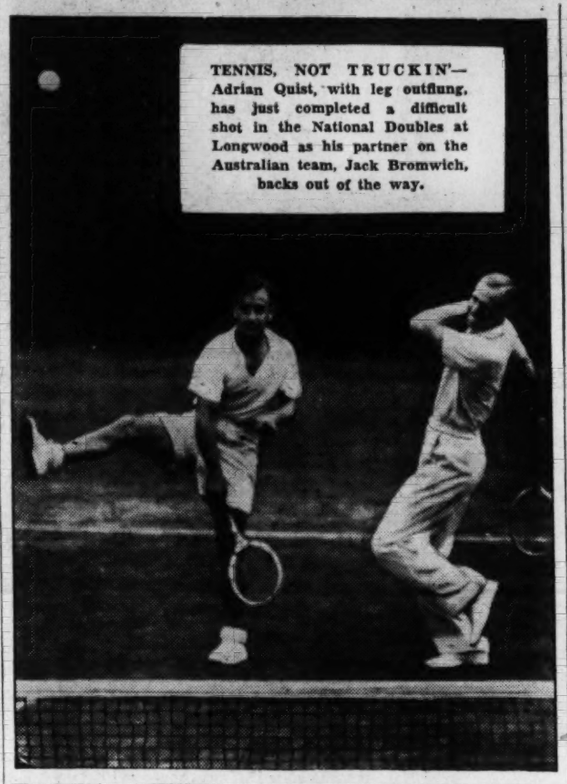
The party is scheduled to arrive in Chicago at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, and will practice at Soldier's Field in the afternoon. The Collegians will share the battle-ground for practice, taking it over Monday night for work under the lights.

Between 700 and 1,000 local fans are expected to make the trip to Chicago, and Washington headquarters will be set-up at the Windmere Hotel. Tickets for the game are available to those desiring them up until noon today at the club office on Ninth street. The sale will be discontinued at noon and unsold ducats will be shipped to Chicago where all reserved seats have been sold out for the last month. Seats on sale here are with the Washington bloc, directly behind the Redskins' bench.

Flaherty is confident the pros will hand their colleyiate brethren a beating, but willingly admits his men have a sizeable task on their hands. He pointed out that unsettled conditions in his backfield may cause the Skins to get off to a slow start, but he expects them to pick up momentum as the battle progresses and come down to the finish line far in front.

Flaherty expects to use all of his men in the game. He has mapped a careful plan of battle and is fully aware of the fact that the Collegians will try to overwhelm his team with fresh man power. It is with this thought in mind that he will pour recruits into the fray, fighting fresh men with his own reserpes.

Interest in the game is running high in the Midwest, as a telegram from the Duluth Chamber of Commerce to Prexy George Marshall yesterday epidenced. It was signed by Barkley Schroeder, spokesman for the chamber, who said he noted in newspaper reports that the players were bothered by Washington's humidity, and infited Marshall to bring his club to Duluth for preseason practice next year.



TENNIS, NOT TRUCKIN'—Adrian Quist, with leg outflung, has just completed a difficult shot in the National Doubles at Longwood as his partner on the Australian team, Jack Bromwich, backs out of the way.

Leach, Cyr Seek Crown

Unknowns Enter Finals of Publinks Play.

By the United Press.

Cleveland, Aug. 26.—An obscure WPA timekeeper and a railroad-car inspector crased into the final round of the National Public Links Golf championship today.

Al Leach, 26-year-old Cleveland relief worker, turned back Bart Taro, 16-year-old Seattle, Wash., newsboy, 1 up in 36 holes after he was 7 down at the end of 16.

Louis Cyr, 31, Portland, Oreg., railroad-car inspector, nosed out Eddie Beck, a fellow townsman, who earns his living selling wholesale hardware, in another tight tight finish, 1 up.

Thet two heretofore unknowns will meet tomorrow in a 36-hole battle for the 1938 national championship.

Leach made one of the most spectacular comebacks in the history of match-play golf as he fought from behind to overcome his youthful rival.

The WPA timekeeper was spurred t ovcitory by his indomitable ambition to get off relief. On the second 18 holes he eked out his triumph on the final putt.

Cyr, who had to play off against 17 others to qualify and then conquered his three teammates, staged another heroic comeback after being 3 down at lunch time—end of the first 18.

Leach was wild in the morning round, taking an 81. Taro started the afternoon round with cocksure deliberation. But later he became panicky and ended with an 81.

Mike Jacobs, Garden Sign Long Lease

New York Promoter Is Planning Broader Ring Activities.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 26.—Mike Jacobs took steps to expand his fistic empire today by forming a virtual partnership with Madison Square Garden and serving notice that he plans to invade both eDtroit and Chicago.

Last October, after two years of warefare, Jacobs went into the Garden on a strictly rental basis. He paid the Garden $5,000 for each show he staged and took his own losses.

Under the "new deal" announced by Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, Garden president, the Garden will share in Jacobs' profits on all fights here and elsewhere, and in return will go 50-50 on any losses sustained.

The new contracts supersedes the previous agreemetn which had until October 1, 1939, to run.

The deal makes the Garden, recognized as the boxing capital of the country, a partner with Jacobs, although Col. Kilpatrick said he did not like the word "partnership" and preferred to refer to it as a "tenant-landlord" agreement.

After the conference Jacobs announced his plans for branching out by saying he has signed contracts to promote shows in both the Chicago Stadium and the Olympia, in Detroit, this winter, and has been invited to try his luck in Philadelphia.

Patty Berg In Western's Finals Today

Edith Estabrooks Faces Minneapolis Star at Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—A pair of school girls, Patty Berg, freckled-faced redhead from Minneapolis, and Edith Estabrooks of Dubuque, Iowa, a bespeckled youngster of 17, will battle tomorrow for the Women's Western Closed golf championship in a 36-hole final at Olympia Fields Country Club.

Miss Berg, playing another sensational round of sub-par golf, charged through the 18-hole semi-finals today with a 3 and 2 triumph over Shirley Ann Johnson, Chicago.

But the real heroine was sturdy, little Miss Estabrooks, the former Western junior champion, who was forced to go 23 nerve-wracking holes to conquer Mrs. Burt Weil, seasoned campaigner from Cincinnati, one up on the fifth extra green.

Wages Brave Battle.

The Dubuque miss staged a brave and strong battle all the way, with Mrs. Weil also displaying plenty of courage. Going to the fifteenth hole, Mrs. Weil was one down. She touched her ball there, drawing a penalty shot that cost her the hole and put her two down.

She came back, however, to take the sixteenth by sinking an 8-foot putt for a deuce. After halving the seventeenth, she won the 465-yard eighteenth with a birdie 4, squaring the match.

They halved the first four extra holes, each with birdies on the second. Then on the next, with each driving into the bunkers, Miss Estabrooks won with two putts for a bogey 5, while Mrs. Weil three-putted from 30 feet, missing a 4-foot effort to take a 6.

The victory of the 20-year-old Minneapolis marvel saw her playing off the pace she set early in the week, but she still was under par for the 16 holes.

Increases Lead.

She was one up on Miss Johnson at the turn, and increased her lead at the fourteenth, where Miss Johnson drove into the creek and picked up.

Miss ohnson had a chance to winning the 552-yard fifteenth with a par 5, to Miss Johnson's 6, and halving the sixteenth.

Mis Johnson had a chance to keep the match alive on the sixteenth, but a short chip shot stopped 12 feet from the cup. Miss Berg meanwhile had hooked her tee shot over the green and into the rough. Her second again was over the green, but she chipped up to within a foot of the cup. Miss Johnson failed to sink her putt, but Patty tapped her's in to win the match.

Nations Compete In Fish Classic.

Liverpool, N. S., Aug. 26(U.P.).—Deep water fishermen from three nations prepared to sally forth to the choppy North Atlantic at dawn tomorrow to settle the world's big game fishing championships the international Sharp Trophy matches.

The British six-man team, augmented by Fred Taylor, of Manchester England, one of the world's foremost big game fishermen, was a 7-5 favorite to retain the title they won last year at Wedgeport, N. S., by a score of 3 to 2.

The big blue "torpedoes" began rolling in from the Grand Banks early today, with 15 fish landed at Liverpool harbor during the day—the largest catch of the season in this area.

Hill Gets Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., August 26.—George W. Hill, former coach of athletics at Fairmont East Side High School, will be the new athletics director at Charles Town High School, according to an announcement of the Jefferson County Board of Education.

Miss Epe Beats Secret Vote for Place Money in Feature Race.

By Walter Haight,
A Staff Correspondent.

Marlboro, Md., Aug. 26.—Mrs. M. R. Waugh's Justa Gal, a daughter of the mud-running Flying Ebony, found the sandy track here to her liking and drove to a length and a half victory in the Senator Sasscer Purse, feature of this sunny afternoon in Prince Georges County. Carying 106 pounds, the light weight of the party, the 4-year-old filly finished in front of Miss Epe with Secret Vote third. She was overlooked in the betting and paid a $14.50 mutuel.

Jockey J. Sylvester did a nice job of riding on the winner. He steadied her along just off the pace of Miss Epe and then put her to a drive that brought the winning end of the purse. Palumbo handled Miss Epe well, saving her for the final test, but the filly just didn't have the guns to match Justa Gal.

The day was given over for the most part to longshots with an $84.80 pay-off resulting in the daily double.

In one of the worst fields ever to face the barrier here, St. Etienne, a 5-year-old gelding, finally emerged from the maiden ranks with the help of a good ride from Jockey Lou Machado. The Snob II gelding came home three lengths in front of Red Trap with Windsor's Boy third. The winner paid $18.20.

The second event was dubbed "The Marlboro 2-year old championship" by the horsemen and Adhelmar carried off the honors, finishing in front of First Fling and Accidental. The filly paid $6.10.

Boulderdam, owned by Mrs. H. R. Jenkins, of Charles Town, W. Va., took the third event at an $15.70 mutuel under a good ride by Apprentice George Witmer. Gee Sharp and Green Water filled out the money bracket.

Jockey Leon Garrett had little trouble getting Sun Sweep home in front in the fourth race. The $16.50 shot escaped trouble to get to the front and won by seven lengths. Quick Vine was second and Miss Troy third. Proteus and Blond Reel were squeezed out of it in the early running.

Jockey Willie Obert, oldest active jockey in America, revealed that he could still swing his fist in the jockey's room after the sixth race. Obert was suspended for five days for punching Apprentice E. Scott. Scott rode Sally Quick in the sixth race and forced Obert on Cancel to pull up. Scott was suspended for the remainder of the meeting for rough riding.

ACCIDENTAL, away in first flight, was carried wide by VENDOR'S LIEN, ran closest to pace to stretch and weakened nearing end. FLAGETTA went evenly. VENDOR'S LIEN had early speed and stopped.

BOULDER DAM, sent into contention at once, took command after three furlongs, drew clear and was kept to a strong hand ride to end. GEE SHARP was first away while racing on inside, shook off GRAND BAKER, but was no match for winner. GREEN WATER closed with good energy.

SUN SWEEP, nicely handled, was steadied along while racing with QUICK VINE, took lead when asked and drew out gradually to win with speed in reserve. QUICK VINE, first away, set pace under hustling tactics and continued willingly, but was no match for winner. MISS TROY went evenly, but could not threaten seriously. PROTEUS was blocked and taken up soon after start and had no chance.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400. The La Plata. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:22. Off 4:25. Winner, Mrs. M. R. JUSTA GAL, rated along close to the pace of MISS EPE, rallied to drive in closing eighth to win going away under good handling. MISS EPE was taken under steadying restraint while setting pace and responded when placed to drive, but wasn't good enough. SECRET VOTE saved ground when outrun for half mile, and bettered position gradually thereafter to close with good courage.

Wheat Prices Sag Awaiting Federal Plan

Program to Buy Wheat for Export and Relief, Made Public After Close.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Wheat prices sagged almost a cent a bushel in a nervous, erratic market today while traders exercised extreme caution pending disclosure of the Government's export subsidy program.

A few moments after the final bell, the first step in the program was announced. Timed apparently so as not to disturb the market, an official announcement said the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation would buy wheat for export and domestic relief purposes. The technique of disposal in export trade and the amount to be purchased were not disclosed.

It was evident the grain trade had received no hint that such an announcement would be made because the market dragged through a dreary session. The character of the plan so far divulged surprised many dealers.

Moderate hedging pressure from the Northwest that met with only quiet mill and commercial buying accounted for the lower trend. Most deals represented spreading operations and adjustment of accounts. The corn market, on the other hand, was steady, being strengthened by further export business estimated at 300,000 bushels, bringing sales this week near 3,000,000.

Wheat closed ⅜-⅞ lower, September 62⅛-62¼, December 64-64⅛; corn was ¼ off to ⅛ up, September 52 December 49⅝-49¾; oats lost ⅛-¼; rye was unchanged to ¾ down and lard unchanged to 8 lower.

The Market

By C. Norman Stabler, A Special Correspondent.

Price Trend Is Lower Because of Profit-Taking and European Tension.

New York, Aug. 26.—Professional traders turned from the brighter domestic picture today and scanned troubled areas of Europe for clews as to whether it is to be peace or war. Their attitude caused share prices to turn irregularly lower after early strength which brought general market levels to around highs for the year in many groups. Bonds, under the same influence, were dull and mixed. European currencies dipped slightly in terms of dollar exchange. Cotton firmed 10 to 13 points with some buying reported in anticipation of announcement on the Government's new loan terms; wheat dropped about a cent a bushel, the news that the AAA will buy wheat for relief and export, with details lacking as to the method of distribution or the maximum to be purchased, coming just at closnig time in Chicago.

The stock market started the day fairly active with prices generally firm. Chrysler and General Motors continued in the forefront and several automobile issues recorded new highs. Steels had a period of strength. When these two groups turned down as stock appeared for sale, interest shifted to power shares and amusements. In the afternoon, profit-taking occurred all along the line, the close of the 100 key stocks showing a net loss of 0.34 point, steels and oils, with some of the motors and coppers, losing most ground. Rails held well, one of the more favorable news items of the day being the carloadings figures, showing a rise to the second highest level this year.

48 New Highs.

Among 48 individual stocks which reached new highs for the year or longer during the session were American Tobacco B and preferred, Chrysler, General Motors, Briggs, Electric Autolite, Allen Industries, du Pont, Holland Furnace, U. S. Gypsum, National Biscuit, Macy, McIntyre Porcupine, Pathe and Phelps Dodge. Macy was a strong spot. Mail-order shares slipped back as a rule, including Montgomery Ward, down a point. Farm shares also eased, although news of the day was inclined to favor the group.

Interest in European controversies centered on possibilities of some development with regard to Czechoslovakia during the week-end. The still unsettled French political situation, the undisclosed British attitude with respect to the German-Czech dispute.

German-Czech Crisis.

The German-Czech dispute, and guesses as to likely moves by Hitler, were actively discussed in brokerage circles and probably supplied the reason why some of the aggressive bulls remained on the sidelines. There was general agreement in banking, as well as in stock market circles, that some sort of order must be restored abroad before financial markets will be permitted to fully reflect the newfound conviction that recovery is just around the corner in the United States. Much is being made of the contra-seasonal rise in industrial indices, the betterment in retail sales despite confidence-shaking influences of the monopoly investigation and antitrust moves by the FTC and the continuation of favorable trends in the capital markets. One item of new finance today was for $25,000,000, by Atlantic Refining Co., more than $16,000,000 of which will be used to pay off bank loans.

Listed bond trading was dull today, with week-end liquidation tending to lower prices of speculative obligations, while high-grade securities dipped fractionally. Gains were sprinkled liberally among the losses, but the latter were more significant. The aloofness of buyers was attributed largely to the uncertainties of European political affairs. Trading in all bonds amounted only to $4,430,000, against $5,270,000 yesterday.

United States Treasury securities showed small fractional recessions, partly because institutional investors have adjusted their portfolios preparatory to September financing and are taking little current interest. Highest grade money market bonds of utility, rail and industrial corporations inclined to follow the lead of the Treasury group.

Low-priced speculative rails were irregular, with losses more pronounced than gains. Baltimore & Ohio bonds were in better demand than most others, as conversations continued on voluntary debt service cuts by large bondholders. Rail and utility holding bonds were dull, while local tractions showed a small move in either direction. Communications issues drifted lower, as did most other special groups.

In the foreign section bonds issued by Cuba and Panama improved, but the cheaper default issues were neglected. Japanese and Italian bonds were uncertain. The high grade obligations of Australia, Canada and Scandinavia were dull.

D.& H. Unloads 90,000 More N. Y. Central

Original Holdings of 495,000 Shares Now Cut to Around 320,000.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 25.—Delaware & Hudson Co., holding company for Delaware & Hudson Railroad, disposed of around 90,000 shares of its holdings of New York Central common between January and July of this year, J. T. Huelle, president, said today

The stock was part of the 495,000-share block, representing 10 per cent interest in New York Central, which was acquired by the company in the open market in 1933 under the generalship of former D. & H. President Leonor F. Loree, who retired as D. & H. chief this last spring. The stock was acquired at an average price of $22.36 a share.

Nuelle indicated today that the 90,000 shares had been disposed of at a loss. New York Central common on the New York Stock Exchange closed today at $19.75 a share. The 1938 high for the stock was $21.50. The low was $10.

It was the second time in less than two years that the Delaware & Hudson had sold a large block of its New York Central holdings. In 1936-37, around the turn of the year, the company sold 85,000 of the Central shares, cutting total Central holdings from the original 495,000 to 410,000. Disposal of the 90,000 shares reported today by President Nuelle, reduces the Central holdings to around 320,000 shares.

New ordinary life insurance, exclusive of group, amounting to over $3,500,000,000 has been placed in force in the United States during the first seven months of the year, according to figures just released by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau. Boston, Aug. 26 (AP).—(U. S. Dept. of Agr.).—Trading in wool was light on the Boston market today but prices were fairly heavy. Most buying was for piecing out stocks to cover old orders for goods. Recent purchases comprised largely of the finer Western-grown wools. Good French combing lengths fine territory wools in original bags sold at 62 to 65 cents, scoured basis, while short French combing lengths fine territory wools brought 60 to 61 cents, scoured basis. An occasional buyer took a little 121-month Texas wool at mostly 64 to 66 cents, scoured basis.

Building Permits Set 8-Year July Top

Cotton Higher; December 8.42

New York, Aug. 26 (AP).—Cotton quickly responded to Wall Street buying and covering in late trading today, following early quiet. December sold up from 8.33 to 8.48 but encountered some realizing and closed at 8.42, with final prices 10 to 13 points net higher.

The market opened 2 to 6 points higher in sympathy with steadier Liverpool buying and on increased trade buying of near months against yesterday's larger sales of cotton goods. Prices moved irregularly for a while, influenced by moderate orders either way. Reiterated rumors of the imminence of a government announcement on a cotton loan, attracted a little buying. Prices sold up to net advances of 15 to 19 points but reached 4 to 7 points from the best in the last few minutes of trading.

Chicago Livestock.

Chicago, Aug. 26 (AP).—Lighter hog receipts today helped the selling side of the market to gain part of the recent price decline. The market opened slow but steady and in later trading became active and about 10 cents higher than yesterday's average. Receipts of 8,000 were 2,000 less than expected and included 3,000 direct to packers. The cattle market continued yesterday's downward trend and was a pedding affair despite receipts of only 1,500. The buying side was indifferent and top was 10.50 paid for one choice 1,050-pound bullocks; strictly choice offerings were absent. Spring lamb prices were higher, but the market was slower. Sheep were steady.

HOGS—Receipts, 8,000, including 3,000 direct. Market fairly active. Weights 220 pounds down, steady to 10 higher compared with Thursday's average; others mostly steady; bulk good and choice, 190-250 pounds, 8.90@9.00; practical top, 9.00; small lot, 8.95; 260-280 pounds, 8.40@8.65; 290-350 pounds, 8.00@8.30; good light packing sows, 6.75@7.15; few 7.25; medium weights and heavies, 6.15@6.65.

CATTLE—Receipts, 1,500; calves, 500. Generally a peddling market. Buying side indifferent. Slowly taking grassy and short fed steers at 6.75@8.00 and well-fleshed fed offerings 8.75@9.50. Nothing strictly choice here since 1,050-pound bullocks sold at 10.50, this being top. These being comparable with 11.00@11.25 kinds on Monday. Similar downturns all through steers and yearlings flat. Stockers and feeders very scarce; best cows weak; cutter grades steady at 5.50 down; heifers very draggy and weak; bulls dull at 7.00 down and vealers steady at 11.00 down.

SHEEP—Receipts, 5,000, including 3,600 direct. Late Thursday spring lambs steady to string; spots, 10@15 higher; 9.00 paid for both natives and Westerns to all interests; bulk natives, 8.85 down; today's trade slowed down by higher asking prices; undertone stronger to 15 higher or upward to 8.85 and 9.00 on natives; best held 9.10 and above; sheep steady.

Electric Industry Called Monopoly

The National Lawyers Guild, through its committee on public utilities, yesterday urged that an investigation be made by the joint Congressional-Administrative National Economic Committee to determine whether a monopoly exists or unfair trade practices are being carried on in connection with manufacture and sale by such companies as General Electric, Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. and Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., of heavy electrical equipment used primarily by electric utility companies. Justice Ferdinand Pecora, of the New York Supreme Court, is president of the guild.

The committee alleged that these three manufacturers have maintained artificially high prices for the sale of turbo generators, synchronous converters, large size cable and other equipment used by public utilities. The committee maintained that an inquiry would probably disclose that artificial prices were maintained among other reasons, for the purpose of enabling electric utilities to sustain high values based upon reproduction cost appraisals and thus defeat reductions in rates.

Kentucky Primary Results Forecast Exclusively in The Washington Post

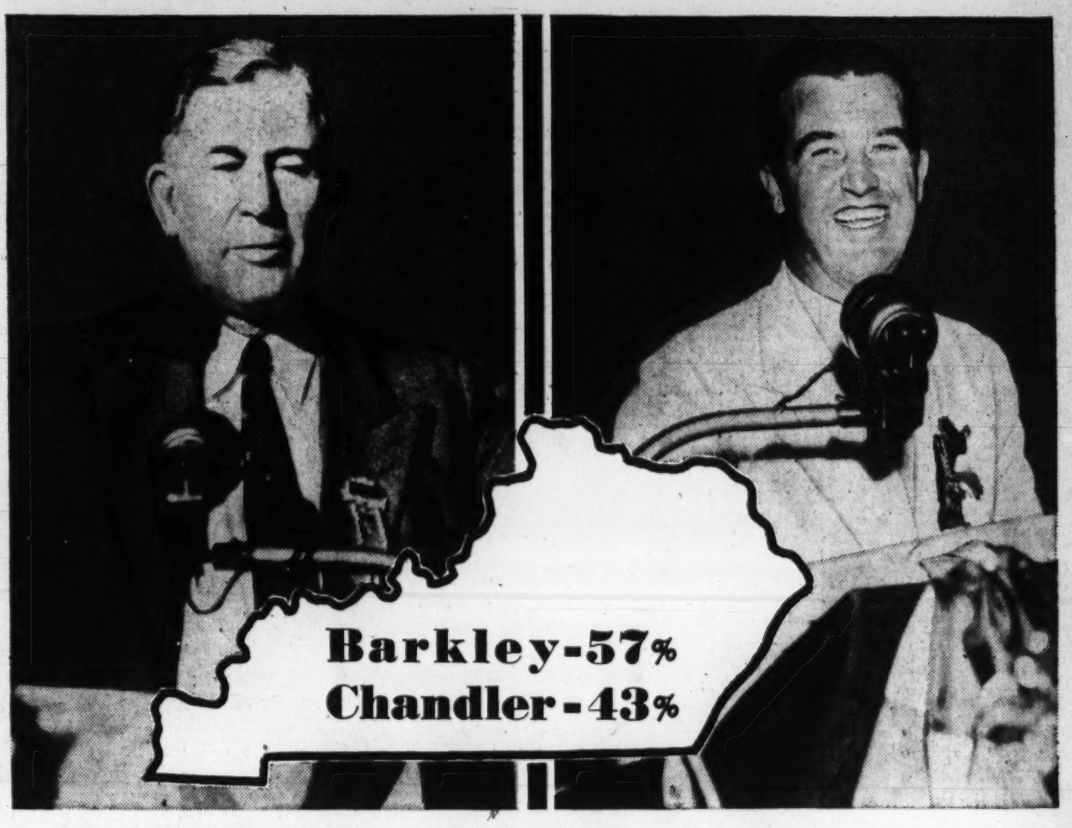
WASHINGTON'S HOME NEWSPAPER



Senator Barkley (left) whose victory over Gov. Chandler (right) in the Kentucky primary was forecast by the Gallup Polls.

BECAUSE it provided perhaps the most important test of Administration prestige within the Democratic party, the Kentucky senatorial primary held public attention for many weeks. Even President Roosevelt injected himself into the fight, traveling to Kentucky to throw his strength to Senator Barkley, New Deal lieutenant, against Gov. Chandler. Everywhere the question was: Would the President's favorite win the nomination and by how much?

The Forecast—In a survey completed four days before the Kentucky primary, the Gallup Poll, whose reports appear exclusively in Washington in The Post, showed Senator Barkley leading as follows:

Barkley 59%
Chandler 41

The Results—Four days later Kentucky Democrats, after a bitter campaign in which both candidates toured nearly every corner of the State, made their choice at the polls. Unofficial election returns show

Barkley 57%
Chandler 43

Thus the Gallup Poll forecast the result with an error of only two percentage points.

The Gallup Poll Surveys, a pioneer of the new science of public opinion measurement, met its first great test of accuracy in the 1936 presidential popular vote with an average error of only six points.

Now the Gallup Poll has also tested its technique in mayoralty elections and in State primaries and State elections. Its two years of study and experience since 1936 have brought constant improvement in technique, refinements in accuracy.

Since 1936 it has forecast:

1. The results of the Maine Sales Tax referendum with an error of five percentage points.
2. The election of Detroit's Mayor Reading with an error of two points.
3. The re-election of New York's Mayor LaGuardia with an error of four points.
4. The victory of Lewis Barrows in the Maine G. O. P. senatorial primary with an error of three points.
5. The renomination of Senator Barkley with a deviation of two points.

The Kentucky result demonstrates again the value of news coverage on what people think, as well as what they do. In Washington, this coverage of what the Nation thinks is furnished exclusively by The Washington Post through its membership in the Gallup Poll Reports.

Gallup Poll Right 55 Times Out of 61 Tries

Since it was founded in 1935, the Gallup Poll has conducted pre-election surveys in 61 State and local elections. Its results have been correct 55 times, wrong only six. The "batting average" to date is therefore .902.

'Labor Relations' Body in Md. Urged

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 26.—A proposal to establish a "Maryland Labor Relations Board," introduced unsuccessfully in the 1937 Legislature, received the formal support of State Labor Commissioner A. Stengle Marine today, in his annual report to the Governor.

The report, covering the 1937 fiscal period, called attention to 12 bills offered in the 1937 session "which were of great interest to this department."

Included in the 12 was Senate bill No. 50, introduced by State Senator Robert B. Kimble, Allegany County Republican, which would have created a State labor relations board. The bill was referred to the committee on judicial proceedings which failed to report it out.

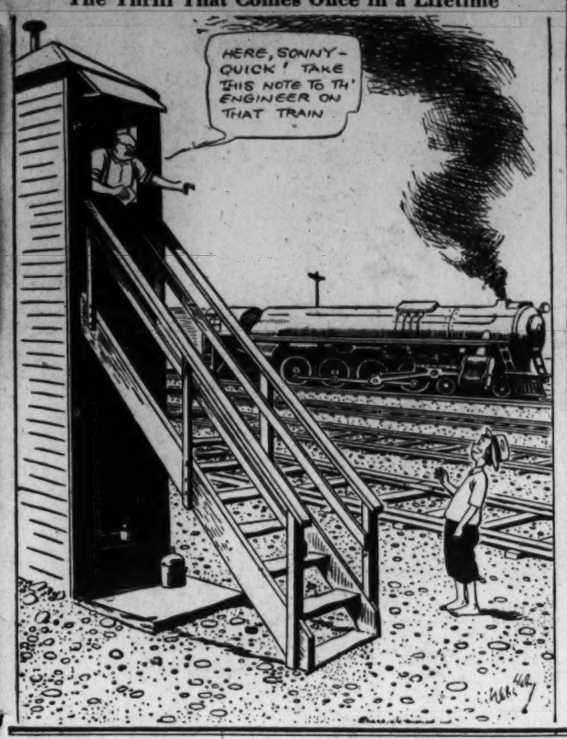
The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime



Bob Burns Says—

I believe that when a man has spent his allotted time on this earth and has passed on to the next phase, there is only one of two things you can say about It—he's either enjoyed his stay here or he hasn't. That's the reason, I think, a man who is working at something he enjoys, even though he makes a bare livin', is much better off than the man who amasses a fortune through drudgery.

I knew an old banker, who jest before he died, said if he had it to live over again, he'd live the life of a fireman. He said that had always been his lifelong ambition. I says "Well, is it because you wanted a chance to save a life or a limb?" And he says "No—all my life I've liked to sit and picture things in the fire!"

Japanese Drive Nearer China's Isolated Capital

Key Points to Hankow Are Taken; Planes Smash Rail Centers.

By the United Press.

Shanghai, (Saturday) Aug. 27.—Mechanized Japanese forces today smashed nearer the vital railways north and south of China's provisional capital in Hankow, after new attacks on key Chinese cities by their bombing planes which killed scores of Chinese and had the national capital area isolated.

The Chinese war office in Hankow admitted the loss of key positions in the inner defenses of the tri-city area, but were confident they could hold the capital at least a month longer.

Japanese naval planes bombed the Wongsha station area in Canton for half an hour yesterday morning, again destroying tracks and warehouses which had been hurriedly repaired. Whole rows of houses east of the station were razed. A big meat packing concern was partly destroyed. Police reported only about six casualties since the station area had been deserted.

Nanchang, important military and railway center south of Hankow, was bombed for an hour and the Japanese claimed 34 new munitions dumps were exploded.

Both railway stations in Changsha were bombed again and "many buildings set on fire" by Japanese planes which later flew over the new Chinese air base and munitions center in Kianghsi and bombed "extensive Chinese concentrations."

So grave was the situation in Hankow that Chinese Gen. Chiang, after a three-day inspection tour of defense positions east of the city on both banks of the Yangtze River, was reported to have transferred ten additional army divisions from the north to the Hankow area.

Two divisions of the Communist Eighth Route Army were permitted to enter the Hankow defense ring for the first time and were reported to have inflicted heavy casualties on the Japanese.

A communique by the Communist Party's representatives in Hankow said some of the Red regiments, which had filtered through the Japanese lines on the south shore of the Yangtze southeast of the capital, had taken over large guerrilla bands and formed the "Fourth route army." The communique said units of this command cut the vital Japanese-controlled railway between Nanking and Shanghai, destroying about half a mile of tracks. Later these units attacked a Japanese garrison at Kaotsechen, not far from the river port of Chinkiang, "and killed 15 Japanese soldiers besides capturing a quantity of munitions."

The Chinese war office finally admitted the Japanese had captured the important city of Juichang, southwest of Kiukiang, and said Japanese bombing planes had destroyed Kwangtsi, 20 miles west of Hwangmei, in the Wusueh area.

Japan May Salvage Gold Teeth of Dead

Tokyo (Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Alumni of the Japan college of dentistry have suggested a dentist be assigned each crematorium to remove gold fillings, plates, crowns and teeth from bodies, so that the gold may be used to carry on the war in China.

They recently told the government about 10,000,000 yen ($2,900,000) in gold goes back each year into graves or cremation urns.

Postman Driving South, Not Aware That He Won Car

Somewhere on a southward highway the luckiest delegate to the National Rural Letter Carriers' Convention sits hunched over the wheel of "last year's car," on his way to his native Georgia.

He doesn't know he drew the lucky number out of 5,000 that won for him the streamlined automobile exhibited at the Mayflower throughout the convention.

The innocent winner is T. S. Ford, who hauls the mail from Dalton. He has a son named Henry Ford, who attended the convention with him. Ford and Henry left before the drawing of the prize.

Georgia papers, please copy—add that the automobile the delegate won is not a Ford!

Libby Questions Hull Note on Land

Questioning Secretary Hull's strong note to Mexico demanding arbitration and payment for American farm lands expropriated by the Mexican government, Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, said last night "our Government must beware of creating in Mexico another Spain."

Libby questions "whether we are dealing differently with Mexico and our European debtors like Great Britain and France."

"One's second question," he said, "is whether the debts due Americans on small holdings of land are being used in Secretary Hull's note to cover real pressure for payment to American oil companies that have, according to all accounts, received already many times the amount of their investment."

Berry-Picking Urged In Nazi Fruit Scarcity

Berlin, Aug. 26 (AP).—An apeal to German farm communities today urged the use of wild berries of the nation's forests to meet the immediate need for fruit, scarce because of spring frosts.

The appeal, addressed to school children and old people, urged them to comb forests for wild berries and sell them to local farm leaders.

U.S. Told It's 'Missing Good Bet' In Overlooking Puerto Rica

Fairbank, Here for Conference, Outlines Possibilities.

Miles Fairbank, assistant administrator of the Puerto Rican Reconstruction Administration, came here from the island yesterday with the feeling that the United States is "missing an awfully good bet down there."

Fairbank saw more opportunity than problem, though, he said, the problem was deep enough. Much deeper than surface indications, in which introspective Puerto Ricans dash off poems, dictate political manifestos or resort to guns.

Ninety-nine per cent of the problem is economic, said Fairbank. In the first place, the Puerto Rican regards sugar, coffee and tobacco as his reason of being in the business world. The demands for their commodities are met by many other parts of the world and there the United States Government is trying to get in a helping hand.

Urges Aggressive Policy.

Federal agencies are showing the Puerto Ricans that sugar has wider possibilities than they ever suspected. Already, about 15 byproducts of sugar are being experimented with, and it has been demonstrated that some of these, such as cellulose, butinal and acetone, have as much commercial value as sugar, at its current price.

Fairbank would have them produce their quota of sugar, as such, and then concentrate on the manufacture of the byproducts. Otherwise, they grow all the exotic flowers that go into fine perfumes, and the thought had not occurred to them until the Federal agents sprung the notion. All about the island, the Government has shown the Puerto Ricans the possibilities in their native resources; it is now the problem to have the situation taken advantage of, and there, he thinks, an aggressive policy is needed.

It is not his idea to have the islanders begin such manufacture as would compete with continental American business. He would have them concentrate on producing things native to their land, things such as the perfume, which is ordinarily supplied from foreign countries.

Possibilities Outlined.

Among the numerous possibilities are factories for the canning of orange juice, and they should, he said, exploit the fine Puerto Rican sand, from which the highest grade of glass can be produced. There are possibilities in coconuts and fruits of all kinds. It all is so obvious that Fairbank wonders why something has not been done about it long ago.

There is where the aggressive action on the part of the Federal Government enters. Once shown what to do, the Puerto Rican is willing enough to work, he says. Here the conflict enters betwen peoples of many social, economic and political viewpoints. But he is hopeful that the younger generation of Puerto Ricans will have the answer.

MILES FAIRBANK.

The better class of this generation has been to school in the States and has returned home with a broad view of matters. The older generation, which sinks its viewpoint in older, more Spanish ground, won't be there forever; and when they are gone Fairbank sees the new generation remaking the island. The Federal Government, he thinks, is laying the groundwork for the change. It is showing the islanders how to develop their tremendous resources. He thinks another generation will take advantage of it.

Has Definite Mission.

He decries any policy that at present would leave the island "hanging on a limb." The United States has had Puerto Rico for 40 years and may as well determine to do something about it, he feels. The natives, at the moment, are feeling themselves drifting, directionless. Their status, politically, is nebulous.

The Federal Government, as Fairbank sees it, has definite mission in the island: to stabilize it economically; to show the islanders their native possibilities, help them work out their economic problems and then, in 10 or 15 years, the question of Statehood or what not can be talked of with some basis for the talk.

Fairbank is here to discuss Puerto Rican affairs as may concern the next Congress. He will return to the island within a month.

Insurgents Flee Almaden Area, Loyalists Say

Guns and Planes Drive in Flanks, Force Retreat From Mine Sector.

By the United Press.

Hendaye, France, Aug. 26.—The loyalist government announced tonight that Gen. Gonzalo Queipo de Llano's southern insurgent army was retreating "in disorder" along the Zujar River 140 miles south of Madrid under a terrific loyalist counter-assault in defense of the Almaden mercury mines.

Insurgent dispatches admitted heavy enemy assaults all along the Estramadura front, from the Tagus Valley south to Cordoba, but insisted insurgent lines were holding.

The loyalists said their forces, strengthened by reinforcements from the eastern and central fronts, had driven the insurgents back as far as 9 miles at some points.

Guns, Planes Aid.

Government aviation and artillery played an important role in the counter-assault, loyalist dispatches said.

Loyalists reported the capture of more than 200 prisoners and great quantities of war material.

The insurgents' southern headquarters at Seville, base of Queipo de Llano's army, said bombing planes were shattering government positions.

Franco Gains on Ebro.

On the Ebro front, along the northwestern boundary of Catalonia where 145,000 loyalist and insurgent troops are locked in a bloody encounter within a narrow arc on the west bank of the Ebro River, the loyalists admitted that Gen. Franco's forces were pressing eastward, but only at the cost of enormous casualties.

[French military authorities at Hendaye said several armed patrol boats from Bordeaux would be sent to the mouth of the Bidassoa River, on the western end of the French-Spanish frontier, to protect Frenchmen from insurgent machine-gunners guarding the border, the Associated Press said.

[Machine-gun bullets from an insurgent patrol boat killed a Frenchman Wednesday as he finished bathing in the river. Insurgent soldiers said they saw the man wading toward the shore and suspected he was a deserter from the insurgent army.—Editor's note.]

Contributions made in this country to registered organizations which collect funds for use in connection with the war in Spain have reached a total of $1,478,916.79, the State Department disclosed yesterday. The report covered 15 months beginning in May, 1937. Of the total collected in that period, $343,605 has been expended in this country for propaganda and administrative expenses.

The medical bureau and North American Committee to aid Spanish Democrats reported the largest amount, $518,633.53.

The American Committee for Spanish Relief, New York, apparently spent more money on administration, publicity affairs and campaigns than it received in contributions after it was required to register. It reported contributions of $28,696.24 and expenditures of $30,359.10.

Under a law which went into effect last year, 30 organizations have registered with the State Department, but several have ceased to function.

18 Army Planes To Fly at Races

Eighteen Seversky single-seat fighters, capable of speeds up to 300 m. p. h., will represent the Army Air Corps at the National Air Races to be held at Cleveland from September 3 to 5, it was announced yesterday by the War Department.

Maj. Willis Taylor, commanding the Twenty-seventh Pursuit Squadron, stationed at Selfridge Field, Mich., explained that his planes would be able to simulate most formations and maneuvers common to war-time pursuit flying, although they normally operate at much higher altitudes than will be possible at the Cleveland show.

The Army's ground exhibit will consist of nine different types of combat plane, including a Boeing "flying fortress" and a Kellett autogiro.

Priest Accuses Press Of Bias for Loyalists

Cleveland, Aug. 26 (AP).—Mgr. Michael J. Ready, of Washington, D. C., declared tonight in a speech before the thirteenth biennial convention of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae "the press of the United States is irreparably injurious to Spain, this country, and every country endeavoring to maintain law and order and public decency."

Mgr. Ready, who recently returned from Spain, said the simple cause of the war is a revolt against "the terroristic excesses of the red regime which did not and could not rule Spain, and if the war continues it is due in no small degree to the propaganda of the press against the necessity and justice of that rebellion."

Dies Challenges C. I. O. to Reply To Red Charge

Asks Answer to Testimony Body's Organizers Are Communists.

By the Associated Press.

The Committee for Industrial Organization was challenged yesterday to refute charges by an American Federation of Labor official that many of its organizers were Communists.

The challenge was forwarded by Chairman Dies (Democrat), Texas, of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, in a letter to E. L. Oliver, of Labor's Non-Partisan League, political arm of the C. I. O. The letter replied to accusations by the league against Edward F. Sullivan, committee investigator.

The league had charged, in affidavits and other information delivered to the committee, that Sullivan once worked for the Railway Audit Inspection Bureau, that he took part in "an undercover campaign" against President Roosevelt in 1936, and that American citizens should not be exposed to "baseless attacks" from him.

Accuses a "Smoke Screen."

Declaring Sullivan had denied the league's charges, Dies asserted they were beside the point. He accused the league of "raising a smoke screen to cloud the real issue."

John P. Frey, an official of the American Federation of Labor, had testified before the committee previously that Communists held many important positions in the C. I. O.

"I note that you have gone to considerable trouble in investigating one of the investigators of this committee," Dies wrote Oliver, "but I am at a loss to understand why you have not devoted your time to the important question raised by testimony before our committee that the C. I. O. had had on its pay roll many organizers who were Communists."

Lewis Declined.

Dies said he had invited Chairman John L. Lewis, of the C. I. O., to appear before the committee and give any information he may have with regard to subversive activities. He said Lewis declined.

"This organization (the C. I. O.) did not see fit to appear and deny under oath this testimony and these charges," Dies wrote. "Instead, you have seen fit to attack an investigator who had absolutely nothing to do with the charges."

Dies said Sullivan had not participated in the investigation which led to testimony that Communists were "boring from within" labor organizaions, political parties and the ranks of Hollywood movie stars.

Bomb in Market Battle Kills 38 In Palestine

By the United Press.

Jerusalem, Aug. 6.—Arab dead in the Holy Land totaled 38 tonight after a day marked by terrorism in Jaffa and a pitched battle between British troops and Arab warriors at Tulkarem.

Heavy casualties resulted from a bomb explosion in the crowded Jaffa vegetable market. During the Tulkarem fighting, which raged for four hours, British military planes bombed and machine-gunned an Arab band.

The day's disorders lifted above 300 the number of Arab, Jewish and British lives lost in the wave of racial bloodshed which broke out July 5. Total casualties since that date are above 1,000.

Fighting and bombing planes of the royal air force killed 15 armed rebels in the four-hour battle after a large band of Arabs ambushed British troops at Teleghusn, near Tulkarem.

Bomb Kills 16.

The bombing of the Jaffa market killed 16 Arabs and wounded 30, and resulted in full-time curfew being imposed on the Mediterranean seaport, where some of the heaviest battles of the crusades were fought.

The day's casualties rose to 38 dead, 35 in hospitals and many others injured when angry Arabs stirred up new street disorders following the market blast.

Ten of the wounded in the hospitals were in critical condition.

The market bombing, third incident of its kind in the Holy Land in recent Arab-Jewish strife, touched off other violence including derailment of a passenger train, attacks on two British banks, arson, sniping from ambush, stonings, and an Arab strike throughout Palestine.

The high commissioner of Palestine reported a passenger train was partially derailed on the Tel-Aviv line near Lydda without casualties, but traffic on the line was at a standstill.

After the market explosion bands of Arabs attacked Barclay's Bank and the Anglo-Palestine Bank and one Arab was killed when British police fired on them.

Jewish traffic was held up temporarily by sniping and stone-throwing in and around the town of Ramleh and a Jewish chauffeur was wounded when his lorry was fired upon. A Jewish girl riding in a taxicab also was wounded.

Only official communications regarding the activities of the terrorists and British military forces were permitted to be published.

Pleasure-bound vacationists going on a cruise down the Atlantic Ocean have seen the lighthouses and lightships that dot the Atlantic Ocean. Inquisitive John Bertram Oakes of The Post staff visited these lightships—talked to these men who stand guard on the Atlantic to keep the coast safe for shipping. Such jobs bring 108 days yearly vacation with pay but they also bring monotony, loneliness and danger . . . real danger. Wait till you read Oakes' article about the lighthouse men—in Section III—in Sunday's Post.

New York Society Discovers Successor To The Big Apple!

Lucius Beebe is New York's top-hat society reporter. In Sunday's Post, he tells about the new dance that is the rage at the St. Regis Roof, the dance that has the four hundred pin-wheeling with locked arms!

He tells, too, how the profession of "shill" has deserted the Broadway auction rooms and invaded Park Avenue. Mr. Beebe, who is possibly the nation's number one party-goers, likewise estimates what your chances are of seeing yourself in a "Life Goes To A Party" spread, in Life. There's a lot to enjoy in Lucius Beebe's story . . . tomorrow in Section VI.

Mobilizing Manpower in the U. S.

What would happen if the United States were suddenly invaded? Where would we get the men? How long would it take to mobilize our forces? In Section VI of Sunday's Post, S. F.
